ANOTHER DROWNING.

Willie Tony Finds Death in the Waters of the John Day.

A sad case of drowning occurred in the John Day river on the 5th of this month, three miles below Burnt Ranch, at a point called John Day grade. Mac Carnett and Willie Tony, for amusement and to bathe their horses, plunged in the water, where at this point, it is about twenty-five feet deep. Carnett making the first plunge off a perpendicular bank, his horse falling on his head, throwing his rider as he went. Carnett being a good swimmer was bothered but little at the unexpected occurrence, and was not confused in the least. Willie Tony thinking he was in danger, urged his horse in to the rescue. When almost within reaching distance, Carnett called to him to be careful, his (Willie's horse) would strike him. Willie gave a sudden jerk to his horse's bridle, and in the act throwing him completely back. Both were under the water, but soon the horse came to the surface feet up, but Willie did not rise for a minute, and then only the top of his head and one arm. He did not seem to be struggling. Carnett hastened to the bank, threw aside his heavy clothing and made the attempt to save the drowning boy, but without success. He could not find him. Mrs. Carnett, Willie's sister, had been standing on the opposite bank and witnessed what she thought would prove fatal to both husband and brother. Her heartrending screams soon brought friends who did all that generous, loving hands could do to find the body that evening, but without success. The next morning at 11 o'clock the body was found within a few feet of where it went down, and from bruises found on it, it is supposed the horse struck and stunned him as they went down, and the cause of his seeming to make no attempt to save himself when he came to the surface of the water.

One more victim for the John Day river, and which this time bereaves a widowed mother and deprives her of a willing hand to assist her in her struggles for a livelihood, and a generous laborer on her farm and among her stock.

The funeral took place today at 11 o'clock, with services by the Rev. Mr. Moorhead. They placed his body beside that of his father on the home farm.

Store Robbed at Fox.

At about 11 o'clock Saturday evening J. F. Allen, who keeps a general merchandise store at Fox, Grant Co., was aroused from his slumbers by some one outside the store wanting in, they said, to get some tobacco. When Mr. Allen opened the door he was brought face to face with two masked men, revolvers in hand, and commanded to open his safe and turn over the funds on hand, or take instant death. Allen complied with the request and was relieved of $900 by the robbers. He had just got in the bulk of this money that day and these fellows certainly knew it and wished to make a stake while there was yet some gold in the country. While these men were securing the booty a third party stood outside and held the horses. A man by the name of Jack Mosier, another man by the name of Rider and John Crisman have been arrested for the crime and had a preliminary examination at Long Creek on Tuesday and were bound over to appear before the grand jury at the next term of circuit court. They will doubtless get to serve a term in the pen, as the evidence against them is said to be very strong. A couple of women were also implicated in the crime but they were turned loose.—Heppner Record.

The Work of a Friend.

Miss Lizzie Green, who lives near Hamilton, Grant county, was brutally outraged by a man by the name of Mel Dustin on Monday evening. Miss Green was riding along the road about a mile from her home, when she was overtaken by Dustin, who commanded her to stop and get off her horse. She refused to do this and Dustin grabbed hold of her and pulled her off to the ground and brutally assaulted her. She managed to walk near enough to the house to make her cries for help heard and was carried in in a completely exhausted condition. Dustin made good his escape, but a posse of men is after him, and should he be caught he will likely dangle at the end of a rope. Hanging is too good for such brutes as these, and this should be the penalty affixed by law for the punishment of the perpetrators of such crimes.—Heppner Record.

The Oregon National Guard goes into annual encampment today at Gladstone, one of the additions to Oregon City.

Bayard & Barnett have some attractive new signs hung in front of their place of business. They are the handiwork of Hardy.

People are asking for bread in various large cities of this union. A famine and plenty is a paradoxical probability in our glorious country.

Twenty head of beef cattle and fifty head of mutton sheep were shipped to the Cascade Locks this morning by the regular for that market.

The Dalles National bank received today a license screen to be placed around their counters. It will add to the neat appearance of the bank considerably.

A vague report reaches the city that a man was drowned yesterday at the Cascade Locks, confirmed only by a telegraphic letter for a coffin received by Crandall & Barrett today.

Two New York girls expended their state fortunes in paying their father's bills, and then went to work, one as a school teacher and one as a stenographer. These are the kind to tie to.

Through the tireless perseverance of Marshal Maloney, no loose stock is permitted to roam the streets for long at a time. Last night he had the city pound and had to utilize the stables of Graham & Robertson for a good many days.

The Walla Walla Statesmen says our readers are warned against a well dressed lady who is likely to appear and claim that she is going to start a class painting. After selling you the necessary outfit she "works" all your neighbors, then leaves the town.

A Chinaman named Buoy, but who generally been known for the last forty years in The Dalles as Hopalong, dropped dead in the Columbia this morning while after some fishing. He died in a few minutes after being stricken. He is about 60 years old.

The bottom is knocked out of the plum market. A number of boxes were hauled to the Regulator for shipment yesterday, but advice received from Portland stated that the receipts would not pay for the freight and boxes, and so the fruit will be taken back and the owner will dry them.

Adolph Anderson, of Forest Grove, is making arrangements to gather up from among the fruit growers of the neighborhood and ship to Chicago a carload of peach plums to be sold at auction in the Oregon department of the world's fair. S. A. Clarke, the Salem fruit man of wide reputation, has given assurance of good prices and Mr. Anderson feels quite sanguine. A refrigerator car and cheap rates have been procured from the Southern Pacific company.

An Indian's Oratory.

The following colloquy took place on one of our street corners last night between a couple of Warm Spring Indians on the present condition of national affairs. Mr. Indian, who is one of the best informed on the political situation, remarked that "Washington tyghe, Mr. Cleveland, hias sick tumtum. Yaka clatawa copa salt-chuck. Yaka quas. Yaka wake cumtux, alta halo chickamin, hala mamook, halo muckamuck. Cotta alta?"

The sombre shading of the Indian's thoughts can hardly be expressed in English, but this is as near as we can reproduce it: The president is heart-sick; he has gone to the seacoast to get away from his troubles, because he is afraid of them and don't know what to do. He knows we have no money; there is no work, nor anything to eat. What does it mean?

It May Be Alma Miller Yet.

Deputy Sheriff Croner recently said, speaking of the children found at Eugene: "The girl had the marks on the nose, back of the head, and hip, which were in the published description. I am confident that she is the stolen child, but as Miller would not come down to identify her and as Compton claimed her, we had to give her up. Compton was identified by several as a reputable citizen, but further than that I know nothing of him. He took both children to Florence on Monday and said that he intended to keep them there."

It will be remembered that the girl when arrested gave her name as Veir, and her companion, a 4-year-old boy, gave the same name. The girl said that she had been stolen from her home in Eastern Oregon by a man, and her story agreed with that told by Miller of the kidnapping of his child. They had been sent to Eugene from Boise City, Idaho, and a man named Compton was to meet them at the depot. Compton did not appear, and the officers took charge of the children. Mr. Croner telegraphed notice of the capture, together with a description of the child, to Mr. Miller at Summerville, but received no reply until last Friday. In his answer Mr. Miller said that the description of the child could not be depended upon. Under the statute Croner was compelled to turn the children over to Compton.

An Alleged Forger.

Marshal Minto of Salem passed through Portland this morning, having in custody F. Dye, who is wanted at Salem on a charge of forgery. He was arrested a few days ago at Astoria on the request of the Salem officials, and Marshal Minto went down after him. He left for Salem this morning.—Telegram.

Frank Dye is the party who endeavored to publish a directory in The Dalles a few weeks ago.
