APPEAL TO HUMANITY

Aid Needed for the Sufferers by the Storm.
WANT THE NECESSITIES OF LIFE
The National Red Cross Association Will Have to Feed 20,000 People for Eight Months.
NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Miss Clara Barton, president of the National Red Cross Association, sends the following communication from Beaufort, S. C.:
"The problems confronting the American National Red Cross is how to feed, clothe, nurse and shelter upward of 30,000 people for eight months; how we can feed these people, putting their weekly allowance at a peck of grits and a pound of meal for a family of seven, scarcely food enough to keep body and soul together; how we can rebuild 6,000 houses, completely or partially destroyed. Based upon a thorough investigation of 25 per cent. of our district, we will have to feed an average of 20,000 people daily for eight months, and will have to rebuild 6,000 cabins. I quote from our agents' report of one of the islands, a smaller one: 'Nine families have lost their homes; not a board from them can be found. These families are crowded into other houses. I found 20 persons living in one cabin.' The survivors are in corn cribs, under trees and brushwood, and if shelter is not quickly provided death from exposure will be inevitable. Our funds and provisions are not sufficient to last a month, and the problem that confronts the nation can only be answered by the generous people of our country. If the poor, helpless, people of these islands are not helped—not for a day, a week or a month, but eight months—the world will ring with the humiliating news that a famine exists in the United States."

A NEW ATTRACTION.

Pease & Mays Have a Good Imitation of the Ferris Wheel.
Pease & Mays' center window is worth coming miles to see. In it is a very good reproduction of the Ferris wheel in miniature. As it revolves slowly around its axle it makes a very pleasing effect, and is perhaps the best attraction yet of an attractive window at any time. It is about seven feet in diameter, the outer edges being a light frame, braced across and to the center entirely with shoe strings. Suspended from the circumference are twenty-four shoe boxes for cars, which require about half a minute for an entire revolution. The axle is mounted on two platforms, being a substantial framework much resembling that of the original Ferris wheel. The production is the work of about all the attaches of the store. The Ferris wheel, 250 feet across, is the principal attraction at the world's fair. The thirty-six carriages of this great wheel are hung on its periphery at equal intervals. Each car is 27 feet long, 13 feet wide and 9 feet high. It has a door and five broad plate glass windows on each side. It contains forty revolving chairs, made of wire and screwed to the floor. It weighs thirteen tons, and with its forty passengers weighs three tons more. The wheel, with its cars and passengers, weighs about 1,200 tons, or two and a half million pounds. The magnitude of this great weight may be understood when it is known that the 1,400 passengers, which may fill the cars, have no more effect on its speed than if they were so many flies. There are several parties in The Dalles who have rode in the Ferris wheel, and they describe the sensation as being delicious, much the same as if they suddenly found they could fly.
Pease & Mays deserve much credit for their unique imitation. It is understood they got the idea from an eastern house, but improved upon it to the extent of making the wheel revolve by means of a small electric motor, which makes all the difference in the world in the effect. They promise another novelty soon, but will give no inkling of what it will be.

NEWS NOTES.

Three-quarters of a million people attended the world's fair Chicago day.
Prince Bismarck and Ferdinand de Lesseps are both getting better.
The indebtedness of the world's Columbian exposition has been wiped out. A check calling for $1,565,310 has been made out, payable to President Mitchell, of the Illinois Trust & Savings bank, which is the trustee of the exposition bondholders.
Mrs. Marie Collins was killed by her husband, Patrick, in San Francisco Monday evening. The murdered woman employed as a janitress in a kindergarten. She was engaged at her work when she was approached by her husband, from whom she had been separated. After a few words he drew a knife and literally cut her to pieces. Collins, who is a drunken, worthless fellow, successfully made his escape.
The fireworks on Chicago day at the fair were probably the finest ever set off. No expense was spared and the magnitude of the display was appalling. Rockets were shot from every corner of the White City, and the continual shower of colored fire fell on every side. The set pieces were brilliant in the extreme. "Old Fort Dearborn," "Old City Hall," "Chicago Triumphant" were the features in front of the peristyle. The largest piece of the evening was the "Burning of Chicago," which covered an area of 14,000 square feet. It was produced in four scenes. The first illustration "Mrs. O'Leary's Cow," the second "Kicking Over the Lamp," the fire starting thence was realistic and the correct view of the burning of a city was depicted. The display closed with a picture of Chicago in ruins.

ONE MILLION LOBSTERS.

The Annual Yield of a Farm Lying On the Coast of Maine.
There is a lobster farm—or pond, as it is called—twelve acres in extent at Southport, Me. The Boston Globe describes this pond, the most successful on the coast, whence one million lobsters are shipped each year. The pond is formed by building a solid dam across a tide-water cove. This dam does not quite rise to high-water mark, but across the top is placed a fence of iron rods, preventing the lobsters from escaping. In the spring and fall business is most brisk. When the fishermen bring the lobsters to the pond, the "fish," as they are called, are hoisted to the dam, measured, and those which are more than ten and one-half inches long, the legal limit, are thrown in. If a lobster is clever his life in the pond may be long and full of joy. If he is stupid he will be fished out with a drag seine and packed in a barrel, with a piece of ice for a pillow, and sent to Boston. The seine is made of stout twine and is weighted at the bottom with a heavy chain. Along the top is a row of corks, which sustain the weight of the seine while the chain drags on the bottom of the pond. A single cast of this seine will bring up lobsters enough to fill eleven barrels. The chain as it sweeps along the bottom stirs up the lobsters, which immediately shoot backward into the slack twine. In taking them out the men wear heavy mittens, though even then they are often nipped. In the pond the lobsters are fed salt herring, men rowing about in skiffs and pitching the herring overboard. This is called "feeding the chickens," and it takes about six barrels to make a light luncheon for the flock. There are said to be a number of old hardshells in the Southport farm which for years have evaded the casts of the drag. Two of enormous size have become quite tame and crawl about in the shallow water. The age of the lobster is a debated question. The small marketable specimens are generally supposed to be from four to six years old, but some lobsters are believed to live to the green old age of twenty-five years.
