JANUARY JOTTINGS.

Minor Events Which Pertain to City and Country.

The womenfolk are like to books. Most pleasing to the eye, Whom if anybody looks He feels disposed to buy.

—Eugene Field.

The weather bureau forecast for today and tomorrow is fair and colder.

Sheriff Ward is scouring over the county summoning jurors for the February term of court.

Last night was the coldest for the season. The minimum thermometer read 16 degrees above zero.

A call has been made for the meeting of the republican state central committee at Portland, on Wednesday, the 31st of this month.

A flat car ran off the track near the Umatilla House this morning, but after considerable engineering and a few "cuss" words, it was replaced.

"Indian Joe" is trying for a pension on his past record as a guide for the soldiers. He is quite old and crippled, and is a well-known figure on the streets.

There is no soup house in The Dalles yet, though if these hard times continue there is no telling how soon there will be one. Its existence depends upon the passage of the Wilson bill.

The dancing party at Wingate hall last night was a very pleasurable event, though there were not a great many in attendance. The music was said to be the finest ever had, and the floor in perfect condition.

D. M. Ferry's seed annual for 1894 has been received, with a choice collection of seeds. We notice, on perusing the annual, many new and valuable varieties of flowers, fruits and vegetables. Everyone can get the annual by sending for it to D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.

Edward Woods was adjudged insane today before the county court, upon the testimony of Dr. Hollister, and he will be sent to the asylum tonight. He was found yesterday standing up to his arm pits in the water near the county poor farm. He fancies parties are after him to hang him and prefers death by drowning.

The 21 mills tax is composed of 4.3 state, 5 school and 11.7 county. The county levy, if all the taxes can be collected, will amount to $40,000. The expense of the county for the year is about $30,000 and $10,000 is allowed for delinquents. If it proves to be a less sum than that it will lessen the county indebtedness by that amount. The county indebtedness is about $70,000.

Charley Dall was the prosecuting witness in the Skibbe case yesterday. He is a worthless vagabond, and if all accounts are true, deserves a worse drubbing than he got. He endeavored to make trouble between man and wife, when, as is almost always the case, they both made it warm for him. A man of more brains than this tramp, whom Mr. Skibbe fed for charity's sake, would not try to alienate marital ties, even if he had more foundation for his tales than this man Dall.

NEWS OF THE STATE.

Lake Labish is under water again, the first time for several years. Nearly the whole area that was reclaimed by ditching is now completely flooded, and boats may be paddled over every part of it.

John Hoffman was shot by Neil Campbell while the former was stealing chickens out of his coop. The wound is dangerous the weapon used being a shotgun, loaded with buckshot and fired at close range, the charge taking effect in the breast and right shoulder blade. Hoffman is in a dangerous condition.

Rev. T. M. McConnell, an evangelist, recently held services in the penitentiary at Salem. After the sermon the preacher called on those who had accepted Jesus as their Savior to manifest themselves, to which about a dozen uplifted hands responded, and twenty more signified they were anxious to repent. The gentleman will hold other meetings at the prison.

ROAD LAWS OF OREGON.

Recent Legislation Made for Counties of 10,000 Population.

At the present time there is a great deal of discussion in regard to the roads, not only in Multnomah county, but in various sections of the state. The question of the best ways and means of improving the county roads is being very generally agitated.

The road laws of Oregon place the supervision of county roads under the county court, but a provision is attached that in counties of over 10,000 inhabitants or more, the court may appoint a roadmaster to carry out the road work and it can also prescribe his salary. Another section has a proviso "that in counties having a roadmaster, the money shall be expended under his supervision, and no road shall hereafter be located until a report as to the advisability or practicability of such proposed road is first made and filed by such roadmaster."

Section 10 of an act passed at the last session of the legislature "for the laying out or improving county roads, and the levying of assessment upon adjacent lands benefited, to create a fund to pay the same," reads as follows: "All work on said improvement shall be done under the supervision of the roadmaster of the county or other competent person of the county appointed by the county court."

"Before entering on the duties of his trust, he shall take an oath to honestly, faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of such trust, and shall execute a bond payable to the state of Oregon for the use of the parties interested therein, in the sum of $3,000, which bond must be approved by the county court or county judge. Suit may be brought on such bond by any person or corporation aggrieved. The superintendent shall require that all material used in making such improvements be good and suitable for the purpose for which it is used, and that all work on such improvement shall be done in a workmanlike manner, and shall conform to the requirements of the plans and specifications for such improvement adopted by the county court."

It Always Succeeds.

The greater effectiveness of newspaper over sign or object advertising was forcibly shown yesterday afternoon. Mrs. E. M. Wilson lost a very valuable watch, to the chain of which was attached a coin of the old beaver denomination, dated 1849, when Oregon was a territory. Mr. Hans Hensen came into The Chronicle office to insert an advertisement, having found the watch and being desirous of returning it to its owner. He had just been to the Times-Mountain office, where he ordered a similar advertisement inserted. Previous to this Mr. Fred Wilson had inserted a lost notice for the same watch, and which was already in type when Mr. Hans arrived. Consequently the editor knew to whom it belonged and so advised Mr. Hansen, who then left to return it to the proper owner.

Mr. Hansen had the watch on exhibition a whole day in the postoffice, but it escaped the observation of both Mrs. Wilson and her son. No better proof is needed as to the superiority of newspaper advertising over other kinds. Signs on fences, lithographs on the sides of buildings, colored squares of tin on telegraph poles command little respect, whereas the same advertisement in a newspaper would impress the reader with its value. It is worth advertising or it would not pay.

Fruitgrowers' Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Wasco county fruitgrowers will be held at the city hall at 2 o'clock Saturday. The meeting should be well attended. At this time a delegation will be chosen to attend the meeting of the Northwest fruitgrowers to be held at Spokane in February. At this meeting the very important question will be considered of dealing with the transportation companies with the view of fruitgrowers realizing more handsomely from their products than has been the rule in the last two years. The experience of last season with the Earl company was very disastrous, as after paying all charges nothing was left, often indeed a deficit.

The persistent cough which usually follows an attack of the grip can be permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mr. W. A. McGuire, of McKay, Ohio, says: "La Grippe left me with a severe cough. After using several different medicines without relief, I tried Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which effected a permanent cure. I have also found it to be without an equal for children when troubled with colds or croup. Fifty-cent bottles for sale by Blakely & Houghton, druggists."

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Snipes & Kinserly.

Wedding Anniversary.

The sixteenth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hobson was celebrated last evening by a party at their home. Whist was the order of the evening, supplemented with a dainty supper, to which the guests did ample justice. The host and hostess were agreeably surprised at finding themselves the recipients of some exquisite Chinaware, comprising plates, cups and saucers and a salad set of thirteen pieces. All imported goods and very handsome. All present enjoyed themselves in a manner befitting an event of this kind, and the lapse of time, denoted by sixteen like anniversaries, was bridged for the evening by the unassuming merriment which was general. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Pease, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Bradshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Blakeley, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lord, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. M. Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Houghton, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. T. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hilton, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Crossen, Mr. and Mrs. H. Glenn, Mrs. H. M. Beall.

Literary Note.

The February Overland Monthly is to be a Northwestern number, almost exclusively made up of articles, stories, poems and sketches, relating to Oregon and Washington. These are profusely illustrated by a great variety of pictures of the most beautiful points in these two states.

This has not been done by any great effort on the Overland's part, but simply by giving preference in selecting manuscripts for the number to its regular Northwestern contributors. Among them are Frances Fuller Victor, Ella Beecher Gittings, Ella Higginson, Herbert Bashford, S. A. Clark, Rose Simmons, Carrie Blake Morgan, Frank C. Teck, J. C. Natrass, and other writers well-known to Overland readers and to the Northwest as well. It emphasizes the fact that the Overland is the magazine of the whole west coast.

DIED.

Edward Wettle, the 8-year-old son of Jacob Wettle, died at 2 o'clock today from peritonitis, very suddenly.

The little fellow had been ill for only two days, his abdomen swelling, probably from the result of some internal injury, of which his parents did not know. They are almost distracted over the continued troubles which have followed their children for the past two years, but which heretofore have not resulted fatally. It is hoped that now they will have a cessation of these accidents, as they have already had more than their share.

AN ELASTIC CONSCIENCE.

The Sin of it Lay Only in Being Found Out With Her.

The penalty attendant upon being detected is the entire foundation of many people's honesty. A woman, says a writer in the New York Recorder, in whose company I found myself recently, was relating with pride an instance of her shrewdness. She remarked as a preface to her story that anyone who expected to get the better of her would have to be an early riser. Said she:

"I went to the theater the other night and after the play a lady who sat in front of me asked me if the umbrella under her chair belonged to me."

"I said no, and as no one else claimed it she left it at the box office. It was a lovely umbrella with a silver handle."

"Well, now the joke begins. About a week later I went to the theater and asked if such an article had been found and if they had it. I described it perfectly and told when it was lost. I didn't say it was mine, but just let them infer it. It was there still; the owner had never called for it—probably never knew where it had been left. They handed it out when I had answered all their questions, and I'm that much in."

"I had just as good a right to it as the theater people, and it looked after a week, as if the woman who found it wasn't going to put in a claim. I'm going to get a hat with the money I saved by being wide awake, for I intended to buy a new umbrella."

Arabian Saddles.

Some of the oldest equine habits which horsemen ever imagined are to be found in lands abutting on the home of the Arabian, but where he himself is not to be found; though, indeed, the Arab himself has enough of oddities. The Kurds ride a tree covered with plaited straw, quite flat and padded with blankets. This they never remove from their horses, except occasionally to dry it out. The horse is kept saddled day and night, summer and winter. This seems incredible, but is literally true. In Turkestan the horse, under his saddle, is covered with the Biblical number of blankets, seven, which he likewise wears at all times, and which are supposed to sweat him out and keep him in condition.

His Business, Exactly.

It was on a quiet street in Washington, and the only sound that broke the stillness was the cry of an old colored man who was peddling bivalves from a push-cart. His noise evidently disturbed somebody, for a window opened and a woman thrust out her head to say: "Dear me! what a great clamor!" The man stopped his cart, took off his hat and said, with a bow: "Thanky, lady, thanky! Dat's what I is. I's de greatest clammer in de whole District of Columbia!"

WHAT CIDER IS MADE OF.

A Glance at the Raw Material in a Connoisseur's MILL.

"Them's good cider apples," said the cider miller. "Ain't nothin' the matter with them."

"But they are windfalls for the most part," said a New York Times correspondent, "all knotty and dried up. Miserable things!"

"Make tiptop cider, them apples will," persisted the miller.

"But look at the rotten ones. Half of the apples that I can see are touched with decay, while a great many of them are rotten from skin to skin. Look at that," said the correspondent, poking his cane into one of the apples.

"There isn't a sound spot in it."

"That don't hurt 'em none for cider," answered the miller. "Makes the cider all the better, some folks says."

"How about the wormy apples? Are they fit to make into cider?"

The miller had talked long enough, and so one of the hangers-on about the place volunteered a reply.

"Guess you wasn't ever into a cider mill 'fore to-day, was ye? If you had been I reckon you wouldn't ask no questions about worms. Worms don't hurt cider none."

The correspondent looked incredulous.

"Don't you b'lieve it? Well, I tell ye what I do. When you go home to-night, just try an experiment. Wait till it's dark, an' then take two apples an' go down int' the cellar an' see if you kin tell the difference 'twixt the one with a worm into it an' t'other one."

"What do you mean? Why do you tell me to go down into the cellar?"

"Why, that's the most darkish place 'bout the house, ain't it? Don't take no light with ye."

"But how am I to examine the apples in the dark? Of course, I shouldn't know which was which just by feeling of them."

"Thunder'n lightnin'! You didn't s'pose I wanted ye t' go down there an' set round a-feelin' of the apples, did ye? That wa'n't what I meant. What I meant was this: You jest take a wormy apple an' a sound one an' go down int' the cellar an' eat 'em, an' I'll bet ye a shillin' you won't know when you eat the worm."

The correspondent shuddered.

"Don't that prove it?" ran on the man. "Course it does. We put the worms right int' the grater, 'long with the rest. How many of 'em they is we don't know. All we know is that they all turn into cider, an' the man ain't livin' that kin tell when he's drinkin' the cider what part's apple juice an' what part's worm juice."

"Then, ag'in, we couldn't do no different if we tried. We couldn't send every wormy apple to a hospital and doctor it with vermifuge till we'd killed off the live stock. No, sir, the worms has to go, an' they'll keep on goin', I s'pose, till one of them cruelty to animals fellers shuts down on it an' makes us 'gree to dose the worms with chloroform 'fore we grind 'em up."
