DEMOCRATIC INCONSISTENCIES.

Calhoun was in favor of protection in 1816 and 1824. He said: "Afford to industry and protection immediate and ample protection and they will not fail to give a preference to this free and happy country." In 1831, however, when he got the presidential bee in his cap, he was opposed to the principle of protection.

Mr. Clayton insisted that Mr. Calhoun should vote for the bill, which with great reluctance he did, but previous thereto he went all lengths against the protective principle, stigmatizing it as unconstitutional, oppressive to the south, an evil "inveterate and dangerous."

So incensed was Jackson at Calhoun that in his last sickness he declared that in reflecting upon his administration he chiefly regretted that he had not executed Calhoun for treason. "My country," said the general, "would have sustained me in the act and his fate would have been a warning to traitors for all time to come."

Thus it appears that for more than one hundred years the protection principle has been maintained, the only efforts to abrogate it having been made during Calhoun's efforts at nullification, and the late new doctrine announced by the Chicago platform of the democracy.

The cry of "Polk, Dallas and the tariff of 1842," and the cry of "Polk is a better tariff man than Henry Clay," was not made on the constitutionality of the tariff, but because of a demand for the reduction of duties, made by the democratic party.

It will also appear by the foregoing summary that all the predecessors of the democratic orators of the present day were in favor of protection, and none more than McKinley of Ohio, and Reed of Maine.

The fact is that the republican party, under whatever name it appeared, was always in favor of protection, whilst the democratic party was not, and now that the party has thrown off all its disguises it is more than ever necessary to use all legitimate means to turn it out of power. This ought not to be difficult to do. The people have become aroused to the incapacity of the present administration. The Hawaii question has become entangled through the operations of two or three diplomatic agents and requires a wisdom beyond that of the present administration for its solution. There is likely to be bloodshed there.

The declaration that the federal government has no constitutional power to impose and collect tariff except for the purpose of revenue only, "and that the McKinley tariff law was the culminating atrocity of class legislation" are not likely to get entire credence even in the democratic party. Many democrats do not wish to be coupled with Calhoun and nullification. The democrats of Alabama, who have iron ore and iron manufacturers to protect; lead miners of Missouri, who want protection for their lead; the coal miners of West Virginia, who compete with Nova Scotia coal, and the wool growers of Texas, Ohio, Oregon and California, all have such an interest in the protective principle that their voices will be heard when the tariff bill comes before congress. There will then be music in the air. T. A. HUDSON.

There is little strictly original matter in the president's message. He rather elude the Hawaiian matter, and brings out for periodical dusting the old tariff figure. One or two catchy novelties are introduced, and the balance of the message is chiefly made up of government documents heretofore published.

The recommendation of the president to abolish the fee system in federal courts is one of the strong points in his message. It should be favored by the adherents of all parties. There is no doubt that the present system works wrongfully often in inducing the innocent to commit crime for sake of the fees attached. It is equally certain that many a case is dragged into court that would never come up only for fees. When all officers are salaried they will not be hunting for crime, and will perform their duty under the law none the less.

Sufferers from "Gibberish Aphasia." The Edinburgh Medical Journal publishes an article which, among other things, discusses the question of the effects of brain changes on speech. A patient is mentioned who suffered from what is called "gibberish aphasia." This poor man knew as well as anybody else exactly what was going on around him. He was perfectly sane in all respects and, if his tongue would have obeyed his understanding, all would have been well. But when he began to speak nothing whatever but absolute "gibberish" would come out of his mouth. The only coherent words he could utter, and those only at times and by accident, were: "If you please, sir." Another patient, who also was sane, could not even read aloud correctly from a book when the page was open before him. When asked, for example, to read aloud the passage: "It shall be in the power of the college to examine or not to examine any licentiate," he invariably read it thus: "An the be what in the tomothar of the throthodoo to majorum." This patient recovered in due time and spoke like other people.

THE AMERICAN FARMER, which is now entering upon its 70th year, is the pioneer farmer's paper in the country. It is a large eight page paper, and contains 50 columns of the choicest agricultural and literary matter, plentifully embellished with fine illustrations. It is NATIONAL IN CHARACTER, and deals with farming and farmer's interests on broad, practical lines.

EMPLOYS THE BEST WRITERS IN THE COUNTRY.

and everything that appears in its columns is of the highest character. Every department of the farmer's business is discussed in an earnest, practical way, looking to the greatest profit and benefit to the farmer and his family. It appears on the 1st and 15th of each month, and is furnished at the low price of

50 CENTS A YEAR in advance. This makes it the cheapest agricultural paper in the country.

FARMER LEGISLATION.

During the coming year there will be an immense number of matters of the most vital interest to farmers dealt with by Congress and the Executive Departments at Washington. It is highly important that the farmers be kept promptly and fully informed as to what is being planned and done affecting them at the National Capital. They should all, therefore, take THE AMERICAN FARMER, which, being on the ground, has better facilities than any other papers for getting this information, and devotes itself to this duty. They will find in it constantly a great amount of valuable information that they can get in no other paper. THE AMERICAN FARMER and THE CHRONICLE will be sent one year for $1.75.
