The strongest recommendation that any article can have is the endorsement of the mothers of the town. When the mothers recommend it you may know that that article has more than ordinary merit. Here is what the Centerville, South Dakota, Citizen says editorially of an article sold in their town: "From personal experience we can say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has broken up bad colds for our children. We are acquainted with many mothers in Centerville who would not be without it in the house for a good many times its cost, and are recommending it every day." 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

PROTESTANT NUNS.

Work That is Being Done by the Sisters of the Virgin Mary.

The Sisterhood of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, a Protestant Episcopal order of nuns, has been granted letters of incorporation, according to the New York World. Their home is at No. 149 Second avenue—the House of the Holy Comforter. The incorporators are Rev. Dr. Maunsell Van Rensselaer, Frances Elizabeth Hunter, Rebecca Violante Sperling, Elizabeth Wayne Plume and Josephine Constance Celestine Lawrence. The order was formerly called the Sisters of the Visitation.

"The home is now crowded," said Mother Francesca the other day. "Favoring Providence has enabled us, from time to time, to increase our usefulness, and we hope at an early day to have still another home established. We want to shelter boys and girls afflicted with incurable diseases, and are looking about for a site for such a home. We have some money set aside for the purpose, but will need a great deal more. We are not deterred by the absence of funds, for kind friends always turn up with donations when we are sorest pressed. The current expenses for this Home for Indigent Protestant Women, afflicted incurably, is about five hundred dollars per month. At present we have temporarily abandoned the training class of young girls for our hospital service. We make no charge for admission or support of our patients, and there is no endowment to aid us. Our maintenance depends entirely on voluntary contributions.

HEADRESS OF A NUN.

"There is no home for little incurables now, and those whom we hope at an early day to shelter are now sent to the island under those in charge of the workhouse. We are ambitious in the matter of relieving distress, in helping the poor and educating the young. We hope to have a home in the country, where in summer our patients can have the benefit of good air and a change of environment.

"When we are able to resume our training school it will receive Protestant girls between the ages of nine and fourteen, we retaining the care of them until they are eighteen years. They will get a thorough secular and religious education, together with proper training in domestic and useful duties."

The home of the sisters is a large, roomy, old-fashioned residence. It has a modest sign beside the door, but nothing else to distinguish it from neighboring houses. The interior is arranged with great care and thought as to its uses.

The dress of the nuns, strikingly like that of the Catholic orders, being black, with snow-white headdress, is looked on as a matter of fact now by a number of subscribers who have not embraced high-church tenets. The appointments of the reception room and the general apartments are marked by simplicity, and a ritualist would be pleased at the frequency of crucifixes and other religious emblems.

THE CRETAN LABYRINTH.

A Recent Discovery Gives a Key to an Ancient Puzzle.

The existence of a maze or labyrinth in Crete, is borne out by the legend of Theseus slaying the Minotaur in its heart by the help of Ariadne, who gave him a thread to pay out behind him as a clew, in penetrating its recesses, and also by the fact that old coins of Crete exhibit the figure of a labyrinth. Some of the mazes of these coins are circular, others rectangular, but, according to the Philadelphia Record, the internal arrangement is the same in all, and consists of a round-about path which leaves the traveler no choice of route or chance of error. Hence Richard Inwards has surmised that the clew or key to the right path, and leaves out the wrong ones. By taking the maze as shown on the coins and treating the circular dividing walls as double, each containing a passage of the same width as the road shown on the coin, he obtains the genuine labyrinth, as seen in the accompanying figure, which is difficult to explore to the center even when seen at a glance on paper. The coin device is simply each alternate circle of this one. To give the key in brief—avoid every alternate circle or path. Such a labyrinth helps us to understand how useful the colored thread of Ariadne might be to Theseus, because on returning to any place he had passed he would find his own thread and be able to make a better start next time.

HIGH-PRICED FOOD.

Tobacco and Gold on a Par on the Upper Yukon River, Alaska.

R. D. Miles, a recent visitor in San Francisco, gives the Call a graphic account of the prices current for ordinary commodities on the upper Yukon river, Alaska.

He has, according to the Call, just returned from that country, where, he states, there were over one hundred men at work during the last summer washing gold from the river bars and riffles. The majority of them will winter in that country.

"Well, I'll tell you, I am glad to get back to civilization again," he said. "Gold is plentiful; in fact it is an ordinary trick for a man to wash out from twenty to sixty dollars a day, but a man needs all that to live anyway comfortable in that country, and he has but little to show after a season of hard work.

"When I left that country a trader with a small stock of goods was making his way up the river from some of the coast trading points in a canoe. In fact he had several of them loaded with provisions. He was assisted in his journey by half a dozen Indians.

"Well, when he left, after selling out his cargoes, he had about all the gold dust the miners had washed out in four or five months of steady work.

"We ran short of provisions, and had subsisted on bear meat and other game so long that we willingly parted with nearly all we had to get some civilized eatables.

"Well, this trader—his name was Emmons—sold the several sacks of spuds he had with him at the rate of from thirty to fifty cents per potato.

"His flour sold for twenty dollars a sack, and we were just glad enough to pay five dollars a pound for the very poorest quality of tea he had with him.

"He had several sides of bacon in his stock, which he disposed of at about one dollar a slice. A few sacks of the despised bean brought one dollar a pound.

"We had been out of tobacco for nearly two months, and had drawn but little solace out of pipefuls of dried leaves and moss. When this fellow appeared on the scene we took him to our hearts as a benefactor and gave him ounces of gold for plugs of tobacco. An ounce of gold brings sixteen dollars in Alaska and nineteen dollars at the mint here.

"We bought a hundredweight of onions, for which we were assessed six ounces of gold.

"I tell you what, we poured out the dust upon that fellow Emmons, and he had so much of it I don't think I would like to take the contract to pack it from here to the city hall.

"You must not think from this appalling price list that we were starving to death. We had plenty of game and fish, but that kind of grub palls on the appetite."

"The boys," however, appear to have made money on the Yukon river bars. Mr. Miles states that all of them have "stakes," and he came down to Victoria with several of them who had "cleaned up" from twelve thousand dollars to twenty-eight thousand dollars apiece.

These figures represent the number of bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and croup, which were sold in the United States from March, '91 to March, '92. Two million, two hundred and twenty-eight thousand, six hundred and seventy-two bottles sold in one year, and each and every bottle was sold on a positive guarantee that money would be refunded if satisfactory results did not follow its use. The secret of its success is plain. It never disappoints and can always be depended on as the very best remedy for coughs, colds, etc. Price 50c. and $1.00. At Snipes & Kinersly's drug store.

A Pest of Squirrels.

Squirrels are plentiful and destructive in some parts of the state of Washington. Linden county paid out forty thousand dollars in bounties on squirrel scalps last year, yet but little good effect was produced. It is proposed to tax all the lands in the county to raise funds to fight the pest and so make railroads and nonresident owners help

"The people of this vicinity insist on having Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and do not want any other," says John V. Bishop, of Portland Mills, Indiana. That is right. They know it to be superior to any other for colds, and as a preventive and cure for croup, and why should they not insist upon having it. 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.
