The Spokane Review says: Portland has long had two rival republican "bosses"-"Jim" Lotan and Joe Simon. Their warring factions have engaged in many a lively tilt, and the odds of battle have been pretty evenly divided. It is the Lotan crowd which is mixed up in the smuggling scandal now in the courts. Blum, the "peaching" witness, is suspected by many of being the willing tool of "Boss" Simon, and at this range it looked like the Simon crowd would "do up" the Lotan gang : but the latter knows how to fight in defense, and will probably escape from the lashes of the law, though badly smirched. Lotan, by the way, is Grover Cleveland's "double." He resembles the president in face, figure and actions. So close is this resemblance that nothing could be added to Mr. Cleveland's reputation by sending Mr. Lotan to prison. One doesn't relish the knowledge that one's double in face and form has been branded as a criminal
