OCTOBER OLIO.

A Savory Mess From Miscellaneous
News Bits.

The man that hails you "Tom or Dick,"
And swears by thumps upon your back, How he seems your merits, Is such a good fellow, I one had need be very much at fault indeed, To pardon, or to bear it.

Now is an elegant time to advertise and it ought to be continued till New Year.

A new roof is being put on the old Snider restaurant, next to the Cosmopolitan hotel, to save the plastering.

Foster McKeon, a young man who was here last spring selling a patent shurn, has recently been elected city marshal of Perry, a new town of 6,000 inhabitants in the Cherokee Strip. He is also a deputy U. S. marshal.

The third race between the Vigilant and Valkyrie was to have been sailed tomorrow, but is postponed till Thursday, to enable the Vigilant to repair a spar which was strained in yesterday's race.

Ed. Gibson appeared before E. Shutz this morning, charged with striking a Frenchman, an employe of the Union Pacific road, with a pistol Saturday evening on Front street. Gibson pleaded not guilty and the case was postponed till 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Mr. Jenkins, formerly of Grand Dalles, has begun work on his corset factory above the bluff. At present he is using a residence building for a factory. He has more orders than he has been able so far to fill. A few more rustlers like him in this city would be very acceptable.

Workmen are now engaged at the Union street cut, throwing down the rock in danger of falling. It is a wise precaution. The council proposes to widen the street out to its proper limits, and move the crusher to the scene, which is another wise action.

Lon Stevens, the expressman, lately employed at the flouring mills, is mis-employed and no one here knows his whereabouts or the reason for his absence.
He was last seen about 3 o'clock yesterday morning going toward the depot through the alley between First and Second streets.

A whist club of forty members have made arrangements for a good time this winter and each evening some member will entertain the others with all the requisites to make the season enjoyable.
Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilson will entertain on the first assembly of the club.

W. W. Hindman, a young attorney of La Grande, has just returned from the Cherokee Strip. He was there in the rush on September 16th, and says the numbers of disappointed people there are immense. There were fully 1,000 attorneys there, who were doing work in their line for almost nothing. Land papers were frequently made out for ten cents.

A sheriff's trial is in progress this afternoon before deputy sheriff Phirman and a jury of six men to try the right to a lot of hay which was attached by the sheriff in a suit wherein John L. Thompson was plaintiff and I. V. Howland defendant.

Mr. John Pashek has just received a fine assortment of foreign cloths of the latest patterns and we also noticed a new fashion plate, which represents the fall and winter styles for gentlemen's wear. One thing noticeable is the long cutaway skirt which reaches below the knees. The Prince Albert frock suit is even longer than the conventional styles.
In overcoats they are longer than they have been worn for years.

There are quite a number of young law students in The Dalles this winter, and they have banded together in a class for "quizzing" purposes. A meeting was held last night and was attended by five young gentlemen of legal tastes. Questions were asked on international law and much profit derived.
It would be a source of benefit to themselves and pleasure to others if the young gentlemen would hold some moot courts during the winter to which their friends might be invited.

Two small boys engaged in a fight on the streets recently to settle the question of the championship of the town "among the kids." It was said to be a very gamey affair, lasting over an hour, and the demoralizing event was watched by fifty or more men. Every little while the contestants would stop to take a drink of water from the Epworth fontain and wash the blood from their faces. The fight ended in a draw.

Mr. C. J. Hays of Hood River was in town yesterday proving up on his homestead. While here he had a number of troublesome teeth pulled and thus or something else made him so grateful that he paid arrears on his subscription for two years past and ahead up to the glad some new year, 1896. The Chronicle has no reason to complain of the financial stringency and anyone wishing to see a $5 gold piece may view the curiosity by applying at this office before sundown tonight.

THE FAIR OPENS.

A Fine List of Exhibits—Cora J. Wins
the Quarter Mile Dash.

The fifth annual meeting of the Second district fair began today. The weather, which has been rainy and threatening for several days, cleared away and the sun shone in a fairly decent manner.
The track was in a superb condition, the rain having made it solid, and the upper crust being dried by this morning's sunshine. The attendance was not large—in fact it was exceedingly small, there being at a safe estimate not over one hundred and fifty on the grounds.

Tomorrow we hope for better. The first race run was a quarter dash; purse $100.
Entries were Cora J. owned by McAtee, Rockland Boy owned by McNerny, Siretta owned by Mack and Hot Stuff owned by Boynton. Cora J. was the favorite in the pools though on the outside Siretta was expected to win. The pool buyers were right, however, for Cora J. won by little more than a neck, Hot Stuff second, Rockland Boy third and Siretta last; time 24 1/2 seconds. It was one of the prettiest races ever run on these grounds; the horses had a good start and each jockey rode to win. We go to press too early to catch the second race.

During the forenoon a CHRONICLE reporter made a tour of the pavilion.
Although it was early in the day and farmers from out of town had not time to arrive, many exhibits were already in place and more continually arriving. The number and quality of the exhibits were surprising.

In the northeast end of the pavilion Herrin was busy arranging his display which is one deserving of special credit.
He occupies a space about 24 feet long by 13 feet high and the wall is lined with several hundred photographs.
Above the photographs paintings are to be hung. Mr. Herrin has shown praiseworthy efforts towards doing his share to making the fair a success and has planned his display in an elegant manner. The quality of his work is excellent. Next to Mr. Herrin is the photographic display of Earnest Drews, a young amateur of this city, who shows great skill in the manner of his work.

His sister has some very pretty paintings done by herself—those especially noticeable being a view of Multnomah falls, another of Mill Creek falls and one of Mt. Hood. The young lady shows talent, and the combined display is one of the best in the pavilion.

Joe Southwell one of Wasco's staunch farmers, has fairly moved his ranch into the pavilion. A hasty examination of the exhibit showed monstrous pumpkins, cabbages that made the table weaken and beets. He also has a very pretty exhibit of 64 different grasses and some tobacco leaves, together with Jerusalem and broom corn, all grown on his farm.

Another good display of grains is by W. J. Davidson of Endersby. He has four varieties of wheat and two of oats, besides many different samples of peas, meadow grass, etc.; also three bottles of home-made wine.

Passing to the fruit displays, the first exhibit noticed was that of Mr. L. A.
Sandox, whose place is on Mill creek.
His exhibit comprises sixty-four different varieties of apples, and occupies a table twenty feet long. Mr. Sandox' exhibit is very good, and shows to the best advantage Wasco county's superiority in the line of fruit. He also has a large vegetable display.

A. D. Bolton of Boyd has a very creditable display of apples, pears, pumpkins and squash. He has twenty-four varieties of apples, the names of some of them being unknown. There was one particularly choice apple called "late harvest," which is of pure white color and has a delicious flavor.

On the middle table Peter Mohr of Hood River has his exhibit. All that has been said of the others can be said of Mr. Mohr. He has thirty-four varieties of apples, occupying thirty-nine plates, and is one of the chief exhibitors.

All the floral displays were not yet completed at the time of this writing.
Mrs. S. B. Adams has a very full collection of plants. One especially noticeable was a water hyacinth. Lovers of flowers should ask to see this. This display comprised a handsome shrub—if that it be called—known as wedding bell, which is in bloom all the year, also pink oleanders, a century plant, snake cactus, Mexican salvia and other varieties.

Mrs. Marquis and Miss Snipes have also good exhibits; the former showing among other plants a genuine Canada thistle, and the latter displaying lilies and tube roses.

An exhibit of field and garden seeds by H. C. Bateham of Hood River is a very complete collection. He has over forty varieties. Mr. Bateham also exhibits big carrots and corn.

Mrs. Stroud has eleven varieties of home made jelly, which remind one of Keats' exquisite line "loosened syrups tinct with cinnamon."

Twenty-nine jars of jelly make an excellent display by Miss Alice Roberts.

In the dairy display Mrs. Marquis has fresh dairy butter and samples of packed butter. Geo. Snipes and Pete Godfrey have exhibits of butter. That it all looks good is needless to say.

Oscar Angel and Joe Southwell have honey combs on exhibition.

Miss Effie Adams, 11 years old, has samples of bread; one made from potato yeast, and one from hop yeast; also soda biscuits.

Edith Randall, under 10 years, exhibits samples of fruit butter.

In the ladies fancy work Miss Snipes has a very fine display, consisting of crochet work, linen tidy, fancy work, braided rug and knit shawl. She also has a display of preserved berries.

Miss Drews has pieces of crocheting and table scarfs.

Mrs. S. B. Adams has a monument of shells and mosses collected from all parts of the world.

A. A. Cown of Woodburn has an exhibit of sea shells.

Many displays are arriving continually and the pavilion will be well filled by the time the fair is under way. Mr. W.
H. Sharp, in charge of the pavilion, says more space was taken yesterday than any first day of previous fairs.
The products of the soil and samples of the skill of our neighbors will repay all the attention that can be shown them.

NOTES OF THE FAIR.

The judges this afternoon were Hon.
F. P. Mays, John Marden and G. J.
Farley.

S. B. Adams is chief marshal with George B. Reed and Jack Meins as assistants.

Chas. McIntosh and Lee McNanty tend the entrance to the fair and collect the tickets.

Pool selling was light today as the sporting men wished to know how the horses run before placing money on them.

All the space in the pavilion will be taken before tomorrow morning, so those who wish to make exhibits should hurry in their applications.

Entries in the fancy work department not noticed above include 23 pieces of fancy work by Mrs. R. E. Gibbons and fancy and Mexican drawn work by Mrs.
W. E. Garretson.

The band will play tomorrow afternoon and all succeeding days so the long waits between races will be made bearable by music. The Dalles has a good band and they are expected to be at their best tomorrow.

Tomorrow there will be a running race 1/2 mile and repeat. The entries already made are Champagne, Rockland Boy, Little Joe and Siretta. There will probably be a special race for two year olds though the entries are not named.

In the live stock exhibit already on the ground was especially noticed a pair of roosters by D. H. Roberts, a big bull by W. H. Lochhead, a Clyde stallion, weight 1760 pounds by T. W. Glavey, Jos. Haynes, of Nansene, exhibits a 17-months-old colt, weight 1250, also a mare, weight 1450 pounds and a Bellfounder stallion, weight 1390 pounds.
