The Washington Star says: It would not be at all surprising if within a few years the United States should wrest from Great Britain the greatest of that nation's manufacturing privileges—the building of ships for Powers that must have them but cannot construct for themselves. From the day when ironclads became governmental necessities the smaller countries have purchased their ships of war and their armament from England, but it is only reasonable to suppose that the monopoly will soon be broken. Again and again has it been demonstrated that American material, shaped by American ingenuity, has no superior when it appears as the finished product, and to this gratifying fact the eyes of intending purchasers cannot long be closed. Every ship in our navy testifies to the excellence of American handicraft, and such solid evidence will surely not be disregarded. No nation can produce better guns than ours. In the important matter of armor plate we are far in advance of all competition, while American engines have outsped the best foreign mechanism ever put in any cruiser. With these conditions unshakably established but little time is likely to elapse before the Clyde, the Tyne, the Thames, the Mersey, the Seven and Milford Haven will occupy minor positions in the marts of shipping, while the Delaware, the Chesapeake and a score of other waters within our national boundaries will become supremely conspicuous.

Minister Blount's special mission to Hawaii is practically completed and his final report is said to be now on its way to Washington. The voluminous reports already received have been transmitted to the president at Buzzard's bay, so that he is in full possession of information amply sufficient for the formation of a policy on the general question of annexation. It is not at all improbable that the executive will send a special message to congress at the extra session. The knowing ones assert it as a fact that Mr. Cleveland is opposed to the annexation of the islands, but is willing to exercise a guardianship over them sufficient to prevent interference on the part of any other foreign government.

The Great Northern has placed on sale at its principal ticket offices 3,000-mile tickets at the rate of 25 cents per mile, or $75 each. They will be good for the personal use of the original purchaser, will be limited to one year from date of issue, and will contain the same general conditions as are found in the contract of the present 1,000-mile ticket. They will be valid for passage not only over the Great Northern system, but also on its immediate connections between St. Paul, Puget Sound, and San Francisco, and cover about 6,000 miles of railway and steamer lines in the northwest.

Whenever Hawaii is offered to Great Britain upon the same terms as to the United States up will go her flag, and no British Blount will haul it down either. Americans who want United States people to live on shore, "and never go to sea," won't care; but people who are looking to the future of American commerce feel as if the present attitude of the United States toward Hawaii is perpendicularly asinine.

Here is a bright streak in the general depression. The grain receipts at Buffalo during July and during the season to the end of July, break the record—a record which runs back more than half a century. The July receipts exceed 21,000,000 bushels; the season's receipts are over 78,000,000 bushels. These are big figures and there is no gloom in them.

Believing that an effort was being made to make the government pay more for the silver bullion it purchases than the same bullion was worth in market, the secretary of the treasury has not bought for the month of July even one-half of the 4,500,000 ounces which the law calls upon him to purchase every month.

When General Gresham and Colonel Lamont get through with the message Cleveland will have to be introduced to it.

WASHINGTON LETTER

From our Regular Correspondent.

Next week there will have assembled in the capitol a congress which promises to be one memorable in history, whether with good repute or bad, time will tell. Heaven knows when it will adjourn—by the 4th of March, 1895, certainly, and possibly not sooner. The meeting of congress at this early date is accepted as one of the most natural things in the world, and there is undoubtedly need enough for the session, but one who traces back the causes which led to it will be somewhat puzzled. There appears to have been a demand "in the air" for an extra session. It was talked about even before the old congress had adjourned. But all this time there was no thought of a silver session. The reason why the new congress should be brought together promptly, which was urged on every hand, was that the revision of the tariff might be begun at once. This reason did not seem to impress Mr. Cleveland, and the much desired extra session appeared to be unattainable until the new reason was found in the financial situation. Now we have congress about to meet to face a question they were running from all last congress. There has been an almost complete revolution in a few months, and congress comes together almost without a thought of what they had expected to be a cause for their assembling.

Along with a great deal of reassuring testimony as to financial conditions comes an official statement from Mr. Eckels, controller of the currency, in which are shown plain unvarnished facts as to bank suspensions. Foolish efforts to alarm the public mind have alleged that two hundred or more banks had failed and those same mis-statements naturally resulted in exaggerated ideas which in turn did damage where there was no good reason for any disturbance. But an extension of the scare is hardly possible, in the face of the information presented by the controller's figures. There are 3,785 national banks in the United States. Of these 105 have suspended since January 1st. Fourteen have reopened their doors, while fifty-eight have made application to reopen and will doubtless soon receive the necessary permission. The calamity howler has been trying to convince the thoughtless that most of the banks were either gone or going; the controller's exact statement shows that less than three per cent have been affected and of these a respectable proportion is once more engaged in the transaction of business.

When Mrs. Cleveland returns to the white house in September, it will be to find the place in thorough order for the winter's social campaign. Within doors the most extensive change will be apparent in the red room. This apartment has always been used by the families of the various presidents quite as much in the capacity of a private reception room as for public occasions. The stiffness of the other parlors here gives place to an air of coziness that is homelike and attractive. Upstairs, the small room opening out of the president's room has been transformed. This, as during the former years of her occupancy, Mrs. Cleveland will use as her boudoir, the charming little apartments in which she will receive the most intimate of her friends and serve a cup of tea prepared by her own hands from the daintiest of tables at one side of the old-fashioned fireplace. The walls are papered in light blue, and carpets and furnishings correspond in tone with this background. It is on the writing desk in this room that the president's wife attends to her private correspondence. The president's room adjoining has a rich appearance of solid comfort. The walls have been prepared in light fawn color, flowered over with large bouquets of red roses. The large, sunny apartment, used by President and Mrs. Harrison as their bedroom, will be used as a guest chamber, and the adjoining room usually spoken of as the Prince of Wales room will become the future nursery for the national infant, Baby Ruth.

If some enterprising newspaper reporter will flag Hon. Richard P. Bland's train of thoughts he will strike a rich lead.

The coming woman can be healthy. She will be, if she's wisely cared for. As she enters womanhood, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription builds up and strengthens the system and regulates and promotes the functions. It's a supporting tonic, and a quieting, strengthening nervine. It corrects and cures all those delicate derangements and weaknesses peculiar to the sex. In every case for which it's recommended, the "Favorite Prescription" is guaranteed to give satisfaction. If there's no help, there's no pay. It does all that's claimed for it, or the money is refunded. It's a risky way to sell it—but it isn't your risk.

WINANS

THE NEW TOWN has been platted on the old camp ground, at the Forks and Falls of Hood river, with large, slightly lots, broad streets and alleys, good soil and pure water, with shade in profusion, perfect drainage, delightful mountain climate, the central attraction as a mountain summer resort for all Oregon, being the nearest town to Mt. Hood. It is especially adapted as a manufacturing center, being the natural center for 150 square miles of the best cedar and fir timber, possessing millions of horse-power in its dashing streams and water-falls, easily harnessed. Where almost motive power exists, there the most factories will center, surrounded by soil and climate that cannot be excelled anywhere for fruit and agriculture, and with transportation already assured you will find this the place to make a perfect home or a paying investment.
