Senator Stewart represents a state whose entire white population is less than half of the city of Portland, the figures being 37,051. One hundred cities in New York state alone exceeds Nevada's population. Senator Stewart represents a very small clique in comparison to any of our territories, and yet he is howling a tune to suit his handful of constituents, to the detriment of the balance of the country which are as 2,000 to 1. He aims high too. If he cannot have his way he wants to impeach the president. In the last week the skin of the lion has sagged considerably, and his ears are now plainly visible.

It has been incontrovertibly shown, says the Spokane Review, that wages here are from 75 to 80 per cent. higher than the wages paid in Europe, and the notion has also been demolished that the American workman performs a great deal more labor in a day than is performed by his foreign competitor. The European operative works longer hours, and is under the constant supervision of the hardest kind of task-masters. Now that the excitement and buncombe of a presidential campaign have subsided, the American people are taking a practical view of this question. In the presence of innumerable silent factories they comprehend the cold truth that prices cannot be further lowered unless wages shall be reduced to the European level. The workman now understands what he ought to have known last November—that the American market can not be surrendered to the European manufacturer and at the same time be preserved for the American workman. The silent factories cannot be set humming with industry by throwing open the gates to foreign competition. And the American agriculturist can not find a profitable home market among several million unemployed workmen, nor even among workmen whose wages have been scaled down to the European level.

The Welcome exposes the facts concerning the failure of Astoria to secure railroad connection to Portland. It appears that the money for the proposed line has been twice available, through the influence of Col. Pat Donan in introducing Astoria representatives to Mr. A. L. Blackman of New York, president and chief engineer of the original Nicaragua Canal Company. Blackman has a strong pull with Mr. John Hudson, a London broker of world-wide acquaintance and influence, who commands almost unlimited capital and influence. In the first instance the Astoria trustees allowed themselves to be persuaded that P. P. Dickinson and J. H. Hammond were the backers of Blackman, railroad men of position, but without credit financially. But they did not know the latter fact and believed themselves smart in dropping Blackman and treating with Dickinson and Hammond directly; then Blackman dropped them. The second failure was much the same. Last September W. H. Remington got an option in the franchise and land subsidies of the old Astoria and Portland concern. He happened to meet Donan in New York, and singularly enough both Blackman and Hudson were also in the city. Introductions took place and the project was revived again, resulting in the pledge of Mr. Hudson to furnish the $2,500,000 necessary to build and equip the road. Remington tried to speculate on Blackman's resources again, and becoming disgusted the capitalist forsook the scheme again, leaving Remington in the soup. Mr. Hudson, writing to Mr. Blackman, under date of May 27th, says: "It seems to me that Astorians will never get a capitalist to put a dollar in this line till all the present generation of Astorians and Oregonians generally have died off, as all hold the legal right to control the building of the road, subsidies and all."

MAKING A NAME.

Something About Titles of Honor Among the Europeans.

In the old world distinguished men are often honored, or supposedly honored, by being given titles of nobility; but it sometimes happens that the recipient of the honor does not value it highly. Recently the famous Italian musical composer, Giuseppe Verdi, whose name in English would be plain Joseph Green, read in the papers that he had been "created" marquis of Busseto. The composer literally leaped for his pen, and wrote the following note to the minister of public instruction: "I read in the Perseveranza that I have been appointed a marquis. I beg you to do everything in your power to prevent this appointment from taking effect. I may be remembered hereafter, but I shall be remembered much more if I am not made a marquis."

Verdi is said to have expressed the opinion that, after having spent sixty years in making the name of "Green" illustrious, it would be rather hard luck to lose it for the unknown designation of the marquis of Busseto.

Not long ago Prince Bismarck, who might easily have passed for the most famous man in Europe, was dismissed from power by the young Emperor William. At the same time he was created duke of Lauenburg.

He did not like Verdi, refuse the honor, but accepted it with the sarcastic remark that the title given him by the emperor would be "a handy thing for him to have when he wanted to travel incognito."

One great European statesman, Mr. Gladstone, might have been an earl or a marquis long ago if he had not preferred to remain a "Mr." His fame, the world acknowledges, would be less if he had exchanged his name, as his great rival Disraeli did, for a title of nobility.

Really to have a great name, one must have made it himself. To inherit such a name is a good thing, but to make it is much better.

WINANS

THE NEW TOWN has been platted on the old camp ground, at the Forks and Falls of Hood river, with large, slightly lots, broad streets and alleys, good soil and pure water, with shade in profusion, perfect drainage, delightful mountain climate, the central attraction as a mountain summer resort for all Oregon, being the nearest town to Mt. Hood. It is comparable as a manufacturing center, being the natural center for 100 square miles of the best cedar and fir timber, possessing millions of horse power in its dashing streams and water falls, easily harnessed. Where cheap motive power exists, there the factories will center, surrounded by soil and climate that cannot be found anywhere for fruit and agriculture, and with transportation almost everywhere you will find this the place to make a perfect home or a paying investment.

See me on the ground, address me at Hood Falls, Wasco County, Oregon.
