SEPTEMBER SHORTS.

City and County News Notes of Minor Importance.

Baltmarsh & Co. will ship a carload of mutton sheep to Portland tonight.

Yesterday's rain brought out innumerable little toads, which hopped about in the morning, finding much enjoyment in life.

A large band of Indians, with their ponies, babies and dogs crossed the river this afternoon, bound for the Lima hop fields.

The west-bound passenger train did not arrive until 6:30 this morning on account of the burning of a long bridge, twenty miles this side of Huntington.

The Portland Savings bank depositors held another meeting and decided to wait upon the bank officials and see what terms they would open the bank.

The enrollment of the public schools for the opening day was 375, which is as good as last year. The number would have been larger but for the tournament, which kept a good many away.

Twelve carloads of cattle and a carload of mutton sheep were shipped from Madras to the Sound, Saturday, by L. May. Mr. May will ship thirteen more of cattle on the 12th, and fifteen cars on the 18th inst.

Ben E. Snipes, of the Ellensburg and Plyn banks, has assigned all his unnumbered property in King, Kittitas, Okanogan, Douglas and Yakima counties, Washington, for the benefit of his bank creditors. The assignment is satisfactory to the creditors.

Those who believe that Dr. Sage's Marsh Remedy will cure them are liable to get well than those who do not.

If you happen to be one of those who do not believe, there's a matter of $500 to your faith. It's for you if the makers of Dr. Sage's remedy can't cure you, no matter how bad or how long standing your catarrh in the head may be.

The makers are the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y. They are known to every newspaper publisher and every druggist in the land, and you can easily ascertain that their word is as good as their bond.

Don't wind your watch once a day, or liver and bowels should act as regularly. If they do not, use a key.

CITY COUNCIL.

Regular Monthly Meeting and the Usual Grist of Business.

The regular monthly meeting of the city council occurred last night, and there were present, besides Mayor Rinehart, Councilmen Joles, Lauer, Hudson, Eshelman and Butts.

Ald. Joles made a verbal report, as chairman of the committee on fire and water, recommending that section 9 of ordinance 129 be amended to prohibit the use of anything but brick and mortar flues in all unused buildings and additions. Referred back to the committee to draft such an amendment, and hereafter there will be nothing but brick flues constructed.

The covering of the cistern at the intersection of Third and Washington streets was reported in a dangerous condition. On motion the necessary repairs were ordered made.

A motion was carried that the fire warden be instructed to examine the flues and stove pipes of the city from time to time, having power to have such as he deems unsafe to be removed forthwith.

The ordinance was read and placed on final passage relating to the construction of a sidewalk on the west side of Court street between Eighth and Tenth streets. Carried.

Ordinance No. 278, allowing the marshal $15 per month for horse feed and fees for stock impounded was laid on the table.

The bill of the American Road Machine Co. for $742.50 for a rock crusher was referred to a committee, who is today to see it working and report upon its merits.

The bills were then allowed, with the exception of one by Maier & Benton for nails, which was referred back for correction.

UMATILLA HOUSE.

Thirty-Year Anniversary—Col. Sinnott, One of Its Founders.

Thirty years ago today, Messrs. Handley and Sinnott, then young men, opened the Umatilla House. The firm-name remained unchanged until after the death of Major Handley, Nov. 19th, 1890. In 1863 these men were in limited circumstances, but because of their good business principles and natural enervity of manner, they started out with a thriving trade. The first Umatilla House was a two story and a half structure, but of limited dimensions, and the enterprising young men who bought it were considerably strained for a time to pay for it. Misfortune afterward overtook them by fire just as they were completing a new structure. They immediately rebuilt and the present edifice is the monument of their energy. It was erected in 1879-80, and has over 200 rooms and one of the largest dining halls in the country.

Seldom, indeed, does a partnership last such a length of time. It was dissolved only by the death of Mr. Handley, and Col. Sinnott has himself changed to a patriarchal appearance. His commanding figure makes one of the distinct personalities of Oregon, and his list of acquaintances is undoubtedly larger than any man in the Pacific Northwest, and comprises presidents of the United States down to the humblest citizen.

The firm-name was not changed until the first day of January, 1892, when J. S. Fish became co-partner with him in this old, established house, and the name was changed to Sinnott & Fish.

Move-the-Crop Problem.

The Northwestern Farmers' Protective Elevator Association of Grand Forks, N. D., proposes to solve the move-the-crop problem for its members by paying cash. The association is composed of 2,450 farmers. Elevator room has been leased in both Duluth and Minneapolis, and the members will ship wheat directly to agents at Duluth and Minneapolis. Agents will remit full market value of the wheat on the day the wheat is received, or where farmers prefer to hold the wheat, the agent will pay the profit charges and issue wheat checks. The members of the association have nearly 4,000,000 bushels of wheat to dispose of. Of this amount, it is said, but very little will find its way into the local elevators. The idea is a taking one, and the membership of the association is continually growing. These farmers claim to have ample funds for handling shipments in ordinary quantities. In comparison with the yield of wheat in the state of Washington, it is interesting to note that an average yield of 12 to 18 bushels is reported in North Dakota.—Spokane Review.

A Good Report.

The following report of business transacted at The Dalles land office, kindly furnished us by Capt. Lewis, is by no means a "hard times" document:

The follow is the number of acres entered in this office for the month of August, 1893, and the amount of money paid in:

| | | | |
|-------------------------|---------|--------------|-----------|
| Homestead entries | No. 115 | Acres 17,827 | $1290.00 |
| Cash entries | No. 25 | 2,907 | 394.50 |
| Final homestead entries | No. 10 | 1,519 | 66.50 |
| Final timber culture | No. 6 | 958 | 33.00 |
| Total acres. | | 23,211 | $1594.00 |

JOHN W. LEWIS, Register.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Ex-Governor Moody is in town from Salem.

Dr. Sutherland of Portland is in the city today.

Mrs. A. S. Bennett has departed for Dayton, Wash.

Mr. A. Scherneckau left this morning for his home in Astoria.

Mrs. McLeod and family returned by morning passenger train to Portland.

Mr. Allen Grant, one of the prominent sheep men of Antelope, is in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stubling were passengers on the Regulator this morning.

Messrs. Bert and Fred Phelps left yesterday for an outing in the vicinity of Mt. Hood.

Mr. I. H. Taffe of Cello is in the city. He is looking forward to the 10th inst., for a resumption of the fishing business, and anticipates a very large pack, as the river is very full of the royal chinooks and steel heads.

It Should Be in Every House.

J. B. Wilson, 371 Clay St., Sharpshurg, Pa., says he will not be without Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, that it cured his wife who was threatened with pneumonia after an attack of "la grippe," when various other remedies and several physicians had done her no good. Robert Barber, of Cooksport, Pa., claims Dr. King's New Discovery has done him more good than anything he ever used for lung trouble. Nothing like it. Try it. Free trial bottles at Snipes & Kinersly's. Large bottles, 50c. and $1.00.

LOST LAKE.

A Very Charming Resort for Pleasure-Loving People.

Many of the people who have pleasant homes in Wasco county do not realize the extent of the diversity of soil, climate, scenery and vegetation there is in their own county. The fact is that Wasco county is that happy medium in which is blended nearly every kind of soil and climate known to exist in this great state; where thrives almost every plant that is indigenous to Oregon; and where the tourist can find all kinds of scenery, from the barren, sandy wastes and sagebrush plains east of the Deschutes river, the grand and awful Deschutes canyon, the everlasting snow fields, mighty grinding glaciers and frightful abysses on Mt. Hood, the farm-dotted hills and valleys on almost every hand, to the calm and beautiful Lost Lake.

It is to tell about a trip to "lovely" Lost Lake that these lines are written. The lake is quite a favorite summer resort for many of the Hood River farmers, but on account of its being "forty miles from nowhere," few outside people have visited it. Happening to be in the upper part of Hood River valley the latter part of August, and learning that many of the settlers intended going to the lake on the 29th, the writer had his name enrolled as one of the party.

On the day set the following named persons met at the residence of an old mountaineer, whom the young folks call Uncle Dave Cooper, to wit: Misses Clara Knox, Wyoming Cooper, Christine Cooper, Messrs. Will Edlet, D. R. Cooper, Warren Cooper, J. T. Cooper and "Tourist." Our pack horses being loaded and our horses saddled, we mounted and started on our journey about 9:30 in the morning. We crossed the east fork of Hood river on the bridge about half a mile south of the Mt. Hood postoffice. We went along a rather poor wagon road until we arrived at Mr. Desbrough's place, where we were joined by H. H. Tomlinson, Tom Conner, Bert Sandman, Fred Wishart and J. R. McKamey, and were treated to some of Mr. D.'s famous apples. From there we had to follow a dim trail that was almost impassable because of a dense growth of brush higher than a man's head, until we got to the Middle Fork. This stream we had to ford, but as it is not very safe the ladies crossed on a log. We waited for dinner at west Hood river, and were here joined by Frank Rice and Albert McKamey, who were ever after prominent members of the party.

At Sandy Flat we met several people who had just come from the lake. Sandy flat is on the east side of the west fork of Hood river, and is the end of the wagon road, or practically so, as the road does not cross the river. The last nine miles of our trip we had only a mountain trail through one of the finest forests in the world. The forest is composed mostly of cedar, fir, hemlock, larch and white and yellow pine. Laurel creek is the only stream we crossed between the west fork and the lake. We slacked our thirst occasionally at one of the many cold springs we had to pass, and toiled on till 5 p. m., when "Lost Lake" was shouted by the man who led the way. We were on a hill at the northeast corner of the lake when we first saw the water, but on account of the timber we did not get a perfect view until we rode down into the edge of the lake. Those of us who had never seen Lost Lake sat on our horses and enjoyed the beautiful scenery for some moments, then rode on through Lack Brach creek, which drains the lake, and followed the rest of the party to the northwest corner of the lake, where we pitched camp. A cold mountain creek empties into the lake at this place and furnishes campers an abundance of good water. Although we were all tired, several of our young folks at once secured a skiff and a raft and set out to catch a good mess of fish for our supper. The writer was one of those on the raft, none of whom caught a fish or even got a bite.

Right here let me try to describe the lake:
