THE GIRL OF STRICT IDEAS. She Generally Develops Into a Censorious Old Scandai-Monger.

The extremely weil-behaved young girl who has never been tempted and who cannot understand how another could commit a folly is certain to become the most censorious of old women, says Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in the New York Press. If she does not develop into a cruel, malicious-tongued seandal-monger it will be a wonder. Nothing is so easy as the descent from uncharitableness to malice. As a young girl she prides herself upon her love of morality and good behavior; all her friends speak of her as "such a strict girl' in her ideas. No one would think of appealing to her for sympathy or advice in an hour of temptation, but she is respected for her high ideas if feared for her severity. As an old woman she is simply held in abhorrence, and her name becomes a neighborhood synonym for cruel judgment. Criticism of our frail fellow beings is a vice which takes possession of us like a stimulant or a drug, once we encourage it. It may begin in our high moral standard and our hatred of sin, but once it becomes a habit we indulge in it for the pleasure it gives us. It is a bad habit in the young; in the old it is intolerable; for nothing renders old age interesting or lovable save sympathy for the young and charity for the erring. It is strange that we all do not grow charitable as we grow old; as we learn more and more of our frailties and more and more of the temptations and illusions of life we ought to become more and more tender and pitying. One can be sympathetic without encouraging vice and wrong doing or cloaking sin.
