THE DALLES OREGON
A CLEVER BOSTON GIRL.

Even a Chicago Hackman Was Paralyzed by Her Financial Operations.

The Chicago hackman is supposed to be endowed with a full allowance of the smartness peculiar to men in his profession, but a Boston girl is credited with getting the best of him. The hackman himself tells the story, says the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. His name is Johnson, and his business during the summer has been mainly in the service of the guests in the dormitories of the Chicago university. Johnson has run daily excursions for them through a twenty-five mile drive for one dollar.

Within two days after her arrival Johnson took the Boston young woman out as one of his morning party. She occupied the seat with him and plied him with questions. On the following day when he called for passengers Johnson noticed this Boston girl flying around in a lively way. Soon she came to him and wanted to know how much he would charge to take forty persons up to the center of town and back for an evening reception. He gave his figures, and then she went shopping.

The next day she told Johnson she could get the work done for twenty-eight dollars, and that he might as well take the job at that figure. She preferred his rigs, she said, because they looked nicer than any she had seen elsewhere. Johnson took the job and on the evening appointed the young woman marshaled out her forty people. They were in evening dress and full of gaiety. Suddenly the Boston young woman spoke out: "We may not all get together when we come back and may be very tired. Suppose I collect the fares now and be done with it?"

She did so, and each person paid her one dollar for the evening's transportation. She quickly counted out twenty-eight dollars and gave it to Johnson, and placing twelve dollars in her own purse rode to the evening's reception with a satisfied smile and a most charming affability. Three days later she did the same thing over again. As she put the twelve dollars in her purse Johnson scratched his head and said he muttered: "Well, I'll be—"

The next time he proposed a division of the spoils. She eyed him for a minute, saw that he was in earnest, gave him four dollars out of the twelve, and after that they did business on this basis. She got up sightseeing parties inside the fair, theatrical parties, lecture parties, made scores of friends, and at every move seemed to add to her purse. So well did she succeed that she had two months at the fair and went home with one hundred dollars in her pocket.

Johnson says he has traveled about a good bit, his last excursion of importance being a trip to the Park exposition, but he never saw a person who could "do up" Chicago hackmen as that Boston girl did.

GOLD IN THE SOUTHERN STATES

Improved Methods of Working Sulphurets Open a Promising Field.

There is considerable discussion just now, says the Atlanta Journal, about the prospects of gold mining in the south. It is known that there is a vast quantity of gold-bearing rock in Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. Though millions of gold have been taken out of these beds most of them have not been thoroughly worked and many of them have been merely scratched. Up to the time gold was discovered in California there had been produced in the United States $12,898,575, and all except $7,550 came from southern states.

Nearly all the previous gold mining in the south has been conducted on methods which are now obsolete. The improved methods of working sulphurets open a new prospect for gold mining in the south.

The official figures show that up to 1872 Georgia had produced $15,904,300 worth of gold, North Carolina $21,525,044, and Virginia $3,189,016. These are the official figures, but the real value of the gold product of these states has undoubtedly been much greater.

Prof. Stone, after a visit to California in 1872, said that he was satisfied that the gold ores in the south are the richest and easiest to work in this country. Recently there have been many prospectors through the gold regions of the south and we look for increased activity in gold mining in Georgia and every other southern state where there are known to be heavy deposits of gold.

Great Potato Eaters.

Contrary to the general belief that Ireland leads the world in its fondness for "potatoes," statistics show that the people of Germany and Belgium are the greatest potato eaters; the consumption in these countries annually exceeds one thousand pounds per head of population.

Mr. J. P. Blake, an extensive real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern part of Iowa during a recent blizzard, says the Saturday Review. Mr. Blake had occasion to drive several miles during the storm and was so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm, and inside of an hour after his return he was threatened with a severe case of pneumonia or lung fever. Mr. Blake sent to the nearest drug store and got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of which he had often heard, and took a number of large doses. He says the effect was wonderful and in a short time he was breathing quite easily. He kept on taking the medicine and the next day he was able to come to Des Moines. Mr. Blake regards his cure as simply wonderful. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.
