Brushes from Cocoanuts.
Among the many materials from which brushes are now made is coir, which is obtained from the husk of the cocoanut. The coir is imported in bales weighing 250 pounds. This is reeled on spools which are placed in a very ingenious machine, whence the brushes come in couples as the two webs of a double fabric like plush, face to face, and are separated by cutting apart. The binding, made from the same material, is then put on and secured by stitching through and through the brush. The brushes are then trimmed to give them a uniform face, and a few light strips of wood inclosed in the back to impart a degree of stiffness. They are made in quite a variety, from the common scrubbing brush up to the neat clothes brush and brush for the bath.

THREE VERY LUCKY CHILDREN.

How the Little Imperial Princes of Germany Pass Their Time.
Of the daily life of the three eldest imperial princes the Berlin correspondent of the London News writes: "The princes, as is very generally known, are very simply and strictly brought up. Every day, summer and winter, they get up at 7 o'clock in the morning and have breakfast at 7:45 o'clock, consisting of tea and rolls. The meal never lasts longer than a quarter of an hour. Punctually at 8 o'clock their lessons begin. The crown prince, as well as Princes Fritz and Adelbert, are each taught separately, but for some hours the crown prince and Prince Fritz are taught together. The crown prince, who is most zealous, and takes all his lessons in earnest, is much further advanced than his two brothers. The play hours during the morning are filled up with gymnastics, games of ball, digging, etc. in the playground, near the right wing of the new palace. At 9:45 they take luncheon—sandwiches, claret and natural mineral water, which beverage is much drunk at the imperial table. After lunch they again have lessons for a short time, and then take their riding lessons, either in the riding school in bad weather or in fine weather out of doors. The crown prince, who is an excellent rider, with a firm seat, has lately begun to ride. His white horse, Abdul, which he received on his birthday from the emperor, is a handsome, large Arabian, with a long tail and thick mane, of faultless build, proud bearing, and a most graceful step. After their riding lesson they sometimes take a ride in the neighborhood of the new palace, accompanied by the crown prince's military governor, Maj. von Falkenhayn. Princes Fritz and Adelbert accompany the crown prince on their ponies, and it is a pretty sight to see the younger ones trying to keep up with their elder brother. They very often take a drive in their pony carriage, the crown prince driving. This little basket carriage is drawn by a white pony, hung all over with silver bells, and its name is Seehund."

THE DALLES,
Wasco County, Oregon,
The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY.
It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market.
The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.
The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.
The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.
The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH.
It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.
Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these corner stones she stands.
