MONDAY, JULY 10, 1893

Friday's murder was one of the most deplorable events that ever happened in this section. The evidence before the coroner's jury showed that the young man's action was in self defense, yet the human mind in considering the fact of a father's death at the hands of his own son, is prone to cast about for some other way out of it than killing him with a stick of wood. The old man was in one of those periodical surly moods which were shown to be constitutional with him and antagonism intensified it to the extent of securing a deadly weapon and aiming at his son. The law would declare the young man guiltless of murder, and no jury in the country would convict him. The tragedy, however, is as sensational as the Lizzie Borden case, and has a sentimental side to it that will occur to everyone. The old man loved his son who slew him, while at the same time being in a temporary frenzy of wrath over the presence on the place of the son's girl sister-in-law. The son decided in his own mind the question as to whether he would have shot or not.

E. W. Wilhelm was an old man who had devoted his best efforts to acquire a fortune, and was successful. He had lived economically, was thrifty and reared a family of sons. At that period of his life when he should have settled down to the enjoyment of his life's labors, and lived happily among his family and friends he was killed, though in self-defense, by a man who had doubtless been the subject of many hours of anxious thought to him when in the vigor of early manhood. He loved his son. Only a parent knows what that means. The many plans made for that son's future, the thousand acts and thoughts to give him pleasure, and to direct and lead him aright, are all a function of paternity. In a sudden domestic storm, when passion holds sway and reason deserts her throne, the sudden ending came. The aims of a lifetime are destroyed in a moment. The lesson should be to all who observe this sad tragedy to subject the passions at all times and live within the laws of the land and of God, either of which were adequate in this case to have prevented the deplorable tragedy.

Everybody seems to desire the repeal of the Sherman law at all hazards, and a great share are anxious to make the terms unconditional. That it has been the primary cause of the present monetary troubles is no longer a matter of doubt, and Mr. Sherman himself is in favor of its repeal. Free coinage of silver is not desired except by the few producers it would benefit, and most of the agitation on this score comes from such men as Senator Stewart and people's party advocates. There is also a strong sentiment to put a dollar's worth of silver in a silver dollar, so that each coin will stand on its own bottom and not need the guarantee of the government back of it. Of course, under the present conditions silver will fluctuate and the present basis of about 25 to 1 may not represent its relative worth for the future. At the present ratio of value there is about 64 cents worth of silver in the dollar, which, though worth 100 cents in the United States, is not equally stable in the markets of the world. There is urgent need of an international agreement between silver and gold, then each metal will have a fixed value which is not subject to caprice. The United States alone cannot accomplish this end, and while it would be the part of honesty to increase the amount of silver in the dollar to its actual worth, there is no surety of it maintaining that worth. In 1792 the ratio was 1 to 15; in 1795 1 to 15½; in 1799 1 to 15¾; in 1834, the coinage law was amended to 1 to 16. Since 1873 with the discovery of the bonanza silver mines in the west, silver has steadily declined from $1.36 per ounce until now it is worth about 64 cents, or about 1 to 25. On the other hand the fallacy of the free coinage men is in their insisting on having 64 cents worth of silver made into a dollar, and in supposing that it will circulate as the equivalent of the gold dollar. It will not, for our gold would then all be driven abroad and the standard of values would fall to the 64-cent dollar.

A Singular Accident.

Last Saturday afternoon after it had begun raining, Mr. Ben Eben, accompanied by Mr. Watson, in returning home from Chenoweth creek on horseback, reached the Mill creek bridge and while crossing, Mr. Eben's horse shied and sprang forward, and in doing so slipped and fell in such a manner as to throw his rider partly under him, nearly breaking Mr. Eben's leg. But the strangest thing was, in the fall of Eben's horse, it tripped Mr. Watson's horse, landing it broad side on the bridge and caught Mr. Watson's foot so as to injure it severely. Both of the young men were quite badly bruised by the accident. It is almost a miracle that it was not more serious. They are to be congratulated over their lucky escape.

There are some patent medicines that are more marvelous than a dozen doctor's prescriptions, but they're not those that profess to cure everything.

Everybody, now and then, feels "run down," "played out." They've the will, but no power to generate vitality. They're not sick enough to call a doctor, but just too sick to be well. That's where the right kind of a patent medicine comes in, and does for a dollar what the doctor wouldn't do for less than five or ten. We put in our claim for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

We claim it to be an unequalled remedy to purify the blood and invigorate the liver. We claim it to be lasting in its effects, creating an appetite, purifying the blood, and preventing bilious, typhoid and malarial fevers if taken in time. The time to take it is when you first feel the signs of weariness and weakness. The time to take it, on general principles, is now.

"It makes me tired!"

People ask me—is marriage a failure? Of course 'tain't; s'pose I don't know my biz—what am I here for? If the women only keep healthy they keep in good spirits and cupid is in demand. Let every enfeebled woman know this—there's a remedy that'll cure her, the proof's positive.

Here's the proof—if it doesn't do you good within reasonable time, report the fact to its makers and get your money back without a word—but you won't do it!

The remedy is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—and it has proved itself the right remedy in nearly every case of female weakness. It is not a miracle. It won't cure everything—but it has done more to build up enfeebled and broken-down women than any other medicine known.

S. B. MED. MFG. CO., Dufur, Oregon.

Gentlemen: On arriving home last week, I found all well and anxiously awaiting. Our little girl, eight and one-half years old, who had wasted away to 38 pounds, is now well, strong and vigorous, and well fleshed up. S. B. Cough Cure has done its work well. Both of the children like it. Your S. B. Cough Cure has cured and kept away all hoarseness from me. So give it to every one, with greetings for all. Wishing you prosperity, we are Yours, MR. & MRS. J. F. FORD.

WINANS

THE NEW TOWN has been platted on the old camp ground, at the Forks and Falls of Hood river, with large, slightly lots, broad streets and alleys, good soil and pure water, with shade in profusion, perfect drainage, delightful mountain climate, the central attraction as a mountain summer resort for all Oregon, being the nearest town to Mt. Hood. It is unparalleled as a manufacturing center, being the natural center for 100 square miles of the best cedar and fir timber, possessing millions of horse power in its rushing streams and water falls, easily harnessed. Where cheap motive power exists, there the manufacturing facilities will center, surrounded by soil and climate that cannot be excelled anywhere for fruit and agriculture, and with transportation already assured you will find this the place to make a perfect home or a paying investment.

See me on the ground, or address me at Hood River, Wasco County, Oregon.
