OCTOBER OLIO.

A Savory Mess From Miscellaneous
News Bits.

A man with a nature naturally vain
Will sometimes follow a notion
To swing himself on a passing train
When the same is nearly in motion.
And when he arises, hopping mad,
From where he tumbled and shaken,
His smile is as false as the one he had
At the time his picture was taken.

Threshing is going on at Dufur today.
The ground is thoroughly soaked for a depth of sixteen inches.

A Washington toy dealer advertises:
"Our drums can't be beat."

Attorney H. H. Riddell will wield the faber on the Mountaineer in the absence of Editor Mitchell.

Merchants desiring to make exhibits at the fair will be charged nothing for space in the pavilion.

Messrs. Burns & Nolte shipped three cars of cattle from Saltmarsh & Co.'s stock yards to the Sound markets this morning.

Eliza S. Pratt, wife of H. A. Pratt, a former resident of The Dalles, died in Hood River valley Sept. 30th, at the age of 56 years.

Three and a third inches is a very heavy fall of rain. The skies are clearing and we are reasonably certain of good weather all through fair week.

Secretary Mack informs THE CHRONI-CLE that owing to the late inclement weather the time for making stock entries for premiums will be extended till Thursday morning.

Mr. T. C. Fargher left this morning with several men to drive out a band of sheep he has near Mt. Adams to Ellensburg, Wash., where they will be shipped to eastern markets.

Wheat in stack will be a total loss, except that which was stacked carefully.
As the average Oregonian has never had to consider danger from this source the damage will apply to most of it.

Remember Herr Aamold on the 13th
at the M. E. church. He is a violinist second to none that has ever appeared in The Dalles. Reserved seats can be secured after tomorrow at Snipes & Kin-ersly's.

The eclipse appeared today, as per agreement, and was observed by many during the noon hour. Jupiter Pluvius kindly drew aside for a little while the cloud curtains obscuring the sky and there old Sol was with a piece missing, as our satellite came in line with the earth's range of vision.

It was a strange sight today, to see a truck stuck in the mud in this city in October but such was the case. Mr.
Cathcart was hauling a load of freight through the alley, near the rear of the Fitzgerald brick ruin, and one of his hind wheels dropped down to the hub in the soft earth, so much so as to require assistance to pull his truck load out.

An Unprecedented Storm.

This section was visited by the heaviest and most severe rain storm since last Thursday night that ever was experienced in this country so early in the season. The storm seemed to come from the southwest and began about 8:30 Thursday night and continued, with a slight cessation of a couple of hours, until 2:30 yesterday afternoon, when the clouds began to lift and now and then a patch of clear sky was discernable, which betokened a clearing up and partly fair weather. The rain gauge recorded 3.37 precipitation for a period of 66 hours of storm. One singular fact in relation to the heavy rain, the streams scarcely felt the influence of the down-pour. The river rose slightly, but was clear of wash or anything of a coloring nature.

A Young Folks Party.

A party was given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. J. T. Peters at her residence in honor of two little visitors, Wilson and Genevieve Mays. Despite the rain outside, there was mirth indoors as the little people played the games so full of pleasure to them. A delicious lunch was served and each child was on its best behavior. The afternoon went all too quickly, and when the party broke up it was the individual opinion of each guest that they had had a merry time. Besides the guests of honor, Genevieve and Wilson Mays, there were present: Emily Crossen, Edith Sutcliffe, Minnie and Clara Groehler, Helen Hudson, Bessie Luckey, Ray Eunnell, Earl and Carl Rinehart, Linden Garretson, Harold Thompson, Adelbert Moody and Willie Pease.

To Extend the Time.

The following is the text of the bill introduced by Mr. Ellis on Sept. 28th: By it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, That section three of an act entitled "An act to forfeit certain lands heretofore granted for the purpose of aiding in the construction of railroads, and for other purposes," be, and the same is, amended so as to extend the time within which persons in possession of lands forfeited by said act shall be permitted to purchase the same, in the quantities and upon the terms provided in said section, at any time prior to January 1st, 1897.

Tossing a Chinaman.

Sunday afternoon the loiterers along Second street were amused by seeing a Chinaman chasing a small boy up the street and through devious alleys and by paths. The Chinaman in turn was followed by a crowd of small boys hallooing. The boys had teased the Chinaman till enraged he sought to take out a merited revenge, and if he had caught the youth all might not have gone well with him. During the fracas a window in Haworth's printing shop was broken by a missile throw by one of the boys. Each generation of boys The Dalles produces contains a generous share of hoodlums.

In response to the solicitation of a goodly number of citizens of The Dalles I have decided to make this my home for the winter, at least, and hereby offer my services to those who are interested in music as instructor in both vocal and instrumental music. Am prepared to use French, Italian or German methods. Can give the very best of references. For terms and particulars as to time and place, call at the residence of Mr. C. E. Bayard or Mr. Geo. W. Rowland.
MISS CLARE A. MOORE.

A Menace to Human Life.

A very dangerous deadfall exists on Union street at the rocky cut. If no one is killed before the rocks quit sliding it will be providential. Shortly after noon today a ton or more of rock came down in the same place as the Saturday cave-off and littered the sidewalk. There are two places where the cliff overhangs the sidewalk yet more dangerous, and should it fall would bury the sidewalk several feet deep. Seams in the rock slant downward at a precipitous angle and there is apparently nothing to hold them in place. There are school children passing this dangerous cliff almost continually, and should one or more of them be killed, the general verdict would be criminal carelessness. Instead, therefore, of tempting providence any further, the city council should immediately order this danger removed. It is a continual menace to life, and casually to the city's exchequer.

Mr. B. S. Huntington and others returned from Moro Saturday evening, where they have been in attendance at the district court. Mr. Huntington remarked that he experienced one of the worst days' travel in his life, for the heavens turned loose its aqueous gates with seeming vengeance, which was terrific, made so by high, piercing wind, which was so severe that umbrellas were nowhere, and they were compelled to take it without stint or remonstrance.

BEATEN AGAIN.

The Vigilant Beats the Valkyrie in the Triangular Race.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(Special to THE CHRONICLE.)—The Valkyrie crossed the line at 11:25 and five seconds later the Vigilant followed her. This is the triangular race, the second in the series of five international races for America's cup. The Valkyrie took the lead by four lengths, which she maintained until 11:20, when, the wind freshening, the Vigilant passed her and at 12:30 was one-eighth of a mile ahead. When the starting point was again reached she came in winner by two good miles. During the race there was a strong wind blowing and the hopes of the British contingent received a cold dampener, as they believed, in common with many Americans, that the conditions were favorable for Lord Dunraven's yacht. The Vigilant has so far proven the superior at every point.

SOME JAPANESE CUSTOMS.

Usual Accompaniments of the Native When Out of Doors.

In Japan almost everyone, says the Waverly Magazine, carries a lantern. By day and night it is dangling at his belt. It resembles a thin, flat box. Each end of the box is fastened to a sort of paper, which, lying in folds, forms, when drawn out, a lantern. The Japanese usually carries also a tiny wooden box, shaped like a cylinder, to hold his candle. A small medicine-chest, with half a dozen little boxes, each containing a small portion of medicine, a fan, a pipe and a short sword, all form part of the outfit. The belt of a Japanese is, therefore, a very important part of his dress.

His slippers consist of a sole with a worsted thread at the upper end, through which the great toe is thrust to keep the slipper on. His pillow is a framework of whalebone, or some such substance, into which the back of the neck near the head fits. This is to keep his knot of hair in order, for he does not have his hair dressed every day; and, therefore, is obliged to take care of the piece, which is greased and bound into a one, the rest of the head being closely shaven.

The rich Japanese send their children to school in inferior garments, in order that the children of the poor may not be ashamed to wear their shabby clothes.

Water Level of Two Oceans.

When the Panama canal was first proposed, there was a great cry about the dangers courted in opening up such a "flood," some extremists declaring that "lives of millions of human beings were at stake." This general alarm was caused by the argument that the waters on the Pacific side of the Isthmus were hundreds of feet higher than were those on the Atlantic side, and that the great rush of water to even up the difference in the level of the two oceans would drown all Southern America and most of Mexico and Yucatan. Would-be engineers and sensational editors passed their opinions or wrote editorials on the subject. It now transpires, as a result of actual survey, that the Atlantic and not the Pacific is the higher of the two oceans, and that in fact the difference being hundreds of feet, as had been affirmed, the surface of the water on the east side of the Isthmus is exactly six and one-half feet higher than it is on the western side.

Moslem Graves.

When once filled in a Moslem grave is never reopened on any account. To remove the faintest glimpse of it being thus defiled a cypress tree is planted after every interment, so that the cemeteries resemble forests more than anything else.
