S. P. SMITH, of Towarda, Pa., whose constitution was completely broken down, is cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He writes:

" For eight years, I was, most of the time, a great sufferer from constipation, kidney trouble, and indigestion, so that my constitution seemed to be completely broken down. I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and took nearly seven bottles, with such excellent results that my stomach, bowels, and kidneys are in perfect condition, and, in all their functions, as regular as clock-work. At the time I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, my weight was only 129 pounds; I now can brag of 159 pounds, and was never in so good health. If you could see me be-fore and after using, you would want me for a traveling advertisement. I believe this preparation of Sarsaparilla to be the best in the market to-day."

AMENDMENT LOST IN THE HOUSE

Hanging of a Human Fiend in North Dakota-Other Crimes and Casualties.

Washington, Jan. 19 .- In the house, the report of the committee on elections in the contested election case of O'Neill vas ordered printed.

Consideration of the tariff bill was then resumed, the pending amendment steel rails on the free list.

Wilson asked unanimous consent that three hours be set aside next Monday for consideration of an amendment to the sugar schedule; agreed to. Dalzell then proceeded with his speech begun yesterday. He began by recapitulating the charges he had made against Johnson. He had shown, he said, that Johnson manufactured certain kinds of street-railway rails behind a protection of 190 patents, and wanted railway rails to go on the free list; that he coerced his employes in the face of winter and starvation into accepting wages of onethird cash and two-thirds scrip; that he had made an untrue statement and had altered the stenographer notes; and the last scrip had been hawked about the streets of Johnstown and had been bought in at a discount by a relative of Johnson before it was redeemed at par. Johnson replied to Dalzell in a semihumorous vein. He (Johnson) did not claim to be a philanthropist. The Johnson amendment to put steel rails on the free list was lost-79 to 100.

ALMOST FORGOTTEN.

Decline of a Woman Who Had Million-

In answer to the question who murdered A. P. Crittenden in San Francisco in 1870, the Portland Telegram relates the following interesting history: Laura D. Fair was the woman who murdered A. P. Crittenden, a famous ing, and bring off the fight somewhere lawyer, in the county of San Francisco, between here and the coast line under a in 1870, while he was crossing on the ferryboat with his wife and several children from Oakland to San Francisco. Mrs. Fair was of Southern birth, and possessed of much physical and intellectual beauty in those days. She had many admirers at that time, but Crittenden won her from all others by his generosity and uncommon devotion.

The woman swayed a peculiar influence over him for a time, even to the extent that he sent his wife and children east on a protracted visit. At length, however, his better nature asserted itself, and when he told the fair woman turn she threatened to kill him. Never dreaming that the female upon whom he had lavished a mint of money, and for whom he had sacrificed his social position, would execute her threat, he, on that fatal day, went to meet his return-LONDON, Jan. 19 .- Sir William Henry ing family. She, however, proved true merrily chatting with his returning shot her benefactor before the eyes of

The woman was tried on an indictment charging her with murder, before the 15th judicial district, and her counsel were two of the most distinguished members of the San Francisco bar, the late Elisha Cook and General W. H L. Barnes. Though a strong fight was made for her life and liberty, the jury convicted her of murder in the first degree, which verdict, then, was hailed with undisguised pleasure. Judge Dwinelle had known the woman socially before she became a notorious criminal, and as he passed sentence of death upon her tears bedimmed his eyes and moistened his cheeks. While this woman was figuratively standing under the shadow of the gallows. preparing an offer for the entire proposed the supreme court granted her a new issue of $50,000,000 of bonds at Carlisle's trial, and on that occasion one Leander figures. The conduct of this jury exasperated San Francisco so that several of its members were ostracized for a number of years; and the murderess, when she emerged from her prison cell after a year's confinement in the old Broadwaystreet jail, met with a very frigid reception from the lowest to the highest. Her attempts to lecture were hissed down, and eventually she became a "mud-hen" (a female curbstone stockbroker). After the virtual death of the Washoe mining stocks, she unsuccessfully tried to sell subscription books, but, as she was no longer personally attractive, and as her crime under such circumstances could not be condoned, she "was not in it."
