Pacific Coast Whiskers.

The Chicago Herald says the northwestern corner of the United States appears to be phenomenally prolific of whiskers. In confirmation of this statement, its Washington correspondent has been writing up the hirsute development of the septators and representatives from this section. The two Oregon senators, Dolph and Mitchell, are singled out as notable examples of whisker-growing in the northwest. Perkins of California and most of the senators and representatives from Oregon and Washington and California are cited in illustration of the beard-growing capacity of this region. In the assemblage of smooth-shaven statesmen at Washington this hirsute development is all the more noticeable. The Herald says that a wag in the press gallery looking down upon the Oregon and Washington delegation remarked: "There are several railroads concealed behind those whiskers."

MARKET REPORT.

The Local Trade Improving and Unusual Activity Noticed.

FRIDAY, Oct. 17.—There has been a fair local trade in the city the past week, with a marked improvement noticeable. The streets have assumed their former appearance of activity and an old time feeling is prevalent amongst business men. The movement of produce has had an easing effect in business circles with an accompanying disposition to reach out for larger transactions. Prices of staple merchandise continue steady. In general dry goods there is a healthy tone of trade, likewise in groceries and provisions, which with the easier financial condition, has given an assured confidence to all branches of business.

The produce market is steady with few exceptions. Eggs are dearer and very scarce, 25 cents per dozen was paid today for a small lot. The tendency is for another advance as the market is very firm. The market for A1 gilt edge butter is stiff and 60 cents per roll was paid today for some extra fine Jersey butter.

The poultry market is in a declining condition as the offerings have been more frequent. Home demand is limited and purchases are mostly made for the Portland market, which has gone from bad to worse. Turkeys are still quoted at 9 cents per pound. Ducks and geese are heavy on the market and quotations are off.

Vegetables—There is a free delivery of all kinds, and may be quoted as follows: Cabbage 3/4c per lb; potatoes, Oregon, 50¢@60¢ per sack; new onions, 1 1/4c per lb; tomatoes, 25¢@35¢ per box; green corn, 10¢ per doz; Oregon celery, 35¢@50¢. Green fruit in abundance in the market. Apples are sold at 25¢@40¢ per box and pears at 35¢@40¢ per box and quinces 4¢@5 cents per lb.

The hay market is well supplied. Timothy is quoted at $12 per ton, oat hay at $10.

Cereals—Oats are in liberal supply at 90 cts to $1 per cental. Barley is weak on the market at 65 cents per cental.

The wheat market is depressed, and while the offerings are large, sales are limited, as the markets abroad have a weakening tendency. London reports wheat cheaper to sell and the market inactive. San Francisco call boards report May deliveries weak at $1.22 1/2 per cental. Portland reports a repetition of former quotations which range from 85 to 87 1/2 per cental for Eastern Oregon and 95 to 97 1/2 per cental for valley.

The Dalles market can be said to be fairly open and quotations range from 45 to 47 cents per bushel, the latter being at the mill for Kliekikat. The Columbia wheat company quote 46 cents per bushel as the highest today at the wharf, a price within a shade of the Portland quotation on dock.

The wool market is lifeless and 8 per cent to 10 is reported as the quotation.

DEAR FOOD NOT THE BEST.

High-Priced Market Products Are Usually Not the Most Nutritious.

Prof. W. O. Atwater, writing in the September Forum, claims that the maxim "the best is the cheapest" does not apply to food. The best food in the sense of that which is sold at the highest price is rarely the most economical for people of health. The food that is best fitted to the real wants of the user may be the very kind which supplies the most nutriment at the lowest cost. Round steak at 15 cents a pound contains as much protein and energy, is just as digestible and is fully as nutritive as tenderloin at 50. Mackerel has as high nutritive value as salmon and costs from an eighth to half as much. Oysters are a delicacy. If one can afford them there is no reason for not having them, but 25 cents invested in a pint would bring only twenty-nine grams, about an ounce, of protein and 200 calories of energy. The same 25 cents spent for flour at 8¢ a barrel, or 20 cents a pound, would pay for 420 grams of protein and 13,700 calories of energy. When a day laborer buys bread at 7¢ cents a pound, the actually nutritive material costs him three times as much as it does his employer who buys it in flour at 36 a barrel.

"During my term of service in the army I contracted chronic diarrhoea," says A. E. Beneing, of Halsey, Oregon. "Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief they would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

ARRESTED FOR WHISTLING.

Reasonable Tunes Are Not Allowed in Germany.

Americans have little conception of what may constitute a reasonable offense in some of the countries of the old world which are still despotic and extremely military. There recently occurred at Barr, in Alsace, a trial which must have been very amusing to an American who might have witnessed it, if a man's liberty had not been in jeopardy.

One day not long ago, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, in the streets of Barr, a laborer, who was engaged in loading a wagon, whistled cheerfully at his work. As he was thus engaged a gendarme, or military policeman, came within hearing. The workman, apparently preoccupied, kept on with his whistling.

"I arrest you," said the gendarme, coming up and putting his hand on the workman's shoulder.

"What for?" asked the man, astonished.

"For seditious whistling. You have been whistling the 'Marsellaise'."

The "Marsellaise" being the French national air, and a revolutionary air besides, is forbidden in German Alsace.

But the workman exclaimed: "Oh, no, you are mistaken! It isn't the 'Marsellaise' at all that I am whistling, but the 'March of the Brunswick Hussars.' I used to belong to the Brunswick Hussars, and that was our regimental tune."

The gendarme, who was a German, and thought he knew one tune from another, took the workman under arrest, and in due time he was brought into court charged with disloyalty in whistling a seditious air in a public place.

Both the gendarme and the accused told their stories very confidently, and, as the workman was reputed an honest and loyal man, the court was very much perplexed between the two men and the two tunes.

In this predicament the court adjourned to the council-room adjoining, and, calling in the accused and the accused in turn, made the workman whistle the "March of the Brunswick Hussars," and the gendarme the "Marsellaise."

Each did his best; but the tunes proved in the ear of the court to be so much unlike that it was regarded as improbable that the gendarme could have been mistaken.

The accused was therefore sent to prison; but his general bearing, and, above all, his excellent whistling, had affected the court so favorably that he was sentenced to only three days' imprisonment.
