JANUARY JOTTINGS.

Minor Events Which Pertain to City and Country.

All hail! Queen Lil. All hail! 'tis due This loud and long refrain: In fact, the prospect now for you Shows much more hail than reign. —Washington Star.

Read J. H. Cross' new ad and save money.

Mosier is afflicted with la grippe, quite a number being down with it.

The state convention of democratic clubs will be held in The Dalles on the 9th inst.

This is what Oregonians call a cold wave—Nebraskans, don't laugh at our weakness when it comes to blizzards.

Rev. A. Le Roy, who was in town a few days ago, is agent for a remedy which he says is a positive cure for la grippe.

According to the Oregonian of yesterday the decision as to the location of the insane asylum will be rendered next Tuesday.

It is understood a request has been made that the cantata, given by the Christian church Wednesday evening, be repeated.

The photographers are busy taking photographs of Chinamen. They will all register on the 8th, and the list will be larger than is generally supposed.

The county commissioners do not expect to be through with the January term before Saturday night, as there is an unusual amount of business to be transacted.

The street which is being filled between Washington and Federal is being built higher in the center than were the other squares, which THE CHRONICLE believes will prove to be wise.

Baker City is a good place for the asylum. The signal service reports the temperature was five degrees below zero at that place last night; at The Dalles twenty-four degrees above zero.

Mr. J. L. Lucky, a member of the board of equalization writes to Col. Sinnott that the Oregonian made a mistake in announcing a 20 per cent raise of values on money, notes and accounts in Wasco county and that it should be 10 per cent.

The Oregonian is making a howl against the assessment of the state board of equalization as to Multnomah county, claiming that it is ridiculously high compared to the other counties in the state. It will be interesting to watch the struggle, which bids fair to be fruitless.

A young people's whist club was organized last evening at the home of Robt. Mays, jr. Officers were elected and arrangements made to hold weekly meetings at the homes of the different members.

The New Year's edition of the West Coast Trade, published at Tacoma, Wash., came to hand well filled with illustrations of Washington scenery, etc. It is a creditable number and displays enterprise.

A party who recently arrived from Nebraska says he don't take any stock in the governor's letter to Cleveland. That there is many times more actual suffering where he came from than he has observed here. He intends to advise relatives living there to move to this state, saying that a man is better off with ten acres here than 160 there.

Last week a Bonanza young man went down to Sprague river to marry a sweet young dainsel and returned home without any buckshot holes in his coat tails. The reason why the skirts of his coat escaped being perforated like a pepper box, is because the girl's old man couldn't get a bead on him. He tried hard, but such is life in the west. Today we aim to throw ammunition where it will do the most good for God and our native land, and tomorrow we notice that the dark skirts of barbarism are still waving victoriously on the gentle gale.—Klamath Star.

The Chinese residents who adhere to the costume of their country show more wisdom than Americans this muddy season. The latter give themselves no end of trouble rolling up the bottoms of their pantaloons to escape the mud, or falling to do so, carry with them a deposit of Dalles real estate. The Chinese cut their nether garments about four inches from the ground, making up the deficit in breadth, and their white stockings and navy blue trousers always look neat and clean. Here is a chance for a small reform, since we cannot have the knickerbockers of a century ago, because the New York dudes lack some of the essentials of a proper physical development.

MARRIED.

By Rev. A. Horn, Mr. H. Peterson, of Wapinitia, with Miss Katie Wieburg, of The Dalles.

The wedding was held at Mr. L. P. Ostlund's house on Christmas eve and the house was crowded with country people of bride and groom. May the Child of Bethlehem always dwell in their heart and house, the blessed Jesus be in their midst. A. Hoar, Pastor.

A PROBABLE CHANGE.

It is Thought the O. R. & N. Co. Again Has Charge of the Road.

It is reported today that all ticket agents and conductors are to deposit money received in the First National Bank of Portland for the O. R. & N. Co., and not to the Union Pacific as formerly. Our citizens cannot help construing this as a change of management to the former company, and are overjoyed over the event. When the O. R. & N. Co. turned over their lease and property to the Union Pacific some years ago, the road bed and rolling stock were in splendid condition. Now it is virtually wrecked. Then the stock brought a high premium, something like 150, now it is down to 20. The old company will have a herculean task on its hands in refitting and rebuilding cars and track, but it starts in with the greatest good will on the part of the traveling public.

Speaking of the probability of the O. R. & N. railroad going into the hands of a receiver the Portland Telegram said a few days ago:

Should the courts set aside the lease, it is believed the road would at once go into the hands of a receiver, and the knowing ones go so far as to say positively who would be the receiver, and even to name the men who would fill the offices under him, at the head of the different departments. The slate, as it is believed to be in railroad circles, is as follows: Receiver—C. H. Prescott. General manager—R. W. Baxter. General superintendent—C. W. Johnson. General freight agent—B. Campbell. General passenger agent—W. H. Hurlbut. Comptroller—S. B. Willey.

PERSONAL MENTION.

HULL'S STORY.

Said He Killed Cummings While Defending His Property.

There were no witnesses to the Cummings murder at the Cascades, and all that can be learned is the story told by Hull himself, who has a frank way about him, apparently free from deception.

Hull says the trouble was over a couple of saws, which he owned, one of which Cummings wanted to buy. The price was to be $3 for the small one and $5 for the larger one. Cummings decided to take the $3 one and Hull boxed up the other, preparatory to ship. The buyer of the saw took it to the woods, but was dissatisfied with it and at noon both men met in the cabin. Cummings said he had decided to take the other saw, but Hull said he had decided to keep it, and now that it was boxed up he would not part with it. This angered Cummings, who said he would have it, and Hull replied that they were yet his saws, having been paid for neither, and he would do what he liked with his own property. This led to a trial of strength for the possession of the saw, and Cummings reached for a fork lying on the table, and holding it low, made a rush for Hull. The latter warned him to keep back, but on he came, and Hull reaching for his revolver, which lay on the bed beside which he was standing, pulled the trigger with fatal result.

This is Hull's story, told to two different men in The Dalles who have interviewed him at the jail, and there is no other evidence bearing directly upon the deed.

No. 8 Delayed.

No. 8, the local accommodation train, was delayed this afternoon by helping to get the steam shovel on the track, which was derailed Wednesday evening. The track was lower on one side than the other, and in some manner the shovel was overturned by the swing crane, making the center of equilibrium fall outside the track on the downward side. The falling machine also drew with it three flat cars which were attached. No injury was done the track, and trains went through as usual. The scene of the accident was about three miles this side of Hood River where it was stationed. Some of the hands were scratched and bruised, but none seriously. One of them had to jump thirty feet. The engineer remained with the falling machine, but was unhurt. He endeavored to jump, but was caught in some way, and one pants leg was neatly severed without bruising the flesh. It is expected the disabled steam shovel will arrive with No. 8.

Evening Party.

A pleasant social party was given last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Drews. Dancing and games of various kinds were the amusements, and refreshments were served at the proper time. Joe Church, Edward Riggs, Bert Rogers, Harry and Albert Esping, David Lemison, Earnest Drews.

FARMER LEGISLATION.

During the coming year there will be an immense number of matters of the most vital interest to farmers dealt with by Congress and the Executive Departments at Washington. It is highly important that the farmers be kept promptly and fully informed as to what is being planned and done affecting them at the National Capital. They should all, therefore, take THE AMERICAN FARMER, which, being on the ground, has better facilities than any other paper for getting this information, and devotes itself to this duty. They will find in it constantly a great amount of valuable information that they can get in no other paper.

THE AMERICAN FARMER and THE CHRONICLE will be sent one year for $1.75.
