The world's fair was closed again yesterday. The management is being pulled and hauled one way and the other by the different powers like a rag at the sport of a pair of mischievous puppies.

The Six Companies will withdraw all Chinese they can get from the vineyards and factories of California and assemble them for a time across the border in Mexico or British America.

The readjustment of the pension system has begun, and it is calculated that under the new administration a check is going to be given to the rapid growth of the pension list, even without the assistance of any new legislation.

The instance of that handsome young woman who fell in love with Carlyle W. Harris after he was condemned to death, broke her engagement with a worthy young man and plighted her troth to Harris, is only one of myriads of instances which tend to prove that women hold out poor inducements for virtue in men.

Mrs. Lease says that science will learn to concentrate the life force found in corn, wheat and fruit so that a small vial of the extract will furnish a man subsistence for many days.

The Infanta Eulalia may have thought that in this democratic country her royalty would pass unobserved, but the way she has been flattered and feted and lauded must prove eminently satisfying, even to her royal demands.

It is said that Secretary Carlisle is determined to remove every republican holding office under the department in the state of Washington.

The Sound Views of an Intelligent Educator on the English Language. The following extract from Prof. E. G. Robinson's article in the Homiletic Review presents in compact form a truth that is becoming more and more evident each day, and one that applies not alone to the education of ministers: "The most manifest defect in our system of education is its insufficient attention to the English language, not merely to the science and genius of it as embodying one of the richest literatures and as being the most widely spoken tongue in the world, but to such study of it and practice of it as will give to the student a correct and facile and forcible use of it in the expression of his thoughts. It is hardly possible to overestimate the value of a mastery of English in any calling that requires the use of it in influencing the thoughts of others, but in preparing for the Christian ministry or almost anything else whose chief function consists in endeavoring to move others to right action by public address, the attainment of this mastery should yield precedence to the attainment of no other. And yet, strangely enough, candidates for the ministry and law and journalism and authorship are taken in hand and for ten years are scientifically drilled in a variety of subjects, some of which they never so much as once again recur to when done with them as students, selling the text-books they have been compelled to use; while of English, on their use of which their final failure or success will so largely depend, they are mainly left to acquire their knowledge in any haphazard way they can, receiving at most, at the very time when most needing it, only such instructions as may be gathered from brief study of some college text-book in rhetoric and from writing a few compositions, on which the professor in rhetoric scratches in red ink scant words of general criticism; and so they stumble on in their course, reaching the theological seminary or law school only when it is too late for the professor (of homiletics) to do for them what ought to have been done for them all the way along from the start, and what no amount of instruction or personal effort can then do for them. In no single respect are established methods of education so glaringly and so radically defective as in rhetorical discipline. For no one department of instruction do colleges—not one, but all of them—make so inadequate provision in the number of teachers; in none are the results of the instruction, on the whole, so unsatisfactory. In no graduates are these results more painfully apparent than in the occupants of our pulpits," and law chairs, and legislators and writers in all departments.

Used up. It's the only way to use some things, but it's a bad condition for a man or woman. It means disease. Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That means health. It invigorates the liver and kidneys, purifies the blood and cleanses and renews the whole system. For all scrofulous humors and blood-taints, and even consumption (or lung-scurfula), if taken in time, it's a guaranteed remedy. It's a guaranteed one. In all diseases of the liver, blood and lungs, it's warranted to benefit or cure, or the money is refunded. No other medicine of its class is sold, through druggists, on this peculiar plan. You can judge why. You only pay for the good you get.
