On to Chicago.

The rich will ride in a palace car. All gilt with mahogany frames. The man without money must go afoot. But he'll get there all the same.

The late rains mean big crops.

Spokane letter and Mosier Musings on first page.

This locality was favored with a fine rain last night.

A humorist from the coast says there are no dry jokes in the Willamette valley—they are always moist.

The Oregonian is to put in some of the linotype machines. It is reported they will arrive next week. The day of the printer is short.

An invalid who put in an appearance here today, says the rain in the Willamette valley is like the reign of the Lord—it is everlasting.

A little orphan boy of 9 years arrived from Portland today from the Boys and Girls Aid Society. He was taken in charge and will go to J. Strein, Wapinitia.

Owing to ill health Mrs. Lochhead has postponed the Flower Queen operetta until June, when it will be given for her own benefit, instead of for the benefit of the Episcopal church.

J. G. Day jr., set up a delectable lunch yesterday to all those visitors from The Dalles who wished to partake of their hospitality and had carriages in readiness to escort them to the quarry.

A very veracious newspaper man says the salutation in the Willamette valley is: "How are you today?" and the answer is: "I am wet." Here it is: "I am dry," and they go right in and get it.

Antonio S. Beteniscourt, an Italian gentleman of quality and it is said wealth, too, (for he is no count) is being sought by his brother. He has been traced to The Dalles, but the brother is now at sea in regard to his whereabouts.

Persons going to the Columbian exposition should bear in mind that after they have paid 50 cents general admission fee it would cost about $37 additional to see all the sights or side shows inside, which, it is said, form part of the general exhibition.

While Dan R. Murphy, chairman of the state democratic central committee, is at Washington looking out for political appointments, his wife was attending to business in Portland. "April 13th, twins, a boy and a girl," is the unpretentious announcement. — Baker City Democrat.

Railroad men can transport almost anything, inert or active, without danger to themselves or otherwise, but on Tuesday last it was different at Chicago on the arrival of two hundred highly-prized Zulus. These active Africans, having lost something, rounded up the conductor, all the trainmen, and were going to assagai them when the police interfered and effected a rescue.

The Chinese show little eagerness to register under the provisions of the Geary registration law, and in some places they are even being influenced by their more enlightened brethren not to do so. A Chinaman will be arrested in New York City on May 6th, and a test case made to find out whether or not the law is constitutional.

The bland smile of the ex-postmaster general today rivalled the genial sunlight. He seemed even more glad to see everybody than everybody was to see him, but those who were disappointed may console themselves with the thought that they are good men, and that Wanamaker is a good man and that there is still a chance in heaven.

A Salem dispatch states that Gov. Penney and Hon. Phil Metcahan left that city yesterday for another visit to Eastern Oregon for the purpose of looking over the several sections that are objects for the location of the insane asylum. On their return they will decide at which place it will be located. The decision probably will be made the fore part of next week.

C. E. Chrisman reports that S. B. Adams is meeting with excellent success in handling the Chrisman fruit dryer, having sold twenty-five in Marion county alone in a very short time. The dryer is said by all who are informed to be as near perfection as it is possible. The inventor is Mr. C. E. Chrisman of this city.

The Last Meeting.

The last meeting of the whist club was held last night, the host and hostess being Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilson. Three prizes were given, the ladies prize being won by Miss Jennie Marden, the gentleman's prize by C. E. Bayard, and the booby by Mr. Hobson. After the whist playing there was an excellent banquet furnished by Keller and Gehres, at which the guests did ample justice. The hosts then gave a dance, Miss Alma Schmidt furnishing music on the piano. An adjournment was then taken until next November. These parties have been one of the pleasantest pastimes of the winter, which accounts for their lingering so far into the summer.

Sheep Conditions.

Mr. Phil Brogan of Antelope came in last night and reports that sheep shearing is beginning. Kerr & Buckley have started in with a full force of men on their band and says that by the first of May, with a continuance of the present good weather, everybody will be shearing with the exception of those in the colder and more mountainous sections. The grass is reported to be excellent and sheep doing well. The wool is long and of fine staple, and for once it is clean—the fleece wool is better in quality than ever before.

Prospects at Wamic.

W. H. Farlow of Wamic called this morning. From him it is learned that the fruit crop will be excellent, with the exception of cherries and peaches. Other crops bid fair to be the largest ever harvested. Mr. Sanford of that locality will experiment this summer in raising wheat and feeding it to hogs.

Shade and ornamental trees, flowering shrubs and vines, hedge plants, etc., cheap at Mission Gardens.

A SAD ACCIDENT.

Martin S. Schroeder Killed While Returning from the Picnic.

After the pleasures of the picnic at Cascade Locks yesterday, a gloom was cast over the whole party on the return trip by the accidental death of Martin Schroeder. The Regulator had proceeded about five miles on its homeward journey, when the cry was raised "man overboard," and the wheels were at once stopped. In the rear of the boat was seen the body of the boy still floating, and in fact had not sunk at all. There was no struggle and it was evident the boy was stunned. The boat was reversed, and in a very short time was alongside the body, when it was recovered with a boat hook and brought to the deck. Efforts were made to resuscitate the boy, but without avail. The testimony at the coroner's inquest developed the fact that the boy had been jumping in the stairway, and had in some way lost his footing and struck his head in such a way as to produce unconsciousness, falling to the foot of the stairs and thence off the side of the boat. No one is to blame for the casualty, and it proved to be one of those unavoidable calamities which cannot be foreseen or averted.

When Schroeder first fell overboard William Scott, a deck hand, without a moment's pause, jumped overboard and tried to reach the boy, and would have done so had not the greater speed of the boat anticipated him. He was drawn in thoroughly chilled by the ice-cold water, and for a time was so weak and benumbed as to require attention himself. He performed a hero's part, however, in risking his life to save a passenger. The D. P. & A. N. Co. showed their appreciation of the brave man's services by tendering him a $50 cash reward.

The boy did not come to his death by drowning, but by some violent knock, of which two bruises on the head give evidence, the one on the temple being said by the doctors as sufficient to cause unconsciousness.

Martin S. Schroeder is 11 years old, and is the son of Mrs. M. Schroeder, now Mrs. Wedekind. Schroeder was killed some years ago in a wreck at the Cascades. Another child of Mrs. Wedekind (Schroeder) is still living.

The following is the verdict of the coroner's jury:

CORONER'S VERDICT.

We, the jury impaneled to inquire into the cause of the death of Martin Schroeder, who came to his death by drowning in the Columbia river April 26th, 1893, hereby find that the said deceased came to his death by an unavoidable accident, by falling overboard the steamer Regulator, and we further find that the officers and management of the D. P. & A. N. Co. used every effort to rescue the deceased and hereby exonerate said company, both officers and management, from any blame or carelessness connected with the death of deceased.

Signed, E. JACOBSON, S. G. CAMPBELL, H. STONEMAN, E. N. CHANDLER, J. H. BLAKENEY, R. E. SALTMAHRE.

The funeral of Martin Schroeder will take place tomorrow at 2 o'clock from the house.

WANTED.

A girl 12 or 15 years old to watch and look after a runaway kid. Liberal pay. Apply to E. B. DUNCAN.

WANAMAKER'S VISIT.

He Visits Some of Our Stores in Search of Beliefs.

Ex-Postmaster General Wanamaker, accompanied by Mrs. Wanamaker, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. B. Wanamaker, Mrs. Col. Wilson, Miss Mary Wanamaker, Mrs. Eliza Wanamaker, Levi Hamam, Geo. Walder, Rev. Dr. Miller, and Mr. McDonnell, arrived today in the special car Annapolis of the Baltimore and Ohio line, en route to the World's Fair from a Pacific coast trip.

As soon as the train stopped Gen. Wanamaker, attired in a crush hat of wool (which it is thought he could hardly afford, though there is a high duty on wool), a suit of clothes of a dark color, and a heavy sack overcoat (probably Wanamaker & Brown's winter style) stepped off his car and proceeded to "do" the town. He said "hello" to every body he met and seemed especially gracious and jovial to the many who were participants in this one-sided acquaintance.

Arrived at Pease & Mays store he interested himself in the Indian baskets which he thought were made by swashes, and was about to make a large purchase, when Mr. Pease, despite all his good commercial training, spoiled the sale by telling him they were made by the St. Regis Indians in New York state. Not yet discouraged, the postmaster-general next went to Sam Kline's and invested $2 in arrow heads, which he may be assured are genuine, though his experience at the dry goods store may have somewhat dampened his ardor for a large purchase. The train was delayed a few minutes by the transaction, but the obliging conductor, with that good breeding characteristic of all Americans, never showed any perturbation or annoyance.

The Geary Act.

Russ T. Chamberlin, U. S. internal revenue collector, arrived today, and will give the Chinese an opportunity to register if they wish. No photographs are to be taken and there is nothing humiliating about the experience, but it is doubtful if they will do so. They merely have to swear that they have been in the country since the 5th of May last. They are then furnished with a certificate allowing them residence. After the 5th of May, next, according to the Geary law, if they cannot produce this certificate they are to forfeit their residence and must go beyond our borders. Mr. Chamberlin says that the Chinese of the larger towns have not registered, acting under the advice of the Six Companies, but he has secured some of the smaller towns unanimously, such as Heppner, Hillsboro and Arlington. Mr. Chamberlin must report in Portland Monday.

A Break Made.

The first blow was struck yesterday in a general war among the railroads on western passenger rates. It is expected it will be a hot one, as the belligerent forces are in hot blood. The war is expected to extend through to the Pacific, and in that event the world's fair will be in it, or on top.
