Keep your eye on The Dalles Mercantile Co.'s new ad. on the fourth page. Bargains will be announced from time to time which it might pay you to scoop in.

Hon. Binger Hermann has kindly mailed us the March, '93, report of the statistician at Washington, which contains much valuable information. Thanks.

A sturgeon was caught last night in the river here, with a troll hook, which measured ten feet in length and 16 inches in diameter. Though not the largest ever caught here, it looked like a young whale in an express wagon.

Dr. Blalock, in sinking a well on his place at Blalocks, struck a bed of quicksand, and ordered from Maier & Benton four joints of sheet-iron tubing about four feet in diameter, which will be sunk so that further work may be prosecuted.

J. C. Meins has papers from Milo B. Stevens & Co., pension agents for Daniel Hoffman. He has been granted $8 pension, with $200 back pay. Any person knowing his address will confer a favor by sending it to J. C. Meins at The Dalles.

Mr. J. C. O'Leary arrived at his home in the city last evening from his sheep ranch. His opinion is that sheep shearing will not begin before about the 15th of next month. He speaks encouragingly of the increase of young flocks. The clip will be of fine staple this year.

"Well," said the editor to the dying delinquent, "how do you feel about the future?" "It's bright—all bright!" gasped the delinquent. "I thought so," said the editor; "in about 15 minutes you'll see it blaze."—(Atlanta Constitution.)

Members of Temple Lodge, No. 3, A. O. U. W., are requested to meet at Fraternity hall tomorrow night, April 22d, at 7:30, to make arrangements for the funeral of our late brother, Emery Campbell. By order of Master Workman.

In a conversation with Mr. Max Blank last evening we learned that just as soon as the weather will permit he will begin work on his brickyard and make a quarter of a million of brick this season. This means business for mechanics and more solid business blocks.

Property-owners will do well to clean up their alleys, or the street commissioner is liable to get after them after Monday.

A crop-weather bureau station has been established at Wasco, Sherman county, with Jesse Eaton installed as reporter.

It is reported that the water wheel recently put into the Columbia at Blalocks for irrigating purposes, is pumping 1,000,000 gallons per day.

A meeting of citizens will be held tonight at the city hall to decide upon the matter of an appropriation for the Prospectus of Oregon, and if it is decided, in what manner the money shall be raised.

C. R. Smith, civil engineer of Spokane, is in the county looking over the line of the proposed irrigating ditch to be run from the head of the Big Klickitat river to the Horse Heaven country.—Courier.

J. C. Lucky says that the crop condition at Warm Springs is first class. Stock is doing well, while the higher mountains are still covered with snow, insuring an abundance of running water far into the summer.

Some tourists arrived in this city last night on the Regulator and others have arrived by train. They, in common with all tourists, were delighted with the beauty of the city, and were surprised at the many handsome and substantial residences here.

The sight of the sun to Portland people is something as unusual as a comet would be to us. The other morning the sun was actually visible for the first time in months, and the terrified inhabitants quickly gave the alarm and the fire bell was rung, before the mistake was learned, so says J. W. Kuykendall, of Albina.

The case of R. Densmore vs. R. Hardwick is being tried this afternoon before Justice Davis. It is a damage suit for the loss of a horse which was alleged to be killed by the illegally-constructed fence of R. Hardwick, having killed himself on the wires. A number of Mosier people are in the city today in consequence.

At Medical Springs.

A. C. Phelps, of the Collins medical springs, is in town today. He states that the weather is stormy and disagreeable, but the temperature is not low, and as a consequence, everything looks fresh, and flowers and green leaves are plentiful. The bath houses are being fitted up, the stoves having already been supplied, and tourist travel is soon confidently expected.

The Weather.

Even the oldest inhabitant gives up the weather for a bad lot. The man who remembers when Mount Hood was a hole in the ground cannot remember a spring to match this. Language fails to do the subject justice. There is a widespread idea that Mr. Pague has become a sort of Jonah, since he moved the weather bureau up so near where the weather is made, and unless there is a change for the better soon, something is likely to drop about nine stories.—Oregonian.

ARTESIAN WATER.

Failure of a Coal Prospect Develops Something Almost as Good.

On Chenoweth creek an effort was made about three years ago to find coal, but the hole was abandoned after a certain depth failed to develop the existence of the black diamonds. A later attempt was again made by Messrs. Nichols, Roland and others, and when at a depth of 51 feet the operators were surprised to find a stream of pure artesian water forcing itself up to the top of the six-inch pipe and spouting up into the air for a few inches above this. This decides the long-mooted question that artesian water in Eastern Oregon is not only a possibility, but a glowing reality, and will encourage effort to find larger bodies of it, which it is probable can easily be done when a greater depth is tried. If artesian wells can be struck it means the reclamation of thousands of acres of good agricultural land that wants only moisture to be as fertile as the country overflowed by the lower Nile.

Officers of the W. C. T. U.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year in the W. C. T. U.: County superintendent, Mrs. Smith French; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Donnell; recording secretary, Mrs. Bishop; treasurer, Mrs. Wallace.

At the close of the late convention in this city Miss Trumbull canvassed the audience and reported sixteen names for an organization of the Y. W. C. T. U.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. L. E. Crowe left on the afternoon train yesterday for a short stay in Portland.

General Mgr. Whitman of the Chicago & Northwestern, and party passed through for the east today.

Indian Agent Luckey, of the Warm Springs Indian agency, came into the city today from the agency.

Mrs. Phil. Metchan of Salem is the guest of Mrs. Geo. A. Liebe and will remain with her until Sunday.

George Filloon and wife will be in the city several days on a visit to his brother, John Filloon, and wife, of The Dalles.

Miss Bessie Oleson, who has been visiting relatives in this city for some time past, returned to her home in Portland on the evening passenger yesterday.

Mrs. Fleming, assistant missionary with Dr. Alters at the Warm Springs agency, arrived in town today and will return to her home in Lawrence, Kan., via the Regulator and the Southern Pacific.

Messrs. J. W. Vanderpool and John Ganaway of Prineville gave THE CHRONICLE a pleasant call today. They report the rain of night before last as extending out nearly 100 miles in the interior.

FINALLY ARRIVE.

The Asylum Commission Take a Look at the Irvine Farm.

Governor Penoyer and Treasurer Metchan arrived on the Regulator, as was announced yesterday, and were met by many citizens who shook hands with the state officials. There was no blare of trumpets or unseemly noises of any kind to mark the event as differing from the commonplace. The flag waving from the mast was the only outward show of honor paid the governor and treasurer of Oregon, and they appeared to be just as well pleased with the hearty, sincere hand shakes of their friends here as if they were compelled to strain their ears to hear what was said, because of the noise of horns and drums. A hack was in readiness, driven by the sheriff, in which was seated, besides the guests, Emil Schanno, Dan French, Chas. Schmidt, W. H. Condon, R. F. Gibbons. No time was lost, everyone realized they were here for business, and they were at once driven out to the Irvine farm, which has been the sole site advocated for the location of the asylum by The Dalles. They were absent two hours, spending about an hour at the grounds, and were thoroughly posted as to the advantages and facilities offered. As elsewhere the commission were non-committal, though they seemed pleased with the site visited, and we have only to await their time as to a decision. The party left on the night train for Echo. The governor will proceed immediately to Salem, and the treasurer will stop off at The Dalles a day or two.

AFTER THE FINE GOLD.

A Company Will Work the Old Placer Diggings on the Columbia.

A dispatch from Umatilla to the Oregonian relates that during the week civil engineers have been running lines from the rapids of the Umatilla river, one mile above Umatilla, to the old gold fields along the shore of the Columbia, three miles west. They were quite reticent regarding the nature of their business, and it was generally conceded that they were working on an irrigation scheme. It is now rumored, however, that they were working in the interest of a company lately formed at Pendleton for the purpose of making a thorough investigation into the condition of the old placer digging, and if possible, devising some means of procuring the fine gold. The rapids of Umatilla will afford them excellent water power for hydraulic mining. Fifteen Chinamen are now working the old fields with the common cradle process. Quite a number of claims have been staked out by white men.

Ministers Strike.

Salem has enjoyed the past few weeks an excitement in the way of a minister's strike. It is true, there were no noisy demonstrations or resorts to violence by the laborers in the vineyard of the Lord. But there was a firm struggle with all the attendant features of a successful strike. The Salem ministers union resolved that it was not getting enough pay for services rendered in the state institution, or in fact not paid at all. So the gentleman of the cloth served notices on their employers, or those in charge, that no prayer would be uttered, or a sermon preached, or a soul absolved, unless there was an adjustment of differences. All relations were suspended until the negotiations were completed. There was a voluminous correspondence with officials, boards, trustees and superintendents. The compensation was agreed upon. Sunday all the striking ministers were at their posts. The result was, as usual, a compromise.—Journal.

Canning Factory.

The canning factory at Eugene is making extensive preparations for a heavy run this season. This cannery has a capacity of from 6,000 to 25,000 cans. While in the city a few days ago the manager Mr. Abrams, kindly showed the entire workings of the plant, including the immense dryer which is furnished with a huge fan to keep up a rapid circulation of air through fruit which is heated by means of coils of pipes through which the heat is regulated. Corn and peas canned last year is of excellent quality at present and has the appearance of being long keeping goods. The goods put up are all of a high class and will be sold as such. As there is not a cannery on the coast canning corn, this one will make a specialty of this product, preparations are being made for putting up quite a large plant.—Pacific Farmer.
