SKIES ARE CLOUDY

But a Great Number of People Were in Chicago Today.

CLEVELAND AND DAVIS SPEAK

After Which the President Touched the Button and the 400th Anniversary Was in Motion.

CHICAGO, May 1.—[Special to THE CHRONICLE.]—Sudden skies ushered in the day memorable in Chicago's history. Bleak and chilling mist filled the atmosphere, and a general tone of gloom pervades.

These things counted for nothing, though, with people who were early astir. The cars and steamers were thronged. Private conveyances filled the streets and the whole city moved towards the world's fair grounds.

At 9 o'clock a line of carriages containing President Cleveland, the Duke de Veragua, world's fair officials and other notables formed in line and proceeded to the administration building, where a vast multitude had already assembled.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the opening ceremonies began. After the preliminary exercises Director General Davis made the opening address. He then presented President Cleveland, who made a brief address, at the conclusion of which he touched the button of the golden key, which set the machinery in motion, and the four hundredth anniversary of Columbus' great achievement was in full motion.

Nearly every building constructed by the exposition proper in the great White City is practically completed, and while confusion still reigns in most of the structures, it is in the matter of the installation of the exhibits, and not a delay which can be attributed to any failure of the construction department. The mines and mining buildings is simply a wilderness of boxes, unfinished booths and unpacked exhibits. It will be a month before the building is in proper order. Throughout the entire building there is but one exhibit in readiness, and that is from the farthest end of the earth, New South Wales.

In the art gallery some of the exhibits are in excellent shape, notably those of Great Britain and Germany. One trouble with the gallery of fine arts is that the building itself is not as yet finished. Some of the men in charge of the exhibits say they will not unpack their stuff until the roof has been entirely finished.

Could Ajax but step within the portals of the magnificent temple of electricity, he would scarcely have the audacity to defy modern lightning, bridled as it is by the scenes. The electrical display has far surpassed anything the management of the great fair ever hoped to secure.

It will be of interest to Americans to know that the Infante Eulalia who is to represent Spain at the World's Fair was educated by an American woman. She is the youngest sister of the late King Don Alfonso XII., and consequently aunt of the present King of Spain.

She was born in the Royal Palace of Oriente at Madrid, in 1864, and in 1896 was married to her first cousin, the Infante Don Antonio. She is very handsome and cultivated. She can speak English, French, German, Portuguese and Italian as fluently as her own language. A great part of her immense income is devoted to charitable institutions, as well as to the protection of arts and development of industries in her country.

President Cleveland and the duke of Veragua arrived Saturday. The president sought all the seclusion possible, and departed somewhat from the programme by taking a hurried visit, in company with his cabinet, to the world's fair grounds. The duke placed himself entirely at the disposal of his hosts and was the recipient of great attention all day, responding invariably with courtesy and grace.

Soon after his arrival at the hotel Mr. Cleveland received a delegation of young girls, representing the Badge-Makers' Union, who were anxious to present to the chief magistrate a badge made by their artistic fingers. The emblem was duly presented and graciously accepted, and the young women retired. Immediately after lunch the president and his cabinet, accompanied by President Higginbotham and other world's fair officials took carriages and drove to the white city for the purpose of having a private view of the grounds and buildings. This evening President Cleveland, Secretaries Carlisle, Herbert and Morton, attended the theater as guests of Mr. Higginbotham, viewing "America," an historical allegory depicting the principal events of American history.

A delegation of city officials, headed by Mayor Harrison, welcomed the duke in the name of Chicago in the large reception-room of the Lexington hotel, which was appropriately decorated in honor of the occasion. As the duke entered one end of the long room the mayor and party entered the other. The mayor advanced, and in a brief speech presented a costly casket to the duke, containing the address of welcome, handsomely engrossed and illuminated on parchment, and a set of silver keys. The mayor also presented the duke, on behalf of the city council, with a beautiful golden key, on which was inscribed "Don Cristovar Colon," stating, as he did so, that it was a key to the city. The duke in accepting these testimonials, bowed and in a low tone responded in English as follows:

"When I received the invitation to attend the opening of the world's Columbian exposition I did not realize how many surprises were awaiting me in this country. In landing on the continent discovered by my illustrious ancestor my heart was full of emotion, and I feared that my personal conditions were not so great as such a memory required, but now in the midst of you I feel that such great proofs of sympathy give me strength to respond to the great honor Chicago confers upon me—the freedom of a city that in 20 years has grown greater than the greatest city in the world, and which on this occasion commemorates the wonderful discovery and honors my ancestry and myself. I beg you to express my gratefulness to Chicago, and with all my heart I express my thanks for such a cordial welcome."

Beneath leaden skies, Pennsylvania's choicest relic, her old liberty bell, was deposited within the walls of her state building at Jackson park. During its progress to the bark it was the recipient of a continued ovation. It was escorted by the highest officials of Philadelphia and Chicago, surrounded by marching troops, regular and citizen soldiery, and saluted by the president of the nation whose birth it announced to the world. President Cleveland lifted his hat while the float passed by.

That the world's fair is an epitome of the progress of civilization was emphasized when Mrs. Potter Palmer, president of the board of lady managers, stepped out from among the throng of well-dressed women gathered in the assembly-room of the woman's building, and bravely drove the last nail into that historic structure, the first of the kind ever built in connection with any international exposition. The gold nail driven by Mrs. Palmer was made by J. H. Laysch, of Butte, Mont., and required several weeks of constant work to make it. It is composed of gold, silver, copper and a Montana sapphire set in the under portion of the shield, which is attached to the nail near the head. The nail itself is of pure copper, silver and unalloyed gold, and rests in a slide back of the coat-of-arms and the shield of Montana, which is in the form of a brooch. The shield is a perfect model of the Montana seal. The mountains represented are of copper, and in the foreground is a waterfall and a stream of silver. The sunset in the crest of the mountains and the sky which forms the background are of pure gold, as is also the ground in the extreme background.

EIGHT HUNDRED KILLED.

The Bloodiest Battle Yet Fought in the Brazilian Revolution.

VALPARAISO, April 30.—News of the bloodiest battle which has been fought since the revolution began in Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, has just reached here via Buenos Ayres. A correspondent in that city telegraphs that the engagement occurred near San Luis. General Telles led the government forces and General Tavarez commanded the revolutionary army. The details of the battle have not as yet been obtained, but it is reported 800 men were killed. These are divided nearly equally between the two armies. Victory is claimed for each side, and the actual result of the fight may not be known for several days.

Bellinger Duns the Ermine.

PORTLAND, May 1.—[Special.]—Hon. C. B. Bellinger today filed his commission, together with his oath of office, with clerk of the court, Roswell B. Lamson, and until his death he will be a judge of the United States court. It was formerly the custom when a judge of the United States court took the oath of office to mark the occasion with an elaborate show of ceremony. Such was the case when Judge Gilbert took his seat on the United States circuit bench. At that time Judge Matthew P. Deady, now deceased, delivered a brief, but impressive address of welcome to the new judicial acquisition. On this occasion, however, no such programme was followed, owing to the absence of Judge Gilbert, who is now in San Francisco, sitting in the court of appeals.

BOSTON, April 30.—A relay bicycle race from Boston to Chicago began today at 5 p. m. The riders bear a pouch with a message from Governor Russell to Governor Altgeld, of Illinois.

All Hope Abandoned.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Edwin Booth, late tonight, has taken a sudden and decided change for the worse, and his death is now only a question of a few hours. At 1 a. m. Dr. Sinclair Smith abandoned all hope of Booth's recovery.

ELECTRIC FLASHES.

The Chinese throughout Rhode Island have generally complied with the provisions of the Geary act.

From today round-trip excursion tickets to St. Paul, St. Louis, Chicago and other points will be sold by the Northern Pacific railroad at reduced rates, good for return via other lines in the association.

The decree of President Diaz took effect today governing the collection of duties at custom-houses, the object being to do away with the fines and penalties exacted for mistakes in the consular invoices of goods shipped in Mexico.
