TARIFF BILL PASSED

The Income-Tax Amendment Made a Part of it.

THE REPUBLICANS DID NOT VOTE

Brilliant Speeches Made by Reed Crisp and Wilson--The Vote on the Amendments.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. [Bulletin.]--The tariff bill, with the internal revenue and income-tax features, passed by 200 to 135.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.--In the house, the tariff debate on the Wilson bill closed today with a burst of oratory. Crisp, Reed and Wilson came forward in the closing hours to argue for and against the inauguration of the new economical system.

The house then went into committee on the whole on the tariff bill. Richardson took the chair and announced the pending question was to close the debate on amendments to the barley schedule. The motion carried, 173 to 0.

Lockwood again tried filibustering, but was cut off, and Tracy's amendment to the committee amendment to increase the duty on barley and barley malt to 40 per cent ad valorem was lost, 91 to 109.

Pickler's amendment to substitute the present duty was lost. Payne's substitute for 20 cents per bushel on barley met the same fate, 91 to 108.

A vote would then have recurred on the committee amendment, when Wilson interposed with a substitute to place barley on the free list; defeated without division.

Lockwood offered to make the duty 10 cents on barley and 20 cents on barley malt. To this Payne offered an amendment which was voted down.

Lockwood, still sparring for time, demanded a division and tellers on each vote. His amendment was lost.

Tawney of Minnesota offered an amendment to make the duty 30 cents, defeated; but the object of the filibusters was successful. The hands of the clock pointed to noon, the hour for resuming general debate, when the tellers took their places on this motion.

Before a vote could be taken, Chairman Richardson rapped for order, and announced that the committee would rise to report the bill to the house. So Lockwood carried his point. The committee rose, the speaker resumed the gavel, the bill was reported from the committee of the whole, and the speaker announced that time would be allowed for the closing debate.

The chair recognized Reed of Maine. Reed arose from the republican side amid wild cheering and handclapping in the galleries and the huzzas of his friends. When quiet was finally restored, with his back to his friends and his face to his foes, towering in defiance, he began his address.

REED FIGHTS THE BILL. Reed again began by saying that the bill was odious to both sides of the house. It meets with favor nowhere, and commands the respect of neither party. On this side, while we believe that it pretends to be for protection, it does not afford it, and on the other side they believe, while it looks toward free trade, it does not accomplish it. Those who will vote against this bill will do so because it opens our markets to the destructive competition of foreigners; those who will vote for it will do so with the reservation that they will instantly devote themselves to a new crusade against whatever barriers are left. Reed proceeded by saying the argument that the bill should be passed to put an end to the doubt which is worse than any bill can be is specious and insidious, as were the bill passed by both branches today uncertainty would reign just the same. He then proceeded to argue at length on the benefits of the tariff from the standard of wages for the American laborer and for the American farmer. Throughout Reed's speech he was frequently interrupted by applause, and even the democrats at times joined in laughter at his witticisms. At the close he was greeted with a spontaneous, long-continued burst of applause, and he was warmly congratulated by his friends.

CRISP REPLIES TO REED. While the demonstration was still in progress, Crisp relinquished the chair to Hatch of Missouri, and took a seat on the floor of the house. When order was restored he was recognized to reply to Reed. Until he warmed he spoke with hesitation, but as he became warmed up his words came in a perfect torrent, sweeping resistlessly over all opposition and he was encouraged by the hearty applauses of his democratic associates. His points, however, were of an argumentative order, calculated to appeal to the students of the question, rather than the galleries. He declared that while the protective system was built up ostensibly for the benefit of labor, it was actually for the benefit of the manufacturing classes, pointing out that the wages of laborers in the protected industries went down, while those in unprotected went up as a result of the McKinley act. He referred to the artificial condition produced by protection, which was a Chinese wall, not only shutting out the world, but shutting in the United States. Crisp declared that 30 years of protection was a period of unrest, during which the masses constantly rebelled against burdensome taxation. They always had been stilled at the polls by republican promises to reduce the tariff. Elected, they surrender themselves body and soul to the manufacturers. He pointed to the Chinese as an example of a protective policy of 100 years.

WILSON CLOSES THE DEBATE. Wilson, chairman of the ways and means committee, at once arose to close the debate. He was greeted with great cheers. He opened with sarcastic replies to Burrows of Michigan, and Deliver of Iowa. Turning to the subject in hand he eloquently portrayed the advance of freedom. "This bill," he said, "is one of those advances; no McKinley bill could stem the advance of human progress. Great causes could not be laughed or ridiculed away, and the gentleman from Maine could not draw from his armory of sarcasm and wit to stop the advance of this cause of lightening burdensome taxation." Referring to the income tax, Wilson said he had not wanted it attached to this bill, but once attached he supported it loyally. There was continued applause as Wilson denied the charges of sectionalism in the bill. He closed with an eloquent appeal to his fellow democrats, saying in passing the bill the house would permanently record no mere passing event, but a great epoch in American history.

As Wilson closed Tucker and several others sprang forward, and as wave after wave of applause echoed through the chamber, lifted him from his feet to their shoulders and bore him up the aisle. When let down he received the enthusiastic congratulations of his conferees. It was a demonstration such as is seldom seen in congress. Business was at a standstill for 20 minutes on account of the disorder. Finally the floors were cleared and preparations made for voting.

THE FIRST VOTE TAKEN. On the first roll-call the barley amendment was defeated, 170 to 109. It was significant as the first test vote sustaining the bill. The amendment making barley 22 cents and barley malt 37 cents per bushel was lost, 120 to 197.

The committee amendment to raise the duty on malt from 20 to 25 per cent, and on barley malt from 25 to 35 per cent was carried, 204 to 114.

Tom Johnson, dem., of Ohio, asked for a separate vote on the wool schedule. C. M. Stone, rep., of Pennsylvania, for a separate vote on petroleum. Tracy, dem., of New York, on internal revenue, including the income tax. All other amendments were agreed to.

A standing vote on the amendment, fixing the time when the wool schedule shall go into effect as August 2, 1894, was carried, 205 to 47.

A standing vote on the amendment that the manufactured wool schedule go into effect December 2, was carried, 186 to 42.

The vote on the amendment putting petroleum on the free list and striking out reciprocity was carried, 170 to 44, without a roll-call.

The eyes and noses were ordered on the internal revenue bill. Bourke Cockran asked unanimous consent that the vote on the income tax be separate from the other internal revenue schedules. The speaker ruled the internal revenue amendment must be voted on as one amendment.

The republicans are not voting on the income tax and the internal revenue amendment.

The internal revenue bill, including the income tax, was sustained as a part of the bill, by 182 to 50.

The Insurgents Capture the Nietheroy. BURNOS AYRES, Feb. 1.--It is reported here that the Nietheroy, which has long been the object of the main attack by the rebels at Rio Janeiro, has yielded and has been occupied by the insurgent forces. The report cannot be verified or disproved. It is also reported the government troops there joined the rebels.

Cleverly Countered. An American and an Englishman were one day sitting on the balcony of the Anglo-American club in Brussels, passing the rather slow hours in a little friendly guffing of each other. The Englishman sat facing the American flag, and the American sat facing the English flag. After a brief lull in the sharpshooting the Englishman came out with: "I say old man, ye cawn't imagine what your flag reminds me of."

"The American was serious. "Well, what is it?"

"Why it reminds me of a deuced big gridiron, don't you know?"

"The American smiled a sad smile and then said: "All right, Johnny. But what do you think your flag reminds me of?"

"Don't know."

"Well, it reminds me of a darned big beefsteak that we can fry on our gridiron."--Boston Budget.

Good Chance for a Rustler. A man is wanted by Kerr & Buckley of Grass Valley to run their hay and grain ranch on shares, one with some means preferred, but can furnish all horses, harness, plows, etc., if necessary, provided he pays his own living expenses for the year. One hundred and fifty acres is already sown and now growing nicely, 100 acres are plowed, ready to sow in the spring, and there are 100 acres of old land to plow and sow. For further particulars address Kerr & Buckley, Grass Valley, Or. dwtft

How do you do when you buy shoes or clothing? Don't you go to the place (if you can find it) where they tell you that you may wear the articles out, and then, if you are not satisfied, they'll refund the money? Why not do the same when you buy medicine?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is sold on that plan. It's the only blood purifier so certain and effective that it can be guaranteed to benefit or cure, in every case, or you have your money back.

It's not like the ordinary spring medicines or sarsaparillas. All the year round, it cleanses, builds up, and invigorates the system. If you're bilious, run-down, or dyspeptic, or have any blood-taint, nothing can equal it as a remedy.

$100 Reward, $100. The readers of this paper will be much pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer $100 for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.
