Charles L. Pack, whose experience in and knowledge of the lumber business is well known in Cleveland and all over the country, was interviewed in his home recently by the correspondent for the Detroit Tribune on the Wilson bill as it affects the lumber industry. The first thing that the correspondent struck was the astounding and surprising information that President Cleveland and his friends had found time to spare from the affairs of state to devote practically every day to business interests.

Mr. Pack said: "The Wilson tariff bill puts all logs and lumber and their products on the free list, but places a duty of 10 per cent. ad valorem on all wood pulp, including chemical wood pulp. The Mitcherlich patent is the most common, most important and most generally used process for the manufacture of wood pulp. It is owned by a company, prominent if not controlling stockholders in which are Honorable William C. Whitney, Honorable Daniel S. Lamont, Honorable Don M. Dickinson, of Michigan; Pierpont Morgan and President Cleveland. Yes, and also I. M. Weston, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

"When I say this I know what I am talking about and am sure of my facts. at all events as far as knowing that such was the case last year. They were positively large stockholders then to my personal knowledge and I have not heard that any changes have taken place From the formation ior that tariff bill I should assume that the same men are still owners.

"How came those men to possess that valuable patent? Negotiations were had between certain Americans and Professor Mitcherlich, of Germany, looking to the company now controlling it was organwho bought the patent from Professor ersly. Mitcherlich in the first place were Honorable Don M. Dickinson and I. M. Weston. The other prominent gentlemen were not then interested in the venture, but became so later and owned stock heavily."

An example of the initiative and referendum is found in the Portland committee of 100, who have saved the city $120,000 yearly already. The West Side asks: Why not every city have a referendum committee, and why not each county, and why not all of Oregon?

The Wilson bill puts salt on the free list, and its advocates claim that the present duty of 8 cents per 100 pounds on salt for the poor man's bread is too "grevious to be borne." All this is bombast. Fifty cents worth of salt a year is about what every poor man buys, and is sufficient to not only salt his bread, but his meat and potatoes, articles perhaps overlooked in the democratic estimate of a poor man's cuisine. On or off the free list the difference to the poor workingman consumer is infinitesimal. But the deviltry of putting salt on the free list is in the decline of wages inevitable of the workman who mines or pumps it. The United States has hundreds of square miles of salt near Lake Huron, as well as many other places in the country. England controls the India markets, whose subjects are made to pay about three times as much for their salt as the trust demands for the same article delivered in New York. This trust pays its laborers the smallest possible wages, or about one-half what is paid in this country, and the free traders are clamoring that this foreign "octopus," with a capital many millions greater than the combined capital of all the salt works in the United States, shall be allowed by their subsidized steamships to enter our markets and ruin our individual manufacturers.

ESQUIMAUX USE TOBACCO.

They Mir the Weed with Fine Cut Wood to Make It Go Farther. Perhaps there is nothing more peculiar about the Esquimaux of Point Barrow than their methods of using tobacco, which, of course, they procure from the whites. They know good from bad tobacco, says the Washington Star. When they get hold of a few plugs of commissary tobacco from a vessel of the United States navy they show a marked appreciation of it. The habit of chewing the weed seems to be universal. universal. Men, women and even unweaned children keep a quid, often of enormous size, constantly in the mouth. The juice is not spit out, but swallowed with the saliva, without producing any symptoms of nausea. These people, for the sake of making their tobacco go further, cut it up very fine and mix it with finely chopped wood, in the proportion of about two parts of tobacco to one of wood. Willow twigs are commonly used for this purpose, possibly because they have a slightly aromatic flavor. The mode of smoking the weed thus prepared is very odd. The smoker, after clearing out the bowl of his pipe with a little picker or bone, plucks from his deerskin clothing in some conspicuous place a small wad of hair. This he rams down to the bottom of the bowl, the purpose of it being to prevent the fine tobacco from getting into the stem and clogging it up. The pipe is then filled with tobacco, of which it only holds a very small quantity. The tobacco is then ignited and all of it is smoked out in two or three strong whiffs. The smoke is deeply inhaled and is allowed to pass out slowly from the mouth and

The method of smoking would be found exceedingly trying to any white man. In fact it usually brings tears to the eyes of the Esquimau, often producing giddiness and almost always a violent fit of coughing. A native will sometimes be almost prostrated from the effects of a single pipeful. These people carry their fondness for tobacco so far that they will actually eat the foul, oily refuse from the bottom of the bowl, the smallest portion of which would produce nauses in a civilized person. This habit has likewise been observed in northern Siberia. They also eat the tobacco ashes, perhaps for the sake of the potash they Miraculous Stories Told of the Tree Which Blooms on Christmas. At Glastonbury Abbey, in Somersetshire; England, once stood a thorn tree which, it is said, bloomed every Christmas morning. The first auth count of it ever written was in 1772 by a visitor who tells of it in the account of his visit to the abbey.

The keeper assured him that St. Joseph of Arimathea landed not far from the town, at a place where there was formerly an oak that had been planted to his memory; that he and his companions marched to a hill and rested themselves, and that Joseph stuck his staff on the ground. Now this staff was a common dry hawthorn stick, but it grew and first came into full flower on Christmas day. Afterward the tree, which had thus grown and budded like Aaron's rod, always bloomed on the day of our Lord's nativity and upon no other day, the flower, like those of the night-blooming cereus, lasting but a few hours.

the "Miraculous Thorn of Glaston-bury." It was said that if the chips from it were planted they would sprout and grow like potatoes; that the leaves cured all inflammations, swellings, etc., and that "rods" cut from it would never leave marks on the children corrected by their use.

Java's Fire Island.

One of the greatest natural wonders in Java, "the fire island," a large lake of boiling mud, is situated almost in the center of the plains of Grobogana, fifty "paals" to the northeast of Solo. It is almost two miles in circumference, and in the center immense columns of soft, hot mud may be seen continually rising and falling like great black tim-bers thrust forth and then suddenly withdrawn by a giant's hands. Be-sides the phenomena of the columns there are two gigantic bubbles near the western edge which fill up like huge balloons and explode on an average of three times per minute.

Wasco County, - - - Oregon,

The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city. ITS TERRITORY.

It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market.

The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here. The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.

The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.

The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH.

It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these
