COWBOY DUEL IN VENEZUELA. They Loved a Little Indian Girl of the Orinoco Plains.

I witnessed a strange duel on one of President Crespo's big cattle ranches in the interior of Venezuela. Two vanqueros, or cowboys, were enamored of the same dark-eyed little Indian girl of the great Orinoco plains and they decided to settle by a duel with the lasso which of them should take her to wife. A dozen fellow vanqueros assembled to witness the fray.

The lovers, says the Florida Times-Union, soon appeared mounted on mettlesome mustangs, each with a long, powerful lariat of tough cowhide. They were both experts with the lasso, and their horsemanship was a marvel. They approached to within forty and fifty yards of each other, then began to maneuver for a deciding east. After several feints the lariat of the younger of the rivals, a handsome. sun-bronzed fellow from Carabobo, went whizzing through the air so swiftly that the eye could scarcely fol-The other sank his spurs deep into his mustang. The animal sprang forward just in time to save his master from the noose, and as he did so the second lasso rose in the air and settled around the shoulders of the man who missed, pinning his arms to his sides as in a vise. He was jerked headlong out of his saddle.

His successful rival drew him along hand over hand, half lifting him from the ground by the tenacious thong. and put a bullet square between his eyes. He then turned and rode directly to the camp where lived the cause of this barbaric scene.

She mounted behind him and he came galloping back swinging his sombrero.
