AUGUST ANGLINGS.

Small Fry Hooked by Persistent Chronicle Reporters.

Mary had a handkerchief with a very handsome trimming made of it a bathing suit and then she went to swimming.

A large yield of fruit is assured in Wasco county this season.

D. P. Thompson has resigned the receivership of the suspended Portland Savings bank.

Night was made hideous last night in the vicinity of Court and Second streets over a prolonged saloon brawl.

The U. P. R. R. Co. have cut down on time in the yards at this place, and now the whistle blows down work at 3 o'clock p. m.

The Moody warehouse is being cleared of the wool on storage for the accommodation of the wheat, which will begin to come in shortly.

One Bascom today caught a number of catfish, some of them sixteen inches long, in "China" slough, near the railroad, down from Jefferson street.

It is to be hoped that later in the season, at any rate, we will be treated to some of those fine outdoor concerts that the land favored us with last summer.

A letter received in this city says Mr. H. E. Hinton has the best hay ranch in the state, as he has cut and put up three hundred thousand tons of the finest hay ever fed to brutes.

Last Sunday, says the Observer, G. F. Younger's little boy was kicked in the face by a horse, and received very serious injuries, his features being very badly disfigured. Mr. Younger lives about ten miles south of Grass Valley.

"I wonder," said one of the loungers, "what was the original of the swallow-tailed coat?" "It is my idea," said the grizzled-whiskered man from Montana, "that they was cut that way in the first place to make it handy for a man to get his gun."

It is said that the third finger was chosen for the wedding ring because of the idea that a vein ran straight from it to the heart. Another tradition says that as the bridegroom said the words, "In the name of the Father," he held the ring at the thumb, "of the Son," at the first finger, and so on until at the "Amen," it had reached the third finger.

St. Mary's Academy, advertisement of which appears in another column, is one of the most creditable and popular institutions of which our city and county can boast. Superior instructors, the pleasant surroundings, and a complete education in etiquette and morality, as well as all branches of learning, make St. Mary's academy and kindred institutions a most valuable school for girls.

On Saturday last, 12th inst., Julius Weisbeck, a well known citizen of this county, departed this life at Grant, after suffering the keenest agony from cancer in the face. The deceased had two tumors removed from his face within the past year. Cancer in the side of the face then set in, and the old man was in constant pain for several months prior to his death.—More Observer.

Three cases for assault and battery were set for trial before Justice Schantz this afternoon. The complaints are State vs. Jas. Crute, for striking R. J. O'Connor in the face; R. J. O'Connor for striking H. L. Chenoweth in the jaw; and Thos. McCoy for assaulting R. J. O'Connor. Case of Crute postponed till 3 o'clock and the others until 7 o'clock this evening.

A letter received by Mr. Davis, formerly of Missouri, states that wheat sells there for 35 cents per bushel, and everything else in proportion, while Mr. Ainsworth, of French & Co.'s bank, has heard from Nebraska to the effect that wheat there brings thirty odd cents per bushel. Wheat is 45¢50 per bushel here, but it lacks considerably of being $1 a bushel, as promised a year ago by the democratic side of the house.

A large school of whales was seen last week off Cape Hatteras, and the question is broached whether the whales are increasing in number and returning to their old haunts. There was a time when whale oil was the chief lighting fluid. Then as they grew scarce it seemed a providential event that kerosene was discovered. Now, who knows? Possibly kerosene is about giving out and we may have to go back to candles and sperm oil.

THE CHRONICLE force are grateful for a fine watermelon, weighing six pounds, from the mammoth farm of Scateheim Littlefield, near this place. This enterprising farmer believes that he has found a new commercial importance for watermelons, and this year has raised them on an extensive scale for the purpose of feeding to cats. He thinks that cats fed with watermelon furnish a superior article of fiddle-strings, in that they are tougher and longer than those ordinarily sold. Success to this pioneer of a new industry.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. Hope is visiting at the Cascade Locks.

Mrs. Tiple of Fossil is visiting Mrs. M. Hart in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dietzel departed for Portland on the morning boat.

R. Hinton and Miss Lulu Bird returned last night from Bake Oven.

Mrs. George Herbert and family have gone to Cascade Locks to visit relatives and friends.

Mr. H. F. Turner called at THE CHRONICLE office today. He is on his way to Portland.

Mr. L. P. Wilson, the "Mexican Stove Polish" man, left for Portland by Regulator this morning.

Mr. J. D. Parrish, proprietor of the Prineville stage line, left for Portland this morning to remain a few days.

Mr. Al. Bettingen and his better half left by steamer this morning for Astoria, where they will enjoy the fresh ocean breeze.

Mr. Geo. Egbert returned this morning to Portland after having visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Egbert of 10-Mile.

Miss Minnie Freiman, who has been visiting in Portland for a short time, returned on the steamer Regulator last evening.

Mr. John Gamaway has just come in from Prineville and reports the roads in excellent condition and freighting very light. Even Prineville is as quiet in its business habits as any place.

Judge Bennett and E. S. Huntington returned last night from Mosier, where they have been to take evidence in the suit questioning the legality of organizing school district No. 52, and of which suit Miss Bowman is referee.

R. B. Wilson, general freight agent solicitor for the Northern Pacific, and E. A. Hackett, assistant general agent of the Burlington, are in the city today, and made THE CHRONICLE a call.

Messrs. D. D. Dufur and N. J. Sinnott returned last evening from Badger lake, where they have been rusticated for the past week or ten days. They report the fishing in the lake and Badger creek good. The only objectionable feature about it is that it takes an early worm to catch the fish. They returned with about one hundred of the speckled beauties and distributed them among their friends. Thanks! thanks!

A Valuable Invention.

The Statesman office has received from the east a new invention and respectfully invites a visit from professional cracksmen or burglars during any evening when opportunity offers. It is in the shape of a large dynamite cap, the peculiar combination of which is only known to the proprietor. It is inserted in the safe and when the midnight operator has bored a certain distance through the lock, its utility becomes very apparent—in fact there is no necessity for a further trial either of the safe or the burglar. Not long since it was tested in Chicago, and proved very satisfactory. Both burglars were found on the roof and the safe a total wreck, but no money was missing.

GENTLEMEN.—I never sold a medicine that gives such universal satisfaction to my customers as Krause's Headache Capsules. I can speak also from experience, as they have nearly cured me of frequent attacks of sick headaches. I could get you many testimonials in this vicinity from those who have used them. Yours truly, C. E. COVINO, Red Cloud, Neb.

Olinger & Bone's stages en route to Cloud Cap Inn will locate campers at the best fishing point in Hood River valley, where one can reach Mt. Hood in a few hours and get their mail and provisions daily. 22eud

F. S. and "the Noble Swash" Discuss the Financial Situation.

Having sprinkled the floor with water fresh from the well and sprinkled about ten million flies with insect powder from the nozzle of a powder gun, and seeing no prospect of any great rush of business, I conclude to sit down and ponder over the great question of the day. To present myself to the subject in a broad and general way; to eliminate all personal interest in the matter, and study money from a financial standpoint; and as it relates to, and effects the domestic and political relations of man. Right here I was disturbed—and greatly relieved—by the arrival of my friend Charley the "noble swash." The subject drops me at once, and I fall somewhat ungracefully into practical grooves, and I regret to say that the world will have to move on—as well as it can—without the benefit of my opinion, as to whether money has any of the essential elements of wealth or not. Charley knocked the bottom out of all my long cherished opinions, relating to political economy. The quiet confidence that I have reposed in the ability of congress and the chief executive, to make times good is more or less shaken.

When we—Charley and myself—had adjusted our private financial matters to our entire satisfaction, he—Charley—wanted to know why it was that "Boston man all round every where, talked all-time halo money." Now it occurred to me, that inasmuch, as it is possible for this poor untutored savage to become a citizen some day, that I would be failing in my duty should I fail to explain the matter to him. So I went to work in dead earnest, with poor jargon and English. I told him all that I knew about tariff; the Sherman silver bill, read and interpreted, as well as I could, the president's message, etc. In fact I spread myself for about two hours. When I had finished, Charley regarded me with a calm and intense dignity for about ten minutes, then spoke as follows:

"You no sabe money; conglous no sabe money; president no sabe money; me, Indian Charley know keep more. Now, me spose you bery good man, me tell you all about it. You see, Boston man, all time heep like him Chinaman. Chinaman ketch 'em hiyu money. All right, now last spring, Boston man heep big fool, he tell Chinaman get out, go home! All right, Chinaman go home, take all the money, you see? Now, spose Boston man tell me, Indian Charley, you be president, all right, me be president, me tell Chinaman no go home now, no buy letas in China, buy letas from Boston man. You no buy letas from Boston man, me cut your long hair off and make hiyu rope and hang hiyu more Chinaman."

A Seedless Apple Tree.

The orchard of W. H. Helm of Columbus has a luxus nature in the form of a vigorous young apple tree that is now loaded down with a crop of seedless apples. The tree is a seedling and this is its first crop. The apples are of the fall or winter variety and are not yet ripe. They are of good size, fine grain and excellent flavor. In appearance they differ only from other apples of like apparent variety in that the stem end is not indented, but if anything protrudes a little around the stem. Every one of them yet cut open has been found as devoid of seed or any appearance of core as a turnip or potato. The freak of nature has naturally attracted intense interest. Samples of the fruit have been sent to Portland for inspection and other samples will be sent there, by request of the curious, in a few days. Mr. Helm cannot say, for certain, where the tree came from, and he only discovered the fruit was seedless by accident a couple of weeks ago. Since then he has had several offers to purchase the tree, one would be buyer offering him $100 for it. If serious cut from the tree should perpetuate a seedless variety of apples, as fruit growers are confident they would, this freak of nature may be destined to make the name of W. H. Helm of Columbus famous. In any event the future history of this little apple tree will be watched with intense interest.—Sentinel.
