DECEMBER DOTS.

Spicy Newslets Garnered from a Reporter's Note Book.

They talk about a woman's sphere as though it had a limit. There's not a place in earth or heaven. There's not a task to mankind given. There's not a blessing or a woe. There's not a whisper, yes or no. There's not a life, or death, or birth. That has a feather's weight of worth. Without a woman in it.

Country roads are in a worse condition than for years.

A marriage license has been granted to Clem R. Egbert and Miss Clara Allen.

A valuable horse belonging to Lieut. Benjamin broke his neck while being shod at Gunning & Hockman's blacksmith shop today.

The masquerade ball of the Jackson Engine Co. will be a decided success, judging from the number of tickets sold. A royal time is assured all who attend.

Mr. Miller, the father of the lost child, visited Newark, Ohio, but found that the child detained by the detectives at that place was not his daughter Alma.

Mr. H. E. Moore of Tygh Ridge is feeding 200 beef cattle on damaged wheat. The stock is thriving and Mr. Moore is very well pleased with the prospect.

There will be the largest pigeon shooting match on Monday, New Year's on the beach opposite the city ever had in this section. The shooting will begin in the morning at 10 o'clock. There will be about 500 pigeons shot for.

The closing out sale of the Frank Vogt stock will begin at 10 a. m. on Saturday, the 30th inst., at public auction and will be held throughout the

The old engines of the electric light plant on the hill were shipped today to Portland.

A. LeRoy, D. D., who lectures here Monday evening on "A Peculiar People," is a very gifted orator, as many here know who have heard him before. It is a free lecture and all will have a chance to listen to him.

Owing to the long railway jump between Portland and Salt Lake city, Miss Davenport is compelled to close her engagement with the performance tonight. Hence the Saturday matinee will be canceled, and tonight's performance will be "Cleopatra."

The meeting of the teachers' association was concluded at Portland last evening. Those in attendance from Wasco county were Mrs. E. M. Wilson, Miss Mary Frazier, Mr. P. A. Snyder, Mr. Troy Shelley, Prof. Gilbert and Prof. Gavin.

The president of the city board of charities informs the Salem Democrat that there are not to exceed twenty-five destitute families in Salem. It is manifest that the governor has made some mistake in his figures when he claims that one-third of the people of Oregon are destitute.

The darkness which pertains to Ninth street is soon to be dissolved. An electric light will shine from tonight at the corner of Ninth and Pentland streets, and the benighted pedestrian will have more of a chance to discriminate as to the relative softness of the mud which plasters that thoroughfare.

About fifty little folks, children of the Episcopal church, had a royal good time yesterday afternoon in the hall over THE CHRONICLE office, being a party given by the ladies of the church. They were under the supervision of Mrs. Davis, Miss Lang and others, who directed the games, and were allowed for once to make all the noise they wanted to. They improved the opportunity and the rosy cheeks and bright eyes of the little ones attested to the pleasure they had had in a way best suited to their tastes.

Mr. Lionel Stagg, national bank examiner, has taken charge of the Oregon National bank as receiver, and will on Jan. 2, remove all the books and effects of that institution to the Oregonian building. Mr. Stagg will at once start in to collect all accounts due the bank. The principal depositor to the Oregon National is the county, and the money now due said bank must be collected, as the receiver will have to pay as soon as possible this money over to the county officers.—Commercial Review.

A SUGGESTION.

Why Not Finish up the Streets as the Work Proceeds.

The city council are doing a splendid work on Second street and are undoubtedly taking a great deal of pains to make a good job of it. It is probable, too, that they receive many suggestions as to the best manner of doing the work, which if they would try to follow would land them in the insane asylum. But in the general amount of advice which is so kindly and freely volunteered them THE CHRONICLE suggests that they finish their work as they proceed. We notice that the street crossings are left as they always have been, and that mud is being continually dragged up on the new work from adjacent streets. It is a good principle in all jobs, wherever practicable, to finish the work as it progresses, and that is what they are doing at the Cascade Locks. If we could have two completed squares of good street now which will divert the water as fast as it accumulates, and present a good, flat dry surface, we are sure that everyone would appreciate the value of the work being done, there would be no complaints and the council would fairly revel in the favorable opinion of the whole community.

Institutions of Learning.

PORTLAND, Or., Dec. 28, 1893.

TO THE CHRONICLE:—During the past three days the educators of the state have been assembling at the high school building.

The State Teachers' association and the College association were both in session at once. While the former has been occupied in discussing topics relative to the best methods of instructing, the latter has been doing a no less important work in strengthening and broadening higher education in Oregon. Aside from the literary and musical features of both day and evening programs, the lectures from the leading college professors were exceedingly entertaining and instructive, as well as highly beneficial in their influence. Besides eliminating the defects in the state system of education, it is the constant aim of the college association to bring advanced learning within the reach of those who think they have enough when they have completed the grammar school. As it is, only about one youth in ten in Oregon is getting what he could have and should have in the way of schooling to make him an accurate thinker and an influential leader in our body politic. Like Mohammed and the mountain if the masses will not go to college, the college is going to the masses; and this is university extension. The professors of the eleven colleges and five state normal schools of Oregon are now in stronger sympathetic touch than ever before. Each school is ready to help every other. An injury to one is an injury to all. A defect in one is a defect to all. These facts are now beginning to be realized, and Oregon is ready to step into line with eastern states in perfecting her system of education. QUIDAM.

HAPPY NEW YEAR TO EVERYBODY.

Christmas is over. We are glad we did what we could to make it a holiday worth remembering. It is not for us to say aught of our success. Let the HUNDREDS who thronged our store and carried thence the many bundles that gladdened so many homes and hearts; let the people to whom every dollar means a hundred hard-earned cents; let all to whom we were a Santa Claus in deed and truth--- let these say whether or not we succeeded.

NOW FOR NEXT YEAR PEASE & MAYS.
