COTTOLENE
"Now good digestion wait on appetite, And health on both."
To assure both the above ends, good, wholesome, palatable food is demanded. It is next to impossible to present a sufficient variety of appetizing bills of fare for our meals without a liberal allowance of pastry and other food in which shortening is required. How to make crisp, healthful, digestible pastry has puzzled the cooks. A difficulty in all good cooking in the past has been lard. Always fickle, never uniform, most unwholesome—lard has always been the bane of the cook and the obstacle to "good digestion."
COTTOLENE comes now into popular favor as the new shortening—better than even the best of lard with none of lard's objectionable qualities. And COTTOLENE comes attended by both "APPETITE AND HEALTH." Grocers sell it all about. REFUSE ALL SUBSTITUTES.

HILL HAS HIS CHANCE
They Do Not Wholly Agree With Cleveland.
THE FINANCIAL MILLENIUM
The Permanent Remedy for Our Present Difficulty—The Vice President's Views.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—In the senate, Vest sent to the clerk's desk and had read a communication from the director of the mint, giving statistics of the quantity of silver bullion purchased since 1873, the date of the Bland-Allison act, its cost, amount coined, etc. Vest summed up all of these figures to show that if all the silver dollars and subsidiary silver were rescinded at the ratio proposed in the bill (20 to 1), there still would be a profit to the treasury on the whole silver transaction since 1873 of over $15,250,000. He intimated pretty broadly that Carlisle, in his letter to Senator Voorhees on the same subject, had not treated the subject fairly.
Hill of New York then delivered his speech.
There were those, Hill said, who do not wholly agree with the president in his diagnosis of the malady now affecting the body politic, and did not hastily join with him in the rosy conclusion that the financial millennium is to come the moment the Sherman law is removed. There were some, who had given the subject attention, who believed the cause of the present depression was deeper and beyond the Sherman bill; that its foundations were laid in the evil hours of 1873, when the country unwittingly laid aside the financial policy that had been its guide since the foundation of the government. The existing financial disturbance, Hill found, was attributable to three distinct causes.
First—It was the natural inevitable result of many years of real or fictitious prosperity.
Second—Some portion of the present panic could be traced to a concerted effort on the part of monometalists to produce it in order to discredit silver.
Third—That no matter what else may have contributed to the present financial condition, it would not be denied that the silver-purchase law had been at least in part and possibly most largely instrumental in producing the existing complications.
Hill did not believe the simple repeal of the Sherman law would at once restore abundant prosperity, but that many years would be required to recover from the present disturbance. He compared his own course in declaring for repeal with the president's course in failing to refer to it until this late day. He was a bimetalist, and stood for free coinage at a proper ratio. Had the Sherman law been repealed at the last session or in the special session on the 5th of March, the United States would have escaped the present panic and precluded the closure of the Indian mints. Independent free bimetallic coinage in the United States is not consistent with the counsels of monetary science. While repeal would not bring parity, it would facilitate it by bringing that newfangled monetary theory—gold monometalism, begotten in the embraces of ignorance with rapacity—at least to an unequivocal crucial test. The permanent remedy for our financial difficulty was to return to the bimetalism that existed prior to 1873. Hill favored an increase of national bank circulation as proposed in the pending bill. Continuing, he said he regarded the question of ratio as not timely, and as of the least consequence, but, if changed at all, it should not be enlarged but diminished to 15 1/2, the Latin Union ratio. He should refuse to follow in the footsteps of any administration that sought to place the democratic party in a false position and lead it into the very camp of the enemy. The president must rely upon republican votes to carry out any such suicidal policy. He had not believed, however, that any such course would be taken by the president of his own volition, or even under the inspiration of indiscreet advisers, until clearer evidence shall be furnished than that now exists. He deprecated hasty action in the formation of a definite financial plan, and predicted failure of the attempt to impose a gold standard on India. Meanwhile the prompt repeal of the Sherman law was demanded as a measure of temporary relief. Let us legislate upon the financial question, said Hill, and then return to our homes next December. He said that his distinguished colleague and himself would cheerfully vote for repeal, "unawed by power and uncorrupted by the federal patronage." He predicted the passage of the bill by the senate, and that the republic would weather the present storm. At the close of Hill's speech Stewart of Nevada took the floor and addressed the senate.

Where Is the Vice-President At?
WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—There is considerable anxiety in congress regarding Vice-President Stevenson's views on the pending silver legislation, especially as, according to the recent canvass, it appears that if the three appointed senators from the silver states are allowed to take their seats the senate will be a tie and Stevenson would have the casting vote. Beyond expressing the belief that the session will be protracted, the vice-president refuses to talk. It is urged that he, being a member of the administration, will vote for an administrative measure as a matter of course. There is a good deal of compromise talk. It is said the steering committee made a formal offer to the silver men for the passage of the repeal bill accompanied by a law directing the purchase of 300,000,000 ounces of silver at a specified time, all purchases to close thereafter, and that the silver men have the matter under consideration.

White Men Want Work.
SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 25.—A meeting was held last evening in Saratoga to consider the question of employing white labor in lieu of Asiatic. A committee reported there were over 200 white men in San Jose willing to work and that all the orchardists seem willing to give employment to whites. One orchardist near Saratoga is said to have been annoyed by tramps; but since the officers have segregated the laborers and tramps a decided change of feeling has taken place, and there is now a great demand for white laborers at $1 a day and board. A labor bureau has been established, and the total number registered up to yesterday was over 800, but a large number of these have found employment since the book was opened.

Swept Overboard.
NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Charles Kletzberger, of the fishing smack Malinda Wood, which was towed to her berth at Fulton market this morning, reports that Wednesday night, while the vessel was anchored about four miles from Barnegat lighthouse, she was struck by a hurricane. The vessel was driven on her beam ends, and foremast carried away and five of the crew swept overboard and drowned. The vessel had a crew of eight in all. Two of the survivors were so badly injured that they had to be removed to the hospital upon the arrival of the vessel at its pier. Kletzberger is the only member of the crew that came through unscathed.

At the World's Fair.
CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—This is colored people's day at the world's fair. The weather is clear and bright. Large numbers of the black race from the city and surrounding country and many from the far south were present. There were gathered in the festival hall the finest specimens of this race in the country. Venerable Fred Douglass delivered an oration; Siseretta Jones, the black Patti, sang delightfully, and there were various other exercises of an interesting character. Buffalo Bill's Wild West show paraded through the grounds for their benefit.

Big Fire at Chicago.
CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—The police estimate the loss by the fire at South Chicago last night at $400,000, half of which falls on the owners of 131 residences and two churches destroyed; the other half on the Sunday Creek Coal Company. Other estimates put the total at $500,000.
The Senate Is Hostile.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—There is much hostility in the senate to the bill to increase the circulation of the national banks to the par value of the bonds deposited. It is not thought it will ever reach a vote.
Attention, Railroad Men!
I was very bilious, occasionally having a dumb chill, followed by fevers, which prostrated me. I took Simmons' Liver Regulator, and am a well man.
