But the force of events have proven their logic faulty, for not only is written above Oregon's door "Abandon hope, all ye who enter here," but the manufacturers of many leading eastern states have adopted resolutions urging congress to still retain the present tariff on wool, coal, iron and other raw

As one of the results of the McKinley tariff a big establishment for the manufacture of fine cutlery will be erected by Tiffany & Co., of New York, at Forest Hill, New Jersey. It will be completed next spring and will give employment to 350 hands. The manager of Tiffany & Co., in speaking of the project to manufacture cutlery said: "Heretafore we have been compelled to accept such goods as the foreign manufacturers were content to give us, but under the present protective tariff we will try to make articles more suitable for use in this country." This one factory will give support to more than 1,500 people. The money which will be expended for the products of the establishment will be kept in the United States instead of being sent to Europe.
