VOLCANOES IN AMERICA.

Excluding Alaska, the United States may be said to be non-volcanic, but it has not been so long. A chain of volcanoes extends from southern South America into Mexico, then there is a large break, and the interrupted chain begins again in Alaska, curves southward and joins the chain of Japan. The intermediate non-volcanic area has just emerged from an era of stupendous activity. Future resumption of such activity is not improbable, for in the west are volcanoes so recent as, like Mt. St. Helens, to retain their conical form, and some of these perhaps are no more dormant than was Vesuvius before the fateful year 79, when it buried Pompeii and Herculaneum beneath the most terrible storm of stones and ashes ever known to man. In the Cascades, near Fort Klammath, is the famous Crater lake, in the center of which rises the crater, whose dangerous depths have never been entered. The lake is walled by precipitous sides 2,000 feet high, and there is but one way to descend to the beautiful, ever-placid lake whose bosom is never ruffled by the wind and whose surface in the sunlight reflects the colors of the prism in all their variety and beauty. Yet nearer home, and only about thirty miles distant from The Dalles, is a district full of old craters. This is in Washington, about fifteen miles south of Mt. Adams. There are dykes under ground, some of them a third of a mile in length, and on the surface are channels which were undoubtedly made by molten lava. The lava itself attests to the fact and the ground has a hollow sound, proving that it is honeycombed with chambers. In the Canyon of the Colorado, in the deserts of Nevada and Utah, and in New Mexico, exist small lava flows that must have been erupted in very recent years, probably since the white man's discovery of the continent. These seem to record the death throes of the country's latest volcanic giants. The eruptions have played a part in bringing up stores of metals, and the richest mines are found in the volcanic districts of tertiary times.

A Kansas exchange says Mrs. Lease is called an Amazon because that river has a mouth two hundred miles wide.

If Brer Wilson wants to make his tariff bill fully democratic he will at once move that "a receiver" be appointed.—Baker City Blade.

The commercial failures for 1893 from Dun's Review is 15,342 in the United States. Oregon is credited with 221, Washington 272 and Idaho 76; 41 manufacturing concerns in Oregon failed with liabilities $358,600, and 65 in Washington, liabilities $1,899,000.

There are four unique mountains in Lower California, one of pure alum, two of alum and sulphur mixed and one of pure sulphur. It is estimated that in the four peaks named there are 100,000,000 tons of pure alum and 10,000,000 tons of sulphur.

What is the most popular novel among American readers? A recent poll of all the principal libraries in the United States, shows that "David Copperfield" leads in popularity every work of fiction. The nine most popular novels in the order of their popularity, are as follows:—"David Copperfield," "Ivanhoe," "The Scarlet Letter," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Ben-Hur," "Adam Bede," "Vanity Fair," "Jane Eyre," "The Last Days of Pompeii." This is a complete refutation of the notion sometimes expressed that Dickens, and Scott, and Thackeray have lost their hold. Our own greatest novelist, Nathaniel Hawthorne, comes high up in the list, and "Uncle Tom's Cabin" appears to hold its own for all time.

During the five-minute speeches in the house on January 18th Mr. Hermann read a letter from Ex-Senator Charles Hilton, containing a clear statement of the evil effects that would follow the wool industry if free trade were applied. He estimates the cost of producing 16,000 pounds of wool at $1,991. At 6 cents, the net price received for it after paying freight, and 700 lambs (increase) valued $875.00 the net loss amounts to $150. Mr. Hilton shows that the business is fairly profitable when 15 cents per pound is received for it, which is a fair average of what is received under protection after paying freight, and concludes: "It would be impossible for us to continue the business under free wool; we would have to quit breeding and dispose of our sheep for mutton as they become of suitable age. When the industry is destroyed in the United States, I apprehend, the foreigner will raise the price of wool, probably to more than we have received under protection, but we will have no sheep, and it takes a long time to stock up a range, as sheep do not increase very rapidly."

A Washington City man believes that in the senate the Wilson bill will be at the mercy of a combination between the republicans and the Hill and Gorman democrats, who, with Murphy, Gibson, Pugh and others, are all known to have expressed themselves in strong terms against the proposed tariff changes, and by uniting with the republicans and populists they can command the situation and compel the enactment of a moderate measure in place of the Wilson bill. By the time the bill gets back to the house it will not be recognizable, and there are republicans who are confident that it will never get back to the house at all. The shrewdest republican leaders, however, do not place great reliance on the probability that the prospective alliance will result in the defeat of tariff legislation altogether. They believe rather that some sort of measure will go through the senate, and that in its mangled form it will be taken hold of by the conference committee of the two houses and licked into shape.

THE DALLES

Wasco County, - - - Oregon,

The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY.

It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market.

The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.

The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.

The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH.

It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these corner stones she stands.
