The British Counsel Did Not Approach

the Question in a Straightforward Way.

TO SAVE THE SEALS

Ex-Minister Phelps Speaks for the United States,

Hon. E. J. Phelps, of counsel for the United States, opened his argument in behalf of the contention of the United > States, and his address was a brillithatthe indiscriminate destruction of the seals, including herding grounds, and of the mothers seeking food at sea, is inhuman, barbarous and a violation of the laws of all civilized nations for the protection of wild animals in their breeding season. Such slaughter, he contended, must eventually result in extinguishing a valuable industry, esexterminate the species for the sake of a will continue. small temporary profit. They do not British counsel approached the question ing British vessels engaged in seal hunting. Mr. Phelps declared there was no such question before the tribunal.

LOOK OUT In his argument before the arbitrators in the Behring sea case Mr. Coudert, of counsel for the United States. Andrew Velarde Fresh Paint! gave an interesting account of the habits of the Alaskan seal, over the proprietorship of which the whole contest is being waged. The peculiar thing about these seals is that, although in their journey from the south to their stamping grounds in the Behring they pass islands innumerable, they invariably select two groups, and only two, as their summer home One of these is on the coast of Asia and is known as Commanderoff. The other is the Pribyloff islands, two in number-St. Paul and St. George-off the Alaskan shore. These islands are but specks in the surrounding waters. St. Paul contains but thirty-two square miles and St. George twenty-seven square miles. Why these two groups should be selected is what no naturallis has as yet been able satisfactorily to explain. Nevertheless the fact remains that it is to them and to them alone that the seals annually resort while in northern waters. About this season of the year the Pacific ocean north of the fortieth degree of north latitude is liberally sprinkled with seals on their way from southern waters to their northern summer resort. The males appear to be more rapid swimmers than the females. At all events they arrive at the islands a week or two ahead of 'the females. On reaching them they immediately proceed to select quarters on them for their summer abode, and these quarters are always at some point near the sea, from which it is easily accessible. When they arrive they are rolling in fat and weigh somewhere in the neighborhood of five hundred pounds each. About the beginning of June the fe-males begin to arrive and a few hours l'allor, MR. COUDERT, COUNSEL FOR U. S. BEHRING SEA COMMISSION. after reaching the shore they give birth to their young. The males then begin choosing their mates, the number of their wives being limited only by their capacity of offense and defense. Fierce conflicts frequently occur over these selections and the stronger always come out on the top. While on the islands the male seals cat next to nothing. They appear to live on the superfluous fat they have accumulated during the winter season, and when they start out again on their southern trip they are living skeletons. The southern trip is begun early in August and as a rule the islands are clear of seals by the end of that month. A few stragglers may remain till November, after which none are seen till the following May. The male seal is six years of age before he begins to mate and it is from the school of bachelors that the lessees of the islands select the one hundred thousand they are allowed to kill each season. These are taken from those between three and four years of age, the skins being most valuable at that time. Of course it is impossible to disoriminate as to are or sex when the seals are in the open sea, and there fore the necessity of preventing the Canadian poachers from carrying on their depredations. They kill all they meet without respect to age or sex.

To Relive the Tightness.

WASHINGTON, June 22 .- Secretary Carlisle has directed Treasurer Morgan to anticipate the payment of the July interest on 4 per cent United States bonds and on Pacific railroad bonds. Checks in payment of the interest will be placed in the mail Sunday afternoon, and all the subtreasuries in the United States will be instructed to cash them on pre-

AUGUSTA VICTORIA. The Accomplished Woman Who Sits Beside Kaiser William.

Augusta Victoria, the empress of Germany, is an attractive and winning wo> man, if not a very beautiful one. She was born October 22. 1858, at Schloss Dolzig. She is three months older than her husband, but with her fair complexion and inxuriant hair she looks, if anything, younger than he does. The home of the emperor and empress is very happy. The empress is a most devoted wife and mother. She often spends the morning helping the emperor with his business. for, with all her housewifely qualities, she posesses a clear brain and calm judgment, which are often of great azsistance to her bushand.

KANSAS' LABOR EXCHANGE.

It Is Doing a Banking Business in Violation of the Law.

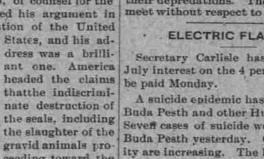

TOPEKA, Kan., June 22 .- The labor exchange recently established in this state by the populists, which issue scrip somein war times, is likely to be disciplined by Bank Commissioner Bredenthal, stitute for money to be a banking busichange is under the national law subject to a tax of 10 per cent. The directors of the exchange say that they have merely issued "a medium of exchange," and that neither the state nor the national government has any right to interfere with them. There has already been a considerable amount of of this wildcat money issued, secured by personal and real property. It is circulated largely in the neighborhood as a money medium, being accepted in all transactions between members.
