O. D. TAYLOR CHASTISED.

Miss Mary Aquia Uses a Horsewhip With Remarkable Vigor.

The sensation of the afternoon has been the attempt to horsewhip Rev. O. D. Taylor on the part of Miss Mary Aquia, a young lady of Italian descent, who with Miss Bessie Holcomb, has been living on a homestead for some time near Snipes' ranch. The trouble arose over a matter of salary, between Miss Holcomb, as teacher at the Wasco Independent Academy, of the one part and the board of directors of the other. The claim is made that an agreement was reached with Mr. Taylor when she was to teach either six months for $400 or the full year for $700, while Mr. Taylor says it was $400 for the half year and $600 for the full year. The latter interpretation is the understanding of the board of directors, backed by the receipts of Miss Holcomb for payment in full for her services.

It was a matter of considerable surprise, therefore, to Mr. Taylor when a little after noon Miss Aquia, with flashing eyes, stepped into the private office of Mr. Taylor, armed with a horsewhip, and demanded satisfaction. He claimed ignorance of the nature of the demand and shut the intruder out, who was also accompanied at the time by Miss Holcomb. For the space of about an hour Miss Aquia walked up and down the streets, oblivious of the presence of a hundred men who were enjoying the sensation and making all manner of remarks. She was apparently waiting for Mr. Taylor to come out of his office.

In the meantime a warrant had been issued for her arrest, and she was required to keep the peace under bonds. This step was taken with her full knowledge and power to stop the proceeding. She was approached by Mr. Dufur, the deputized prosecuting attorney, and told that if she would abandon her threats and promise to keep the peace she would not be arrested. Otherwise as an officer of the law, he was compelled to observe the peace and decorum of the city. She replied that she had nothing to say to Mr. Dufur, and he proceeded with the making out of the papers.

Evidently the warrant was not served on her in time, for about 2 o'clock she met the object of her anger at Wm. Mitchell's corner. She began plying her lash, and Mr. Taylor turned and held her hands. She then commenced kicking him, and the crowd forced Mr. Taylor to relinquish her hold. She was thus master of the situation and rained blows thick and fast upon his back. He then ran up the street, his chastiser following until lost to sight behind Mr. Joles' house. Miss Aquia was then arrested by Sheriff Ward. The girl was accompanied by Mrs. Dr. Rinehart and Miss Holcomb, and the party repaired to the office of Dr. Rinehart. In Justice Davis' court this afternoon

Miss Aquia was bound over to keep the peace in $250 bonds, and the charge of assault and battery was dismissed.

Miss Aquia and Miss Holcomb are friends of long standing. There has been an ardent affection between them since they were school girls in Wellesley college. Both are possessed of fine accomplishments. The singular infatuation between them, it is reported, has been the cause of Miss Holcomb's almost total estrangement from her family. Her father is reputed to be wealthy, but refused to furnish a home to Miss Aquia, at the solicitation of Miss Holcomb. Since then they have been constantly in each other's society, and for over a year have been in The Dalles. Recently Miss Holcomb entered a homestead and the two have been living on it ever since, and have been much admired for their pluck. It is evident that both have a good share of that quality, though the manifestation of it on the street today cannot be seriously commended. However, she is a queen today, and offers of financial backing are numerous.

A BRUTAL CRIME.

Mrs. Cockrell, Living Near Wyeth, Outraged by a Tramp.

One of the most brutal crimes in the calendar was perpetrated on the person of Mrs. Cockrell, near Wyeth at 1:05 o'clock yesterday (Thursday) morning. She had not locked her outside door, and, besides herself, there was only in the house, her 9-year-old boy. She was awakened from her sleep by violence. Her assailant was a man of powerful frame, and a glance sufficed to show that he was possessed of the lowest instincts and narrowest intelligence. She divined his purpose and commenced screaming and the little boy ran out in the doorway and shouted loud and long for help. The noise finally aroused S. J. Dryden who lives, with his family, about 50 yards distant, and seizing a Winchester he started for the scene. Before reaching the house he noticed the man trying to effect a second entrance, against whom on the inside were the old lady and boy, trying to keep the door from being forced. As soon as the fellow saw Dryden coming he ran, disappearing behind a steep embankment into some bushes. He waited for a further sound, but did not hear any and it is not yet known where he did go. Dryden was prevented from further pursuit by the tearful exhortations of the old lady to remain, and Mr. Dryden believed it was wisest for the present to do so.

Mrs. Cockrell is 64 years old, and has grown up sons, Harpam by name, who live in the neighborhood. She has been married three times. The old lady has been weakly all winter and much apprehension had been felt that she would not live. After the assault she was reduced to superlative weakness, and Mr. Dryden took her in his arms and carried her to his own house. She maintained that the villain had not accomplished his purpose, but there were evidences that she was mistaken in part.

Mr. Dryden came on the next train for The Dalles, arriving here on the noon train yesterday. He gave the officers a minute description of the man, and when the freight pulled in at 6 o'clock this morning Officer Gibbons described him riding between two cars, standing on the buffers. Mr. Dryden, coming up, identified him and he was promptly landed behind the bars. Here a reporter of THE CHRONICLE saw him. He was found non-communicative, saying only his name was Stron. He is of foreign birth, apparently about 40 years old, and is powerfully built. His hair, thin on top, is tinged with gray. His eyes were cast downward, giving him that sheepish, hang dog expression peculiar to his class. He has been hanging around Wyeth for several days, and the day before had met Mrs. Dryden and her little girl walking along the track. He spoke to them, but was not noticed. In the evening he saw the little girl carrying a tin pail, and asked her to go down to his camp and have some coffee with him. She refused and doubtless escaped a fate later reserved for Mrs. Cockrell.

A warrant was sworn out for him at Cascade Locks and he will probably be taken there for trial. The whole country down there is worked up over the matter to an alarming extent. Men have been scouring all over the woods to find the miscreant, but a telegram sent there this morning will stop the search.

They poulticed her feet and poulticed her head, and blistered her back till 'twas smarting and red. Tried tonics, elixirs, pain-killers and salves, (though grandma declared it was nothing but 'nerves,') The poor woman thought she must certainly die, till "Favorite Prescription" she happened to try.

No wonder its praises so loudly they speak; She grew better at once, and was well in a week.

The torturing pains and distressing nervousness which accompany, at times, certain forms of female weakness, yield like magic to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and adapted to the delicate organization of woman. It allays and subdues the nervous symptoms and relieves the pain accompanying functional and organic troubles. Guarantee printed on bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.
