TUESDAY, . . . SEPI. 5. 1893

Hon, Nelson Dingley of Maine, in his speech before the house the 28th of August, states the situation very succinctly which is in line with the majority of editorial comment throughout the United States. Mr. Dingley said:

year was evidently caused solely by the belief of those engaged in manufacturing industries that the result of the elections in November, which had democratic party, portended an early tending in Australia overthrow of the policy of protection, in accordance with the democratic platform. Manufacturers and merchants. therefore, at once began to prepare for what they believed would be radical changes that would supplant domestic with foreign goods. Enlargements contemplated were given up. Dealers' orders for goods for another autumn were given slowly and guardedly. Raw materials for goods to be delivered another season were bought sparingly, and prices gradually forced down near to the point where it was supposed they would be when the goods went into consumption. For example, Michigan washed wool, which sold last October for 28 cents, was gradually forced down to 20 cents, because manufacturers expected to have to sell their goods on the basis of the contemplated free wool tariff. Looms were stopped to reduce production, in view of the diminished demand.

"No actual change in the tariff has as yet been made, but manufacturers and merchants have been preparing in advance for the revolutionary changes which the democratic platform portended, and have been discounting in part the new tariff to come. When apprehension of coming evil seizes upon men oftentimes the apprehension is worse than the realization. The distrust in manufacturing circles which began in December and January, late in the winter, extend I to financial circles. There can to no mistaking the fact that this industrial distrust and consequent depression was caused entirely by the proposed revolution in the tariff; although after this had gone on for some months, the silver situation in the way I have suggested came in to aid in inteneifying the distrust, and convert industrial depression inio a financial panie and money famine.

"It is not possible to have a national election, conduct d on the issue of the overthrow of an economic policy that has prevailed for thirty years, and given great processing the second secon given great prosperity to the country, result in the complete triumph of a party pledged to such a revolutionary change, without arresting production, stopping machinery, injuring credit and paralyzing business."

Senator Peffer has introduced a bill which is in the nature of an amendment to the constitution. It directs the secretary of the treasury to print and issue to state governments $5,000,000 for each 100,000 inhabitants, or at the rate of $50 per capita. States are prohibited from lending it in excess of an interest charge Flour, Bran and Feed. of 3 per cent. No person shall borrow more than $2,000. Corporations are not allowed to lend money. The time for which the money is lent is 16 years, and one-fourth is to be paid every four years.

Interest will be collected at the end of each year. No fees or commissions shall be charged on a loan. All lands and improvements forfeited for non-payment of principal or interest shall go into the public domain. Other mone other than the motal now contents of the state other than the metal now outets noticeshall be called into the treasury and stroyed. The secretary of the treasury is required to print 5,000,000 5-cent bills and the same number of 25-cent bills to be sold by postmasters.

PUBLIC SCHOOL GLADIATORS. Brains Alleged to Be Out of Fashion. While Muscle Is Worshiped.

The "school board boy" is knocking at the door, and the young gladiators turned out at Eton, Harrow and Rugby are rapidly coming, in their favorite parlance, to be "nowhere." This is the opinion of Dr. Mitchell Banks, professor of anatomy at University college, Liverpool, and his reason is, says the London Daily News, that "brains" in this country have gone out of fashion, while "the worship of muscle and bone have been carried too far." Well might the German schoolmaster say that the English boy plays at his work and works at his play. Dr Mitchell Banks has asked many a proud mother about her son at some public school, and has been told with a radiant air: "Oh, he is doing splendidly, getting on This means that he is captain of the
