JANUARY JOTTINGS.

Minor Events Which Pertain to City and Country.

The good, old farmers, as a rule, belong to the "tetototaler" school; but 'tis a sorry thought to think they often drive their stock to drink.

City council meets tonight. The county board of commissioners is in session.

Snow covered the upper half of the Klickitat hills this morning and is gradually approaching our level.

The ladies of the St. Paul's guild are arranging to have Hon. D. P. Thompson deliver a lecture some time next week if nothing happens, on Turkey.

The school district had money enough on hand to pay off teachers salaries, so that they will not be compelled to wait till all school taxes are paid.

Hon. Geo. W. Harper of Carrollton, Ga., the newly appointed agent of the Umatilla reservation to succeed Mr. Crawford, has arrived at the scene of his labors.

A change has taken place in the ownership of the Pendleton Tribune, the plant and good will having been purchased by a company of journeymen printers, viz: George F. Halsey, Clarence Macdonald, Garry L. Judson and John P. McManus.

Tramps are used to work on the streets whenever they are available, but this is not often. The Dalles is the freest town of tramps on the Pacific coast, and when Mayor Krefl comes down every morning and anxiously inquires of the recorder if there "are any in jail this morning," his features more often express disappointment than elation.

The decision as to the location of the insane asylum was to have been made today. Whatever the result, THE CHRONICLE is satisfied as to the purity of the motives of the commission, whose honesty it will never question. They have a peculiarly disagreeable duty on hand, in that whatever the decision is it is almost sure to anger and prejudice other competitors. The Dalles can afford to be manly and generous, even if the decision proves adverse to its hopes.

Capt. Lewis is almost continually in receipt of letters from people in the east asking about the features of Wasco county, which he cannot reply to for lack of time. There should be a large number of pamphlets printed descriptive of this section. We are sadly in need of the advertising actually demanded,

ONE OF THE BAD KIND.
But the Forces of Civilization are Yet Stronger than Outlawry.

John Hull, murderer of Cummings, is that sort of an individual who is often represented as the hero in the literature of the dime novel order, and consequently the ideal of the small boy reader of those works of stirring fiction. Now that he has wound up in the un-Beadle like position of a man to be tried for murder and the occupant of a strong cell in Wasco county jail, such boys may awake to a true realization of how these bold bad men, who are dextrous with the use of a revolver and bowie, are viewed by society at large.

Hull, according to his own story, told in a mock heroic style to Deputy Sheriff Phirman, was born in Texas, and was raised in "Missouri." He has principally followed the occupation of a freighter, and is always prepared for surprises by a liberal supply of guns and ammunition, carried in a leather belt around his waist. He was a good shot and afraid of nothing. He was interrupted at this point in his story by Mr. Phirman politely asking him to remove his shoes.

"Sir," said the astounded prisoner with the air of one who wishes to impress his questioner that he has made a mistake, which he is liable to answer for with his life.

"Take off your shoes!" repeated Mr. Phirman, with a little more command in his tone.

"What for?" insisted Hull, but beginning to weaken.

"Take 'em off," said Mr. Phirman for the third time, and the look of the eye which Hull met convinced him that the deputy really wanted them off. That was all, the test of strength had been made, without a violent movement, and the prisoner meekly took off his shoes, and after an examination of all his clothing, submissively followed the officer to the cell awaiting him.

The thirty-two years of life among a rough element where the acme of education is to be "handy" with a revolver availed nothing to Mr. Hull after he had committed a crime, and in the foregoing tale lies a moral which boys who read yellow-backed novels instead of history and good books may well heed.

PARIS FASHION BITS.

TABLERS, tunics and overshirts are a foregone conclusion.

BRADING is again in high favor on skirts, redingotes, capes, sleeves, coats and bodices.

New velvet Spanish and zouave jackets are finished with ruchings of cream-colored guipure.

FRENCH designers use red and green shot velvet to trim brown bengaline, cheviot and Scotch tweed gowns.

RED serge, camel's hair or sacking dresses are combined with black watered silk and trimmed with many rows of very narrow jet gimp.

GERANIUM red bengaline for vests on black gowns is a fashionable freak that will have a cheerful effect when the cheerless days of winter set in.

GRANITE and armor weaves in two colors, but not changeable, are among the late importations. They are in cheviot finish and are exceedingly soft and pliable.

LEATHER shades, gold, yellows, russets, light olives and sapphire, swallow, peacock and drakes' neck blue are among the most fashionable colors of the season.

A Peculiar People.

A. LeRoy, D. D., as promised, lectured last evening on "A Peculiar People." As the speaker announced in his opening remarks, it proved to be a peculiar lecture. Nevertheless it was a lecture, and in it were said many wise things. Mr. LeRoy is something of an artist, also, and the lecture was illustrated with paintings of peculiar people whom he had met, among them Hulda Lewis, Boss Tweed and the Veiled Murderess, all of national good or bad repute. The three eccentric governors were the object of some keen shafts from Mr. LeRoy. Referring to Penoyer he said he was a great man in some respects, but with the privilege of the audience he would exhibit a grater. He then unwrapped a package and exhibited a tin grater, purchased from one of our hardware stores. Mr. LeRoy has changed his opinion of the governor since the latter's desertion of the democratic party.

Close of Fairfield School.

The eight months' term of Fairfield school closed on Friday, December 22d, with a public examination, at which all the school officials and several of the parents were present.

The following pupils were awarded prizes for improvement in penmanship: Sadie Young, Nora Bolton, Arthur Gilbreth, Willie Gilbreth and Alida Hermans.

On Saturday evening following a Christmas tree and entertainment was held at the schoolhouse, and songs, recitations and tableaux were rendered by the pupils and others. At the conclusion, the tree, which was loaded with prizes and presents for the pupils and others, was despoiled of its treasures by a deputy of Santa Claus, and the audience, numbering about 100, dispersed in high good humor.

much less ventured. However, if the eastern readers of THE CHRONICLE will follow the advertisement on the fourth page for a year they will gain a very good knowledge of what this country holds out to the settler.

A party from the Cascades informs us that it is apparent to everyone that an extension of time will have to be asked to complete the work, for it is impossible to finish it by the time stipulated. He believes that the extension will easily be granted.

What Is Killing the Calves?

Mr. Robert Mays is alarmed about the mysterious disease which is killing off his calves. Out of a herd of 200, which are in a pasture supplied with every convenience and capable of accommodating twelve times the number now in the pasture, over a dozen have died and are still dying at about the rate of one a day. This stock is fat and seemingly have every comfort, but the disease kills them in a few hours, and they die without a struggle. He left this morning for Tygh Valley and will try a change of pasture, but is nonplussed, and does not know what measures to adopt to stop the ravages of the strange and fatal ailment.

Be sure to come and enjoy a treat. Commences at 8 o'clock sharp.

FISH AND SNAKE YARNS.

UNCLE EPH PLUNKETT, of Mirabella Falls, Tex., has taught a rattlesnake to shake his tail to music.

THREE THOUSAND salmon, it is claimed, were landed by Samuel Goodwin with one haul of a net near Port Angele, Wash., recently.

Mrs. O. P. PAYNE, of Gainesville, Ga., killed thirteen rattlesnakes in the lot around her home, with a piece of fence rail, a few days ago. They averaged about two feet in length each.

An old Maine fisherman has been living in a dory all summer, cruising about Penobscot bay catching and curing fish. He has camped in rough fashion on the islands, hasn't slept in a bed since last May, and avers he has had a very fine time.

ONE curious result of the hurricane that struck the southern coast recently was the killing of quantities of fish. For many days after the storm the coast around Savannah and throughout the stretch where its force was most vented was strewn with dead fish of all kinds.

POISONOUS snakes are so numerous in Venezuela that snake bite is almost as common there as in India. But there are fewer fatalities, for the natives have discovered that a plant known as the oemillio, when powdered and applied to the wound, results in a cure in almost every case.

NATIONAL IN CHARACTER, and deals with farming and farmer's interests on broad, practical lines. It and everything that appears in its columns is of the highest character. Every department of the farmer's business is discussed in an earnest, practical way, looking to the greatest profit and benefit to the farmer and his family.

EMPLOYS THE BEST WRITERS IN THE COUNTRY,

It appears on the 1st and 15th of each month, and is furnished at the low price of 50 CENTS A YEAR in advance. This makes it the cheapest agricultural paper in the country.

During the coming year there will be an immense number of matters of the most vital interest to farmers dealt with by Congress and the Executive Departments at Washington. It is highly important that the farmers be kept promptly and fully informed as to what is being planned and done affecting them at the National Capital. They should all, therefore, take THE AMERICAN FARMER, which, being on the ground, has better facilities than any other paper for getting this information, and devote itself to this duty. They will find in it constantly a great amount of valuable information that they can get in no other paper.

FARMER LEGISLATION.
