Chamber of Deputies.

Over So Persons Wounded, Though It Is Not Thought Any Were Fatally Injured.

Parts, Dec. 9 .- A bomb was thrown in the chamber this afternoon, happily without fatal results. M. Marmin had been speaking from the tribune and had descended to resume his seat, when a man in the gallery above mentioned throw a bomb toward the floor. The bomb had a time fuse attached to it, for as it passed the head of Professor Lemire, deputy for flazelbruch, it exploded with a terrific report. Dense clouds of smoke and dust ascended, shutting out from view for a time those sitting in the body of the house. For a single instant the house was perfectly quiet, and then, members and others realizing what had occurred, there was the wildest excitement. The officers detailed to guard the building were the first to gain their senses. They first shut the great doors leading to the chamber, to prevent the escape of the bomb-thrower. The people in the galleries fled in wild disorder, fearing that other bombs would be thrown. They were in a state bordering on frenzy, and almost fell over each other in their wild but futile attempts to get out of the building. One lady, whom it was subsequently learned was an American, had been hit in the forehead by a piece of the casting of the bomb, and she fled with blood streaming over her face. Before the chamber adjourned a small army of nurses and physicians arrived. They took possession of the committee homes. Late tonight it was announced the agricultural journal in America. police have in custody a man who, on entering the tribune, refused to remove his overcoat when requested. The man referred to is wounded and was among the first carried out. Another mau, who attempted to evade the doorkeeper and escape from the precincts of the chamber, is also being closely watched. Some of the spectators recognize him as the thrower of the bomb and his name is Lenoir. Six suspected people who tried to escape with Lenoir are detained for examination. Lenoir recently arrived from Bordeaux, and has been un-

SALEM WANTS EVERYTHING.

THE FRENCH EXCITED Injunction Against the Location of the Asslum and Soldiers' Home.

SALEM, Or., Dec. 9 .- Proceedings are By the Explosion of a Bomb in the about to be brought enjoining the location of the branch insane asylum in Eastera Oregon and the soldiers' home at Roseburg. Papers have already been THROWN FROM THE GALLERIES drawn up, but no bond has yet been given and the papers have not been served, and it is said this evening they may not be. A large number of business men and representative citizens were interviewed today, and almost without exception all are oppos i to the injunetion. On the subject the Statesman will say editorially tomorrow:

"A new feature of the action at law is that the injunction sceks to prevent the location of a branch insane asylum at chusetts young woman who did not some site to be hereafter selected in Eastern Oregon. So far as the soldiers' home case is concerned, the supreme court has already rendered a decision showing pretty clearly the position of the court concerning this quasi-federal maid, having nobody else to leave her institution. The branch asylem injunc- fortune to, recently left it to her pet tion is another matter entirely, involv- cat. ing new questions not heretofore touched upon by the courts. It is not known what motive prompts these injunctions but they show conclusively the operation of some power whose subtle purpose will result disastrously to Western Oregon. The framers of the constitution had no purpose to prevent the location of branch state institutions at convenient points throughout the state, nor have the people of Oregon ever so construed the constitution, else several state normal schools, the state university, agricultural college | in these respects, take possession of a etc., would now be congregated at Salem. The people of Western Oregon and Salem are almost unanimously in favor of these federal and branch institutions being situated where the legislature or their several boards locate them.

MARRIAGE IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Some Reasons Why Yankee Women Have Long Outnumbered the Men.

The excess of women over men has long been a feature of the population statistics of Massachusetts, and since Mormonism is not permitted to flourish in that progressive state the natural effect of this feminine surplus has been an unusual number of old maids. The cause, says the New York Press, is probably Hornes Greeley's advice to young men on the subject of going west. The Massachusetts young man has been going west ever since, but we decline to believe that it is his fault that the Massachusetts young woman has not gone west with him. She stayed behind, not that she loved the Mussichusetts young man less, but that she loved Massachusetta more, especially Boston. But as the Massago west with the young man of Horace Greeley's day became an old maid she missed the young man. She was left to lavish the wealth of affection upon cats, birds and other pets. And thus it happened that a Massachusetts old

There are those who think the tendency of our time is toward a reduction in the ratio of marriages to the population of the marriageable. In one sense this is a result of the continual improvement in the independence and general social condition of women. Not only are they no longer the slaves of men, but they are not obliged to tie themselves to men in order to get a living. As civilization increases the number of occupations in which skill and tact and passive endurance make success, women, being often superior greater number of places and crowd men out. The tables seem to be turned against the inquiry of Miss Mona Caird: "Is Marriage a Failure?" This question caused a great deal of discussion in print a few years ago. If it is to be answered in the affirmativewhich heaven forfend-then it must also be declared, on the strength of the latest returns from Massachusetts, that singleness is a failure too. This leaves the relative merits of marriage and of singleness just where they were before Miss Mona Caird dared to prick the alleged bubble of matrimony with her pen. If an old maid who died rich was, nevertheless, no c'reans cribed in the wealth of affection and home life as to be obliged to encovered. can be said of the successof of haids who never get rich, even in money?

FOREIGN PERSONALS.

PRESIDENT RODRIGUEZ of Costa Rica has been unsuccessful in his attempt to borrow $1,000,000. He will meet with wide sympathy. PAUL DE CASSAGNAC is nearly fifty years old, but does not look his age. 'Some twenty-odd duels have left no trace on the tall, squarely built figure and dark imperious face." But then these were French duels. MISS JESSIE ACKERMAN, an English missionary, recently put on a diving dress and went down sixty feet to the bed of the ocean on the greatest pearling grounds of the world, between Australia and Singapore, where 1,300 men are constantly at work. MME. RODRIGUEZ, a noted Parisian dressmaker, died recently in a lunatic asylum. Her fame was great, and she always refused to make dresses for women with poor figures. A certain duchess had often desired to become one of her patrons, but Mme. Rodriguez invariably said: "When you have shoulders I will dress you."

Grand Duchess Serge.

Grand Duchess Serge of Russia. who, with her husband and Grand Duke Paul, has been to Balmoral on a visit to Queen Victoria, is the handsomest of the daughters of the late girl Princess Elizabeth of Hesse attrated great attention, and she was only twenty when she was married. At the queen's jubilee Grand Duchess Serge was immensely admired, while the jewels she wore at several state entertainments-they were magnificent turquoise and diamonds- ...cited universal envy. The grand duchess has no children, and it is an open secret that her married life has not been a happy one.
