HOPE RESTORED.

The object for which congress was specially convened, the second time since the dark clouds of civil war hung over us, was accomplished yesterday when the repeal bill passed the senate unconditionally.

"It was my purpose to summon congress in special session early in the coming September that we might enter promptly upon the work of the tariff reform, which the true interests of the country clearly demanded, which so large a majority of the people, as shown by their suffrages, desire and expect."

At the time this sentence was written there was peace on every hand, but after it had been published broadcast, troubles commenced and have continued thick and fast to the present hour.

Free silver coinage democrats and populists profess that ruin will follow in the wake of the passage of the Wilson bill, and denounce it as a gold bug measure, which is to continue the hard times and prolong the panic.

The repeal bill will be reported back to the house again. Cloture being a feature of that body it will not be appreciably delayed and the president will doubtless take more pleasure in signing it than any document ever before presented to him.

The democrats are badly split up, with little hope of harmony until the next national convention. The Associated Press will then gravely inform us of an affection among the delegates that is intense, and with a whoop and hurrah another high sounding platform will be voted that will later savor of a stale egg accidentally broken.

The profits of the great fair are fully up to expectations. The concessionaires will clear about $4,000,000. The great fair is truly winding up in glory. The paid attendance has been about 21,000,000. The Ferris wheel and old Cairo street have paid big profits.
