Firemen.

Twenty Thousand People Witness the Terrible Calamity, but Were Powerless to Aid Them.

Chicago, July 10 .- Additional details about the terrible holocaust in the cold storage warehouse, just south of the Sixty-fourth street gate of the world's fair, are as follows:

The fire started at the top of the the ground. Through this cupola the chimney passed. The cupola was made of wood, surmounted with a staff, and was highly ornamented with pillars and columns. Near the top is a landing. The fire broke out 30 feet above this. As soon as the fireman arrived, 35 or 40 of them climbed up the ladders to the landing and were preparing to throw streams of water on the burning portion, when the fire which had eaten its way inside to a point below where the tiremen stood, broke out with volcanic ferocity on all sides. An exclamation of horror broke from the lips of 20,000 people gathered about the building to see the fire. Five men saved themselves by sliding down the ropes. Before the others could follow the fire burned away the ropes. Those who remained were huddled together on the north side of the cupalo. It was beyond the reach of any ladders, and the crowd stood horrorstricken, helpless to aid. The flames leaped higher and higher until the men were almost concealed from view. At feet below. Another and another, crazed by the awful heat, followed his example and gave way and the ramaining firemen were swallowed up in the mass of burning timbers. Meantime every effort was being made to extinguish the fire, most of which was above the reach of streams. The entire building will be destroyed. It cost $250,000, and was stored with wines, meats and fruits. The loss will be $500,000. It was built by the Hercules Iron Works, manufacturers of refrigerating machinery.

It is supposed the framework around the mouth of the chimney caught fire from a defect in the flue. At first itappeared an insignificant affair : but, knowing the inflammable nature of the structure, Fire Marshal Murphy called all the companies out. With about 40 of his men, Captain Fitzpatrick climbed the ladders inside the tower to the balcony, and from there ropes were lowered to haul up the hose. One had been pulled pour in. up, when the wind caused the flames to break out in an alarming manner about 10 feet from the top of the cupalo. In the meantime the tire had eaten away of Mexico, was crossing a range of moundown inside the structure, and, all unconscious, the firemen were standing on and was precipitated into a deep chasm. the shell of a burning volcano. The fire He could not climb out and remained on had been burning scarcely 20 minutes when suddenly the flames burst out around the base of the balcony in perfect fury. So terrible was the spectacle that for a moment the crowds stood body was brought to the surface by transfixed with horror, all alike powerless to aid the unfortunate men imprisoned on the balcony, 150 feet from the ground. All the ropes hanging Ounce of Prevention vs. Pound of from the tower were burned away. They were hopelessly beyond human help, the longest ladder falling short by fully 30 feet. At this terrible moment Captain Fitzpatrick's tall form appeared in front of the men who were huddled together on the nar-This old, popular and reliable house row balcony. He seemed to be addressing his brave followers. As he ceased The speaking one of the men crept around the burning balcony and returned a moment later with a rope. It was hastily fastened to the railing around the balcony and thrown to the roof. Fitzpatrick was seen to point to it and a man started to slide down, but before be was half way down the cruel flames rolled up and he was swallowed in the awful volcano. Another tried it and met to within 20 feet of it. |Fire Marshal started back with his friend, but was en-

It was the exhibit of the Hercules Iron Works, manufacturers of ice and refrigerating machines. The building contained a skating rink, three 120-ton ice machines, some 40 barrels of linseed oil, which added fuel to the flame, and in it there was stored large quantities of meat, fruit, etc. That the fire was not communicated to other world's fair buildings was due to favorable winds. The scene of the horror was witnessed by and was dashed to pieces on the roof 60 many thousands of people who flocked to the locality when the alarm was sounded, and strong men wept and women fainted as one life after another was snuffed out within full view of the come when he heard of the calamity, but finally said: "Well, this has settled one thing, the city of Chicago is going to assume control over the fair buildings so far as protecting life is concerned, and at once. Tomorrow morning I will see that all the buildings are carefully inspected and whatever changes necessary for the safety of the people are found advisable they must be made. These things must takes no more chances."

A relief fund was started by the council of administration so soon as the extent of the disaster was known, and in less than 30 minutes $2,000 was subscribed and contributions continue to

It is the worst time since the black days of 1872. There is scarcely a mine on the ranges that is not either completely closed or greatly curtailed in operation. Miners have not been at work for three weeks, and the idle number is at least 8,000 greater than it was less than a month ago. This tremendous unemployed force decreases in like ratio the business of the railways in that section, and also the stores and dependent industries. It is met the same fate. Loaded Up With Statistics.

ASPEN, Colo., July 10 .- President Andrews, of Brown university, has been making an investigation into the conditions that have brought about the closing of the silver mines. In company with President Hagerman, and some half-dozen other capitalists, he went through a dozen leading mines here on Friday last. From the managers of these he gathered statistics relating to different phases of the silver question. He left early yesterday morning for Leadville, where he will remain one day.
