WORLD'S FAIR FINANCES

The floating debt of the world's Columbian exposition is $2,000,000. Its outstanding bonds amount to $4,500,000. Thus the total sum which it must pay to creditors is $6,500,000. The present daily running expenses are, in round numbers, $20,000. It is hoped by the management to lower them soon to about $15,000 daily. Even as they stand the receipts from the many concessionaires pay the running expenses in full. Therefore the entire receipts of the exposition from admission can be applied to the payment of the debts of the exposition company.

Counting Sundays, there are 117 days of the world's fair season remaining. Accordingly a paid attendance of 100,000 adults daily would wipe out the debts of the exposition company. If the attendance continues to improve from week to week as it has done in the past, and as in all probability it will do, the exposition will exceed the necessary average every week from the present time until the close. Last week the average attendance for the seven days was almost exactly 100,000, including children, the small variations from these figures being in the exposition's favor. The smallest attendance was on Sunday, when only 59,900 persons paid to see the fair, but on no other day did the attendance drop to within 25,000 of this low mark, and on Thursday it rose to 132,265. The Chicago Record believes the figures of attendance at the fair prove that if the gates were closed on Sunday the many thousands of people of the nation who will not come to the fair under present conditions would more than offset the loss of the small number of people who now pay their way into Jackson park on Sunday.

This computation has taken no note of the $1,000,000 which the directors have said they would return to the national government if they had it to give at the end of the exposition, for, in the pertinent words of the United States circuit court opinion, the only way to tender it is to tender. Probably this money would be returned by the directors for the salvage from the great structures at Jackson park, would add a large sum to the money left in the directors' hands from admissions and from the concessionaires after paying all debts. If this sum were repaid there would still, in all probability, remain a fragment of the enormous receipts to be divided among the stockholders of the enterprise, including the city of Chicago. So the money side of the fair is in a prosperous condition.

WEALTH WILL USE.

In all the accounts that have appeared of the late Leland Stanford and all the comments that have been made upon his life there has been one very applicable feature. There has not been the slightest complaint about the accumulation of a vast personal fortune. People back with great generosity upon the swaying of great fortunes, when they are denied in considerable part to make public use. The statement of a university is a philanthropic trust, one that can hardly be exercised and this man did not want his life's work to be devoted to a money to earn a money object.

Affairs in Hawaii seem to be in rather a chaotic state, and threats of wholesale murder are as plentiful as hard times. It is only fair to the provisional government to say that the officials in power have not been consulted in the making of these wild plans, and that they are generally conservative, level-headed men who would not countenance such doings as are spoken of. If the attitude of the United States towards Hawaii were once shown it would dispel this warlike disposition on the part of both royalists and annexationists. It is the uncertainty which broods all the trouble. A sanguinary fight on Hawaiian territory would hasten the unfolding of these plans, which otherwise will not become known until after the meeting of the September congress.

Many of the banks which have failed are opening up again, with exchequers sufficiently reinforced to meet all demands. The gradual resuming of business by these institutions will do much to restore a feeling of security again. It is thought on all hands that the worst is over, and that at least 50 per cent of the banks will in time pay all demands made.

Advancement in Meteorology.

The advancement made in the knowledge of the laws of meteorology has kept pace with discoveries made in all other lines of scientific research. The following illustrates the exactness with which the weather predictions are now made. On the day before that previous set for the pioneers' picnic the committee in charge telegraphed to Mr. Dagne, the local forecast official for the north Pacific coast, for a special forecast for this vicinity, and received in reply the prediction that the day would be stormy and unfit for outdoor enjoyment. On the strength of this the picnic was postponed, and the following day fully justified the prediction. On Thursday last another request was made Mr. Dagne for a peep into the future, and the reply received, although not promising good weather until the afternoon, was sufficiently favorable to decide the committee to go ahead with the arrangements made. The prediction was also fulfilled to the letter. It is not just to Mr. Dagne to state that under his administration a marked improvement has been observed in the reliability and usefulness of the weather forecasts.

make a long tail (tale) short. A man, after he has eaten a good dinner, may feel extravagantly joyous; but the next day—oh! but he is surly and grim, his stomach and liver are sluggish, he is morose, despondent and "out of sorts" generally. But he may get a prompt return for his money by purchasing Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

There's nothing like them. They are tiny Liver Pills, sugar-coated, but thorough in results. One Pellet is laxative, three to four cathartic.

They're the cheapest Pill, because safe and sure, while the manufacturer guarantees they'll give satisfaction, or your money is returned! You only pay for the good you get. Can you ask more?
