SOPHISTRIES OF SPECULATORS.

Wool speculators are making all the capital possible over the scare on the tariff. Why? So they can clean up thousands of dollars of profit, when the scare subsides. If they are not here to buy wool what are they here for? They are well prepared with sophistries to show that wool is going down, derry down, and will continue to go down, until, in competition with Australia they will sink to nearly nothing. There are too many wool-growers in the United States to allow anything disastrous to happen, and they will send up such a howl as will shake the foundations of Washington before they are deliberately impoverished at one fell stroke at the hands of the administration. While wool growers are now depressed over the present low price of the product all kinds of efforts will be made on the part of speculators to enhance this depression, and the more they can depress the greater will be their profits.

The Dalles has always been a field of the keenest competition and, in truth, there has been up to this time but little in it for the speculator, and this scare is but a new method to extract profit. While the market is less in Boston today for Australian wool than it is in London, there is little fear that this wool will crowd us, even under the conditions of a free market. But even these conditions cannot be realized until a year after the new law will go into effect, which can hardly be formulated within a year. Meanwhile wool must be bought, manufactured and used, and whatever the future value will be, just now this must be considered as fictitious. Beware of selling on a falling market. America and American manufacturers will not suffer the ruin of such an industry, whatever party is in power.

INCREASE OF SPARROWS.

Considerable attention has been given to the English sparrow question during the year by the U. S. department of agriculture, division of ornithology, and it is evident that this bird will continue to be a pest in most sections of the country unless its increase is checked by intelligent action in the different states. Several states have legislated against it ineffectually, their failure being due largely to ignorance of the true habits of the bird and a lack of appreciation of the magnitude and gravity of the evil. Michigan and Ohio have wasted many thousands of dollars in bounties nominally for heads of English sparrows, but actually in large part for the heads of harmless and beneficial birds. Illinois recently enacted a sparrow law giving bounties for heads during the winter months, but this also can result at best in only a slight diminution of the number of sparrows and at a disproportionate expense. The sparrow sooner or later will force itself on the attention of every agricultural state in the union, and it would be the part of wisdom for sections not yet badly afflicted by the scourge to take immediate steps to secure continued immunity. Bounty laws are worse than useless; the best prospect of relief appears to be through the organization in each state of a sparrow board or commission, which shall employ trained assistants to destroy nests and young during warm weather and make use of poison in cold weather, and in such ways as not to endanger the lives of our valuable native birds.

Empire State Engine No. 999 lately placed itself in the category of "flyers" by developing unheard-of speed, but its pace is but a crawl when compared with the flight of a homing pigeon. Last Sunday a committee from the Buffalo Saengerbund went to Cleveland on the steamer State of Ohio to complete arrangements for its part in the July Saengerfest to be held in that city, and upon the arrival of its members there two carrier pigeons were liberated from the deck of the steamer. They took a "bee line" for Buffalo and arrived 70 minutes later, having traversed a distance of 183 miles, or at the rate of nearly 2 1/2 miles a minute.

The attorney-general of Kansas has decided that all building associations doing business in the state must comply with the state banking law, and place themselves under the supervision of the state bank commissioner. This is a very wise and just decision and should find expression in our own state.

A FIGHT WITH WILD DUCKS.

Sailors Have a Desperate Battle with Birds Blown Out to Sea.

Capt. William T. Bernard and the steam tug Plymouth arrived from Boston at Philadelphia a few days ago with three barges in tow, after one of the roughest passages ever made and more than the elements to contend with during the trip, having been attacked in the Vineyard sound, during the terrific hurricane of February 19, by a tremendous flock of wild ducks that had been carried from the land by the wind. They fought desperately against the side of the tug's house and powerful electric light on the mast-head, which was the object that first attracted them. Mate Willard went on deck and was knocked flat by one of the infuriated birds, which flew directly at him, striking him on the breast. To substantiate this strange story told to a Press reporter Capt. Bernard saved twelve of the birds that fell exhausted from their struggles on the decks and they are now at his home. The Plymouth, after passing Chatham just before sundown on February 19, experienced heavy rains. Soon the wind veered to the northwest and blew a hurricane accompanied by blinding snow squalls. At nine o'clock at night Capt. Bernard and Mate Willard were both in the pilot house, when a fluttering noise was heard to windward. With the aid of marine glasses they could discern a huge dark formation moving directly toward them, and soon a flock of fully three hundred ducks made for the vessel. They flew directly toward the electric masthead light and in striking the pole fell by the dozen to the deck. Some of the sailors were terrified at first by the fluttering noise, but on being convinced what it was went on deck and caught fully fifty of them and stowed them away in the fore peak. The birds were ravenously hungry, having been carried miles from the land in the teeth of the heavy gale. They could not fly back, such was the force of the wind, and those that failed to light on the Plymouth were carried off to sea and no doubt perished. For fully an hour the birds kept things in a state of excitement on board the tug, and Capt. Bernard confessed it was one of the most remarkable experiences he had ever seen or heard of in upward of a quarter of a century of sea life.

Portuguese Rebanadas.
"A dish as much eaten by the Portuguese as mince pie by Americans, is the rebanadas. It is of Moorish origin, and is easily and quickly prepared—as befitting the habits of a nomadic race. Thick slices of bread are soaked in new milk, fried in olive oil and then spread with honey and eaten hot. The result is something delicious, and those who have once tasted the rebanadas will want to taste it again."

The room's in disorder,
The cat's on the table,
The flower-stand upset, and the mischief to pay,
And Johnny is screaming
As loud as he's able,
For nothing goes right when mamma's away.

What a scene of discomfort and confusion home would be if mamma did not return. If your wife is slowly breaking down, from a combination of domestic cares and female disorders, make it your first business to restore her health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is without a peer as a remedy for feeble and debilitated women, and is the only medicine for the class of maladies known as "female diseases" which is sold, by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers that it will give satisfaction, in every case, or the money will be refunded. It is a positive cure for the most complicated cases. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, and a soothing and strengthening nerve, imparting tone and vigor to the whole system. It's a legitimate medicine, too—carefully compounded by an experienced physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization.

WINANS

THE NEW TOWN has been platted on the old camp ground, at the Forks and Falls of Hood river, with large, slightly lots, broad streets and alleys, good soil and pure water, with shade in profusion, perfect drainage, delightful mountain climate, the central attraction as a mountain summer resort for all Oregon, being the nearest town to Mt. Hood. It is unparalleled as a manufacturing center, being the natural center for 150 square miles of the best cedar and fir timber, possessing millions of horse-power in its dashing streams and waterfalls, easily harnessed. Where cheap motive power exists, there the manufacturing will center, surrounded by soil and climate that cannot be excelled anywhere for fruit and agriculture, and with transportation already assured you will find this the place to make a perfect home or a paying investment.
