THE CLANS GATHERING

Meeting of the Republican National League.

PRESIDENT CLARKSON'S ADDRESS

He Welcomes the Delegates in the Name of Lincoln, Grant and Blaine.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 10.—All morning delegations of republicans from distant states have been coming in. The galleries of McCauley's theater were crowded long before the National League assembled, the audience including many of Louisville's famous beauties. The theater was tastefully decorated with flags and banners, and the front of the stage banked with flowers and tropical plants. When all the delegates were seated, the convention was called to order by President J. S. Clarkson.

Mrs. Ellen J. Foster was present and was greeted with a storm of applause. Mr. Clarkson arose and delivered the annual address. He said: "We meet here today in the name of the republicanism of Lincoln, Grant and Blaine. This is republicanism, whose eternal word is human liberty. It is fighting republicanism, and all the world loves a man or a party that believes enough in its own cause to fight for it."

The speaker then dwelt at some length on the transition which had been going on for 10 years toward younger men and different methods in party management, resulting in league organization and more diffused work. He hoped that with the coming of younger men there would be a party of greater courage in cardinal and larger tolerance in minor things. A majority of the voters of the United States, he said, were republican on real republican issues. Too many voters had been alienated by the intolerance of morality. He asked that the platform be made so broad that any man, native or foreign born, of any church, might find a welcome in the ranks.

MARKET REPORT.

THURSDAY, May 11, 1893.—The activity in the markets is marked with an improvement worthy of notice. The volume of trade has been more satisfactory of late. Large orders have been received from the interior and were filled promptly and shipped. Prices remain steady and all lines are in good supply. An exception is made in sugar which has advanced another 1/2 of a cent during the past few days. The opinion prevails that best grades will advance to 7 cents per pound in the very near future. Coffee is reported to be firm on the outlook, with an opinion of an advance soon.

The provision market is well supplied, and prices for eggs are unchanged, with a good supply on hand. Butter is in better supply and prices are lower. Potatoes are still scarce and have a very firm tendency.

Poultry are offered more freely, but quotations have not changed. Oats are very scarce and may be quoted at $1.60 to $1.75 per cental. Barley is more scarce, and good clean barley is quoted at $1.10 per pound.

The wheat market is quiet, although there is some movement. Prices have varied from 53 1/2 to 58 cents during the week. The Eastern and foreign markets are not active enough to give any interest or stimulating influence in the markets. Portland quotes valley at $1.17 to $1.22 1/2, and Walls Walls at $1.10 to $1.12 1/2, with a light movement.

The wool market has not opened here yet, though some buyers speak of 10 to 13 1/2 as the probable price for an opening.

We give the following clipping from the Boston Advertiser of the 28th ult. which is a local statement of the wool statement of the situation at present.

THE WOOL MARKET.

The total receipts of wool at this port during the past week comprise 7,696 bags and bales domestic and 1,301 bales foreign, against 6,485 bags and bales domestic, 7,635 bales foreign for the same time last year. The total receipts since Jan. 1, 1893, comprise 131,849 bags and bales domestic and 84,781 bales foreign, against 113,457 bags and bales domestic and 81,475 bales of foreign for the same time in 1892.

The sales for the week comprise 2,050,000 lbs. of domestic fleeces and pulled and 704,000 lbs. foreign, making the week's transactions foot up 2,754,000 lbs. against 2,129,500 lbs. for the previous week, and 1,461,000 lbs. domestic, and 784,000 lbs. foreign for the corresponding week last year.

There is a dull tone to the market, and while the sales reported are greater than a week ago, it does not follow that the present demand has improved, as some of the larger sales recorded, are the result of former transactions. The present situation is very flat taken as a whole, and holders of domestic wool are anxious to sell where they can get any fair bids. Reports from the new clip are coming in freely, but buyers at this end can give the grower little encouragement. Eastern buyers who are generally doing a large business in the country at this season of the year, are now at a complete standstill. They are not inclined to pay within several cents per pound of what their wool cost last year, and as a result, are not doing much, as they fear to name a price, they will give in most cases, but prefer to wait.

The outlook at present is not encouraging in any direction. Latest reports from Washington say that the president has announced his determination to call a special session of congress Sept. 1st or earlier, and at that session the tariff will be revised. This announcement will settle the rumor that no tariff revision would be attempted until the regular session of congress, and will make a decided difference in the plans of wool buyers. The mills are busy at present on old orders, but they have covered a good share of their business through purchases of wool already made. Their principal wants hereafter will be to purchase wool against new orders taken, and it is safe to predict that under present conditions no one will care to buy a pound more wool than is absolutely needed to be used at once. A revision of the tariff means lower prices for wool, and in addition to this a very dull trade until the market becomes settled to the new order of events.

Lower duties on goods or not, will not allow clothiers to hold entirely out of the market until the revision on the tariff goes into effect, however, as they have got to have some goods on hand all of the time. They realize this and have placed very free orders for all goods, but the tendency will be to purchase no more than they are absolutely obliged to have. Whatever the after effect on the market will be when the trade gets settled down to the new order of things, there is no disguising the fact that while the change is being brought about, business will be seriously impaired, and this is what wool dealers are obliged to bear strongly in mind, when they are making their fall purchases in the country. With clothiers not ordering goods, and manufacturers only making up what are already ordered while preparing for the change, the outlook is for a small consumption of the raw material, and under these conditions it is more than probable that values will have to rule very low to tempt operations. When the tariff has been revised so that the trade know what to base operations on, the market will settle itself to its place in the world's business, but in the meantime the prospects are far from encouraging.

General stocks of wool here are small, but at the same time prices are softer all around and dealers are more anxious for business, even at lower quotations.
