THE DALLES OREGON

STEAM SIREN'S PRANKS.

Phenomenon Due to the Refraction of Sound-Waves by Wind.

The siren at Tillamook, off the Oregon coast, has two steel trumpets and two steel boilers as big as those of a locomotive. They utter blasts of five seconds' duration at intervals of one and one-half minutes when there is a fog, and they consume one hundred and thirty gallons of water per hour. Their agonizing cries can be heard at a distance of thirty miles under favorable circumstances. Nevertheless, it sometimes happens that, while in full operation, they can not be heard at all at a distance of two miles. At the same time they will be audible at seven miles, wholly inaudible at twelve miles, and audible again at a greater distance from the rock. This curious phenomenon is due to the refraction of sound-waves by wind. It has been found that such a signal, when not heard at all on the deck of a vessel, will sometimes be loud and clear to the ear of a person ascending to the mast-head. Sometimes it is audible with great volume in one spot and completely inaudible two hundred yards away. Eighty-one sirens and other steam signals have been established by the government at a cost of six hundred thousand dollars, and are maintained at a yearly expense of one hundred thousand dollars.

A lighthouse, which it would be most desirable to connect by telegraph with the mainland, is situated on one of the Farallone islands, twenty-two miles out in the Pacific from San Francisco. The situation is the most desolate imaginable. A powerful light three hundred and sixty feet above the sea, is supplemented by a fog whistle, blown by the rush of air through a cave which forms a passage opening into the ocean. One of the many caves worn by the surf on the shore chanced to have a hole on its top, through which the incoming breakers violently expelled the air carried before them. The mouthpiece of a great trumpet was fixed to the aperture, and now the waves blow mighty blasts through the instrument, which is only silent for an hour and a half each day. In various other parts of the world are signals made by utilizing such natural orifices in wave-beaten cliffs.

"During my term of service in the army I contracted chronic diarrhoea," says A. E. Beneing, of Halsey, Oregon. "Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief they would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

DULL Times make it all the more necessary to advertise. That is what the most progressive of our business men think, and these same business men are the most prosperous at all times. If you wish to reach all the people in this neighborhood you can't do better than talk to them through the columns of the DAILY CHRONICLE. It has more than double the circulation of any other paper, and advertising in it pays big.

THE NEW TOWN has been platted on the old camp ground, at the Forks and Falls of Hood river, with large, eighty lots, broad streets and alleys, good soil and pure water with shade in profusion, perfect drainage, delightful mountain climate, the central attraction as a mountain summer resort for all Oregon, being the nearest town to Mt. Hood. It is unparalleled as a manufacturing center, being the natural center for 150 square miles of the best cedar and fir timber, possessing millions of horse-power in its dashing streams and waterfalls, easily harnessed. Where cheap motive power exists, there the manufacturing will center, surrounded by soil and climate that cannot be excelled anywhere for fruit and agriculture, and with transportation already assured you will find this the place to make a perfect home or a paying investment.
