DEMOCRATIC CONCLAVE. show a willingness to first consider them.

The Orgies Repeated Only with Greater Intensity.

Mr. Bennett's Power to Sway an Audience--The Resolutions as Finally Adopted.

The democratic convention which adjourned at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon to prevent a free fight, reconvened at 4 o'clock and seated R. L. Head, the Tacoma man who wanted a seat in the convention.

At the evening meeting the orgies of the afternon were repeated, differing are enlisted for a proper case. The demonly in their greater intensity. The proceedings were Bacchanalian in their abandon, as far at least as conversation was concerned. They thought no more of violating the third commandment given to Moses than if it was never written. Almost the first remark made was the announcement by a party who secured recognition by the chairman, who said: "We are here to call things by their right name, and I want to saythe republicans are a party of G—d—thieves and robbers." The applause which greeted this remark was terrific; no reproof was administered, and as if license were granted for indecency of speech, the vilest oaths in the category of English expression were henceforth frequent and shameless.

This morning many of the more reputable democrats in attendance sought to modify the impression generally made by apologizing for their presence, saying they would never have attended if they had known the meeting was to have been so disgraceful.

The first business of the meeting was the election of permanent officers. H. P. McGuire nominated J. J. Kelley for president, seconded by various members. W. F. Butcher then nominated vention were the Hawaiian question, Geo. Chamberlain, saying that he preferred a man of some intelligence.

"Intilligence!" shouted a young Irishmen named Gates in the rear end of the hall, "it is not intilligence we want, but a worker, one who can corral the votes. If a man was intilligent, faith he moight go over to the other side." A Babel of noises followed the remark, and long before the election was made, Butcher's prophecy of the afternoon was confirmed, for the delegates "made asses of themselves," not only for the republicans to who was not too thoroughly disgusted. Hayden opened the fight against Kelley by saying that when he ran on the democratic ticket for the legislature he said The discussion became general and the remark made by Hayden was reiterated by H. P. McGuire. "You are a liar," said Pat Powers, and it looked as if a personal encounter between the two was inevitable. To prevent blows an adjournment indefinitely was moved and lost. Mr. Butcher tried to avoid diffijournment, a year hence, but it was voted down. Seeing that, an adjournment was impossible a member moved for a compromise candidate and nominated Hon. A. S. Bennett. That gentle-

At this point Hon. A. S. once riveted the attention of the audience, and the meeting became as quiet as it had previously been noisy. Not a word was lost. Mr. Bennett has a striking individuality. Logical and convincing in argument, his manner is in striking contrast with his language. His favorite attitude is an awkward shifting of one foot over the other, with the toes turned in, like an uneasy school boy, and the expression of his countenance has a juvenile innocence to match. This gives him an expression of artless dignity, which, with a temper impossible to ruffle, makes his words so potent. Added to this is an apparent willingness to be generous to an opponent, but the effect is to more helplessly enmesh him in the subtle net. So last night he said while he was willing to believe that the druggist, Chatsworth, Ill. The grip is gentlemen who had spoken were of greater experience than himself, he favored the income tax more as a means to attract the votes of the workingmen than anything else. That these people had been legislated against by the republican party, and the rich ones favored by the same party, which amounted to nothing less than class legislation, and it was time for the democratic party to much the same as a very severe cold and greater experience than himself, he

"But," he ingeniously added, "I believe, too, that the measure is a just one," and then he went on in that quiet, forceful manner of his, giving many reasons why he favored the income tax and wanted it to be a feature of the resolutions. When he had finished, converts could be found on all hands. One man who had violently opposed it arose and said that he would object to it no longer and would now like to see it carried, and being subjected to a vote it was carried by a big majority, bringing victory out of defeat. Mr. Bennett has a force which would be dangerous if exerted wrongly, but is a power for good when his sympathies

Other resolutions were as tollows: Resolved, That we warn the people of our common country, jealous for the preservations of their free institutions, that the policy of federal control of elections to which the republican party has committed itself is fraught with the gravest dangers, scarcely less momentous than would result from a revolution ness, and will be sadly missed by all practically establishing a monarchy on the rains of a republic.

Resolved, That the present time is ripe or perfecting the organization of the democratic party of the state of Oregon, in the earthly home, from which the and in so doing to embrace with in its fold all who will join it in the patriotic effort to resist the many abuses of the three sisters. Resolved, That we denounce that attempt of the republican majority of the last legislature of Oregon to destroy the Australian ballot law, and we commend the patriotic course of Hon. C. H. Wooddared to vote against the decree of the republican caucus on this question.

Resolved, That we reccomend to the consideration of the voters of Oregon the system of legislation known as the initiative and referendum.

Resolved, That we favor the passage of a law providing that non-residents shall not serve as peace officers in the settlement of labor disputes, and that the Pinkerton and other private police shall be prohibited.

Resolved, further, that the building of these institutions and the erection of the jute mills at Salem will provide muchneeded work for the unemployed in our state; that we favor the speedy construction of the same. And finally we recommend that the executive committee be instructed and empowered to appoint an organizer of clubs in every county in the state.

A CASE OF CONSCIENCE.

How a Lawmaker Avoided Teiling a Direct Lis.

"Some of our lawmakers," said a veteran lobbyist, who had had experience in many capitals, "have very curious consciences. I remember on one occasion that it became necessarv to have a certain man in a certain ard, the republican senator who has state legislature on our side in a little legislation of importance, and it was my duty to look after him. I did so, with various attentions, including wines, dinners, and so on, and at last, as I couldn't fix him, I plumped a thousand dollar bill at him. My, my, but he was

> " 'No man can bribe me, sir! No man can bribe me,' he fairly yelled, and he tore up and down in such a violent manner that I discreetly pocketed my thousand and left him. The next day -I don't know, of course, how it could have happened—one or two newspapers that didn't like my man published an intimation that the lobbyists were taking care of him. Then he was hotter than ever, and the next night I sent a lady lobbyist in my employ to see She came back to me in an hour him. without the thousand dollars and said the next day he had a card in all the papers to the effect that he had repelled with scorn the advances of a lobbyist, and that he had accepted a bribe from made because he had been on the fence anyway and nobody, except the few, knew how he would vote. All the same, he took a roundabout way to avoid telling a straight lie, didn't he?" and the lobbyist laughed .- Detroit Free Press.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION. [Timber Land, Act June 3, 1878.]

U. S. LAND OFFICE, The Dalles, Or., Nov. 8, 1893.

Notice is hereby given that in compliance with the provisions of the act of congress of June 3, 1878, entitled "An act for the sale of timber lands in the states of California, Oregon, Nevada and Washington Territory,"

Neal C. Stevenson,

Of Kingsley, county of Wasco, state of Oregon, has this day filed in this office his sworn statement for the purchase of the NE% of NW%, of Section. No. 23, in Township No. 3 S., range No 13 E. W. M., and will offer proof to show that the land sought is more valuable for its timber or stone than for fagricultural purposes, and to establish his claim to said land before the Register and Receiver of this office at The Dalles, Or., on the 15th day of January, 1894.

He names as witnesses: George McLeod, Jasper Ensley, Leon Rondean and Lafayette Davis, all of Kingsley, Or.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above-described lands are requested to file their claims in this office on or before and 15th day of January, 1894

JOHN W. LEWIS, Register.

During the coming year there will be an immense number of matters of the most vital interest to farmers dealt with by Congress and the Executive Departments at Washington. It is highly important that the farmers be kept promptly and fully informed as to what is being planned and done affecting them at the National Capital. They should all, therefore, take THE AMERICAN FARMER, which, being on the ground, has better facilities than any other papers for getting this information, and devotes itself to this duty. They will find in it constantly a great amount of valuable information that they can get in no other paper.

THE AMERICAN FARMER and THE CHRONICLE will be sent one year for $1.75.
