The Louisville Courier-Journal asks "What are we to do with the overflow of Anglo-Saxon land greed, now that the Cherokee outlet-about the last arable lot of public land in this country-is overrun by claimants from five to ten deep?" The Louisville Times in reply suggests that we "tackle Africa, the Arctic and Antarctic circles, and finally take possession of Symmes' Hole."

The Philadelphia Times notes that train robbing as a business pays best when carried on by small gangs. The twenty men who robbed the Lake Shore train at Kendallville had to share a $20,-000 prize, while the four men who captured the train in Northern Michigan had $70,000 to divide. But there is an advantage in large gange that the Times overlooks. A large gang is less likely to get caught.

A few of the eastern mills and manufactories that have started up during the last ten days are the Bridgeport (Conn.) corset factory, Amsterdam (N. Y. broom manufactory, Bristol (Pa.) wall paper mills, West Superior (Wis.) wagon and carriage works, Lowell (Mass.) woolen mills, Richmond (Ind.) nail works, Oscoda Mich. saw mills, Meadville (Col.) miners and the New Philadelphia (O.) wire and nail works. Altogether this gives renewed employment to 10,000 men.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch calls attention to the fact that a large wall paper concern in that city is about to go out of business in order to deliver its THE CHRONICLE you will have the antrade to the National Wall Paper company of New York, a newly organized trust. The attorney general has a tender side for all trusts, and has held in the past that laws against them are unconstitutional. With such a man occupying French & Co. each a post the iniquitous trade combine may be expected to flourish like a green bay tree.

The Telegram says:

Oregon woolgrowers should remember that Oregon wool never brought a better price than in 1870, when there was no protection on wool, but when there was unlimited silver coinage. After silver was demonetized in 1873 wool began to go down, and now a protective duty of 109 cents on the pound would not bring it up again until silver is fully restored to its place as money. Tariff duties avail nothing when there is no money Tariff duties with which to buy the product.

This would be a beautiful argument if it were true, but alas, the Telegram man is full of prunes. The highest price wool ever reached in The Dalles was in 1876, when it brought 55 cents a pound. In 1870, "when there was no protection on wool, but when there was unlimited milver coinage," wool was down to 18

Even that notorious free trade champion, the New York Evening Post, realizes where the shoe pinches, and it is candid enough to say: "Fewer men are earning wages, and the wages earned are smaller. Profits, too, are diminishing, and what is saved is more cautiously guarded. But when the depression is caused, not by actual loses in the past, but merely by apprehension as to the future, there is no reason why the removal of apprehension should not restore business to a normal basis." The Post appreciates the situation to a nicety. Let the present administration give notice that the protective tariff is not to be disturbed and the existing apprehension will at once be removed and business restored to the normal basis it has enjoyed for so many years under republican rule.

Hard times does not deter THE CHRON-ICLE from being enterprising. Believing that the readers of its weekly edition would be better served by sending out the news printed in the early part of the week, it now issues the weekly in two parts, so that the people will get them Wednesdays and Saturdays. It is virtually a semi-weekly, and is almost double the value of a weekly alone. That our efforts to please are appreciated is shown by the already increased number of subscribers. Some of the

THE CHRONICLE was established for the express purpose of faithfully representing The Dalles and the surrounding country, and the satisfying effect of its mission is everywhere apparent. It now leads all other publications in Wasco, Sherman, Gilliam, a large part of Crook, Morrow and Grant counties, as well as Klickitat and other regions north of The Dalles, hence it is the best medium for advertisers in the Inland Empire.

The DAILY CHRONICLE is published every evening in the week Sundays excepted at $6.00 per annum. The WEEKLY CHRONICLE on Fridays of each week at $1.50 per annum.
