AUGUST ANGLINGS.

Small Fry Hooked by Persistent Chronicle Reporters.

He said "good night," so faintly, too, that it could scarcely be heard; but heartlessly she closed the door and took him at his word.

Irritation, not irrigation, is Wasco county's direst need.

Mongolian pheasants are protected all the year round east of the Cascades.

We noticed a shipment of cantaloupes to Portland by express this afternoon.

The steamer Regulator took down a fine cargo and passenger list this morning.

By the leakage of the Oregon Lumber Co. flume a couple of sections were undermined and fell. They were repaired yesterday.

The Moro Observer says no tidings of Miss Mollie Nichols, who mysteriously disappeared from Rufus a few weeks since, has been had.

Chief Jud Fish has received a letter from the secretary of the state fire department, accepting the invitation to be present at the tournament to be held in The Dalles.

Capt. Enderby and others have bought of Mays & Crowe a fine ten-horse-power threshing machine of the latest improved pattern, and will put it into service soon.

This office was stormed with a fine box of peaches from Mr. Frank Seufert. They were delicious and took the fort without any skirmishing. Messrs. Seufert Bros. are Wasco county's leading fruit producers and dealers.

Mr. Jas. Foss, who was working a hay press on 3-Mile, met with a painful accident today while baling hay. Somehow his left arm came into contact with the plunger and was broken just below the elbow. Dr. Hollister was called and reduced the fracture.

The board of directors of the Wasco Independent Academy have engaged Prof. J. Stanley Brown as principal for another year. The professor is a very efficient and popular educator, and with a corps of assistants which will accompany him on his return from his visit to the world's fair, this institution will enter on the new year with renewed impulses and energies. The fall term will begin on Monday, the 4th of September.

Seven hundred pounds of salmon for $1.50! That looks pretty cheap for the Royal Chinook, yet such a sale was made on the streets this morning. The way it happened was that they were attached by the Buckheit Packing Co., Astoria, the fish being the property of the Winans Bros. As soon as they arrived from across the river they were taken into custody and sold. A. S. Bennett was the lucky purchaser and the fish were retained, the attorney coming out nicely on his little spec.

The story of the kidnapping and recovering of Alma Gladys Miller, which occupies the major part of our first page today, will be found of thrilling interest. It was thirty days after her disappearance before her father found that she had been actually kidnapped. The first night the little one was reported missing, eight men hunted all night long for her. The next night there was 500 men looking through fields and woods, with the most painstaking precision. They threw out wings a mile or more in length, swinging around from one end, and then swinging on till another mile was covered. In this systematic way the whole country was explored. The last words known to have been said by the child in the house were: "Now, mamma, I am going out to play with Willis (a playmate) a little while."

Made Connections.
 The Oregon Telephone and Telegraph Company made connections on the east of this city with Walla Walla and Spokane yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock, and the line works beautifully. The Spokane end connects with the Postal Telegraph company, we understand. The construction force will be put on the Portland end of the line and will push to completion the unfinished part, which is that section between Hood River and Troutdale. As soon as the entire line is completed telegraphic service will be given where telephone is not desired. It is understood this company will furnish the Inland Associated Press dispatches to those who desire them.

Krause's Headache Capsules.
 A remedy used with unvarying success as a cure for headaches of all kinds. The results have been so universally good that it is no longer an experiment. It has been used for Headache resulting from indisposition, in Periodical Headache, in Headache caused by severe labor (mental or physical), or by exposure to the sun, and in all cases with the most gratifying results. We have, after a thorough investigation, had no hesitancy in taking the agency for this effective remedy, and conscientiously recommend it to our patrons.
 Respectfully,

Mr. Thomas Batte, editor of the Graphic, Texarkana, Arkansas, has found what he believes to be the best remedy in existence for the flux. His experience is well worth remembering. He says: "Last summer I had a very severe attack of flux. I tried almost every known remedy, none giving relief. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended to me. I purchased a bottle and received almost immediate relief. I continued to use the medicine and was entirely cured. I take pleasure in recommending this remedy to any person suffering with such a disease, as in my opinion it is the best medicine in existence." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggists. 1m.

Notice.
 The sociable of Gesang Verein Harmonie, announced for Sunday evening next, will be postponed for a month, on account of absence from the city of a number of singers. I. C. NICKELSEN, Secretary.

CITY COUNCIL.

Sidewalks and Sewers Fruitful Subjects.

Kreft Throws a Bomb.

At the regular meeting of the city council last night there were present Mayor Rinehart, and Councilmen Joles, Lauer, Butts, Kreft, Hudson and Eschelman, the full board.

A petition was presented for an arc light at the corner of Third and Liberty streets, signed by many influential citizens; referred to committee on streets and public property.

The committee on flies asked for further time. Ald. Joles asked if it was meant to enforce all homeowners having terra cotta flues to replace them with brick, and was informed by the mayor that it was merely the intention to prevent new residences from having terra cotta flues put up.

Street Commissioner Maddron then read his report, specifying several sidewalks that were dangerous. In this connection Ald. Lauer said that many of these same sidewalks have been thus reported for a year, but all efforts to have them rebuilt or repaired have been fruitless. He wanted now to make a business of it and have these walks attended to at once if there was any ordinance for it, and if there was not to draft one that would cover it. The council had dilly-dallied long enough, and he wanted to stop referring it to committees and get down to good, solid business. The discussion got to be general on this subject, and there seemed to be a unanimous desire to dispense with some of our disgraceful sidewalks in the shortest possible time. Ald. Joles gave an instance of where a Portland man named McKay had got out of rebuilding a good sidewalk on Second street by Cross' grocery by promising to erect a brick building thereon last fall. Ald. Kreft said that a certain citizen who has a large, new roomy house said he would not fix up his sidewalk nor clear away the rubbish in the street because "he was building," and the councilman wanted to know if this excuse would be good for two years. It was finally agreed to notify all parties reported to have dangerous sidewalks to rebuild them within the limit of time specified by law, and that the street commissioner should enter upon this pleasant duty at once.

The mayor brought up again the subject of sewers, and specified several places where there were troughs emptying their slops and pollution in the open air in populous portions of the city, at short distances from the offended noses of people sleeping and living. He mentioned several cases of sickness which he found attributable to these foul odors, and especially desired the council to frame legislation that would remedy these things at once. "It is a little short of murder," said the mayor, "to permit the further existence of these open sewers, and much sickness is due to nothing else but to inhalations of this rotten dirty water." He spoke of the Chinese garden next to the European house; that the Chinamen used filth to nourish their vegetables, and then sold it out to the ignorant whites. That while the vegetable itself was not affected from growing out of the filth, its exterior was coated with the gas arising from it, particularly lettuce and cabbage, and was dangerous to eat. Also that he was informed, on account of the fearfully loud smell one warm night from the end of the Union street sewer back of Mrs. Brittain's lodging house, the occupants thereof were compelled to desert the house. A motion was accordingly made to have these sewers lengthened out at once to the present stage of the water and to follow the water as it recedes until the ends of the sewers are all under low water mark.

The following communication was then read, signed by W. E. Rinehart, Orion Kinersly and E. B. Dufur:

We, the undersigned citizens and property owners, having at an expense of $130, constructed an incline under the edge of the bluff on a line of Fifth street and extending from the head of Laughlin street adjacent to the rock wall of W. E. Rinehart to the head of Federal, hereby donate the same to Dalles City.

On motion it was referred to committee on streets and public property. The property in the recorder's office belonging to Frank Menefee and consisting of tables, shelving, etc., was offered for sale for $47.50. It appearing that the first cost was considerably more and that the city needed the property, it was purchased at the price named.

At this point Ald. Kreft exploded the bomb of the evening by announcing that he had a report with him showing that the city, under the administration of Mayor Mays, consisting of Haight, Williams, Wood, Joles, Kreft and Lauer, had not received the credit due them. That instead, as was popularly supposed, that they had run behind, they had really cut down the old debt of the city over $3,800, but that the loss incurred by the fire had directly and indirectly footed up to over $11,000. Mr. Kreft made the foregoing statement with a triumphant air and a flourish of the report, and his face was pitiless as he noticed the look of consternation on the faces of all present. It was a knock out blow, and so befuddled were the council as a whole that they didn't know what to do with it. A motion finally carried to offer it to The Dalles press for publication. [See full statement in another column.]

Ald. Hudson moved that the marshal and street commissioner commence tomorrow, August 4th, upon the duties of notifying parties against whom complaints had been made for defective sidewalks and sewers.

The committee on impounding stock presented their report in the manner of an ordinance of 17 sections. On motion it was laid on the table.

Ald. Hudson spoke of the indefinite and imperfect reports of various officers and said that for his part, he wanted to know definitely just what had been done and when it was done by the parties submitting such reports. He was sustained by the other councilmen in short speeches, but no motion was made.

Mayor Rinehart then spoke of a matter of charity, where he had furnished the family of a worthless husband and father with a bill of groceries, amounting to about $10. No action was taken, as such cases come before the county court.

Ald. Lauer spoke of the importance of at once securing the patent nozzle and holder, which had been voted a long time since, but never procured. The proper committee was instructed to procure it.

Ald. Kreft made a motion to appropriate the sum of $50 for the firemen's tournament. It was seconded, but Ald. Hudson made such a ringing speech against it that not even the mover of the motion found courage to say "aye" when the vote was called. The howlers for economy, had they heard him, would have hidden their diminished heads, but as they were not present, they will have, as usual, the benefit of ignorance to make just whatever kind of a story they choose to weave for the delectation of readers of certain papers, the representatives of whom are likewise as indifferent about witnessing city legislation. Apropos, an italicized bon mot appeared in the Sun this week about Rinehart, Kinersly and Dufur's private sidewalk, and the ghastly joke was sprung about some mythical person supposing it to be a city improvement. It was very funny to all those people ignorant enough to habitually read the Sun, but falls very flat upon all those who know the facts. It was considered that $50 would be but a bagatelle to donate for such a purpose, and that the city finances would not justify the appropriation of a suitable sum. Again, $500 or more had been already subscribed by various citizens and to strike them for more even in an indirect manner would be unfair. Kreft thought the kick made under a cowardly nom de plume was very small potatoes. The councilmen do not get a cent for their labors, and they frequently neglect their business to attend to committee work or scrutinize something in a distant part of the city, chase information or hunt statistics. Considering all this who but a chronic kicker would ever think of objecting to a trifle of $50 for a slight courtesy to our nation's distinguished defenders. Proh pudor! Such a man's soul must be of microscopic dimensions. Compare this pitiful sum with what other cities do. The motion lost unanimously to appropriate money for the tournament.
