HE DIED BY THE KNIFE

Execution of Vaillant, the Anarchist Yesterday.

WENT TO THE GUILLOTINE COOLLY

"Death to Society; Long Live Anarchy." His Last Words--Details of His Death.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—August E. Vaillant, the anarchist, who December 9th, threw a bomb in the chamber of deputies, was guillotined shortly after 7 o'clock this morning.

The judicial authorities arrived at the prison at a quarter past 6, went to Vaillant's cell and awakened him. He turned deadly pale, but quickly began dressing with a remark to one of the prison's attendants: "You see I was right in saying my sentence would not be commuted." Noticing his hands trembling, one of the officers counseled him to have courage. Vaillant smiled in his sickly way and replied: "Never fear, I will know how to die." Offered a glass of cordial to brace him up, he said: "I have no need of artificial strength and despise the man who needs brandy to nerve him to meet his fate."

To one of the attendants, who offered to assist him dressing, he said: "I need no assistance, thank you; I am dressing as quickly as possible and will not delay you any longer than I can help." Asked if he had any statement to make, Vaillant began defending anarchy in burning words, continuing until it was suggested to him they were useless and out of place. He refused to see the prison chaplain, saying: "I do not believe in religion; it is all a sham. Let those who profess religion give some evidence of it by extending a helping hand to the deserving poor. This will do more to crush anarchy than all the armies of the world."

THE MARCH TO THE GUILLOTINE.

At 7:20 the march to the guillotine began. Vaillant marched between the executioner and assistants, his head erect and defiant, while persons in the crowd cried out: "He dies like a true anarchist," accompanied by an occasional cry of "Vive l'anarchie." Standing at the foot of the steps leading to the platform, gazing at the flaming blade, Vaillant shouted: "Vive l'anarchie," and a moment later, ascending the steps, said in a loud voice: "A mort les bourgeois!" (death to the bourgeoisie). On the platform he cried: "Death to society." These were his last words. He was quickly strapped to the sliding plank, and his neck placed beneath the knife, which fell, severing the head from the body. The head and the body were quickly taken up and carried off at a gallop, while the crowds made a tremendous rush for the guillotine, but the large force of troops and police held them back till the guillotine was entirely removed.

Talmage Will Continue to French.

New York, Feb. 5.—The Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage, pastor of the Brooklyn tabernacle, did not refer to his resignation yesterday at either the morning or evening service. Dr. Talmage's sermon was strictly on doctrinal lines, his subject being "Visions of Heaven." He will preach his farewell sermon on the first Sunday in March, and about one month later will start for the Orient with his wife and two daughters. He will return to America by way of England, and will probably be home about the middle of October. "You can quote me as saying that I will continue to preach the rest of my life," said Mr. Talmage yesterday. "As preaching is my vocation, and it seems to be the only thing that gives me happiness."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Tom Reed's Irresistible Speech Before an Immovable Crowd.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2, 1894.

Ex-Speaker Reed probably never made a better or stronger speech than that with which he closed the republican side of the debate on the Cleveland tariff bill, but it was casting pearls before swine to attempt to stop the democrats of the house in their headlong rush toward ruin and destruction. But there are millions of intelligent people in this country who will appreciate and heed the mastery of calm and insurmountable facts presented by the honored republican leader of the house, even if they did fall unheeded upon the ears of men, many of whom voted for the atrocious measure against their honest convictions, knowing that it would injure those who had sent them to congress. Some of these men voted for the bill simply because they lacked the courage to do otherwise, but not a few of them did so for a mess of pottage in the shape of a few offices for their personal followers. The tariff bill now goes to the senate, where there is hope of making material alterations in, if not of defeating it outright.

It is entirely fitting that the public debt of the United States should be increased $50,000,000 by the sale of bonds on the same day that the house passed the Cleveland tariff bill. Indeed, the increase in the public debt was but the natural consequence of the mere proposition to saddle such a tariff upon the country. Owing to the very determined movement against the issue of bonds in and out of congress the issue would have been a flat failure had not Secretary Carlisle's appeal to the Wall street bankers brought them to his rescue. To prevent this fact being too plain to the country Mr. Carlisle has refused to make public the names of the purchasers of the bonds. Congress did not act in time to stop the issue of bonds, but it may take steps that will prevent the use of the money for any other purpose than strengthening the gold reserve.

Representative Sibley of Pennsylvania who got on his ear and tendered his resignation to the governor of that state, because his constituents objected to his position on the tariff, has wound up the string which he tied to his resignation before sending it, and will keep his seat in the house.

The returns from the special congressional election in New York City were not reassuring to Mr. Cleveland or the cuckoo democrats. They bore out the assertions of the New York democrats in the house, that the Cleveland policy, if persisted in would result in making New York go republican by an unheard of majority. At the last presidential election the fourteenth N. Y. district went democratic by a plurality of 8,825, and now it elects a republican congressman by a plurality of 905—a republican gain of a few less than 10,000 in a single district. The fifteenth district went democratic by 11,869, and now it is only by the personal popularity of the candidate that it has a democratic plurality of 4,510—a republican gain of 7,359. That is the first time the wage-earners have had a chance to express their opinion of the democratic tariff bill. Its effect upon democratic senators will be carefully watched.

It is regarded as significant that it is the friends of Mr. Cleveland, and not those of Senator Hill, who are seeking to delay action on the nomination of Peckham to the supreme court vacancy. A close friend of Senator Hill's said today: "Whether the nomination be acted upon next week or next month the result will be the same—rejection." On the other hand administration men are claiming the votes of several Southern Senators which were cast against Hornblower. Meanwhile important business of the Supreme Court is being delayed because of the vacancy. The even division of the court—four on each side—in one important case the other day will prevent other cases from being taken up until the vacancy is filled.

Senator elect Gear—"Old Business" some Iowa people call him—was given a banquet by the Iowa Congressional delegation this week. In addition to the Iowans the following were present: Thomas B. Reed, of Maine; Albert G. Hopkins and Joseph G. Cannon, of Ill.; John A. Caldwell, of Ohio; Julius C. Burrows, of Mich.; Serena E. Payne, of New York, and John Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, all colleagues of Mr. Gear in the house. Senator Wilson told the party that he believed he would get as much pleasure out of his self-imposed exile from the capital as his successor would out of his continued public career. "Uncle Joe Cannon made a hit by breaking in on that part of Senator Gear's speech which referred to the presence of two possible presidential candidates—Allison and Reed—to thank Mr. Gear for mentioning him as a possible candidate."

The House today took up the Hawaiian matter and after three days debate will vote upon the Mr. Creary cuckoo resolution and the republican substitute therefor. Mr. Cleveland is striving hard in favor of the cuckoo resolution.

A. HORN, Pastor.

Wrinkles and hollow cheeks, and dull, sunken eyes, don't always mean that a woman's old. Half the time, they only show that she's overworked or suffering. To such women, to every woman who is tired or afflicted, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription safely and certainly brings back health and strength. It's a legitimate medicine that corrects and cures; a tonic that invigorates and builds up; a nerve that soothes and strengthens. For all the derangements, irregularities and weaknesses peculiar to women, it is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

It won't do to experiment with Catarrh. There's the constant danger of driving it to the lungs. You can have a perfect and permanent cure with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Good Chance for a Rustler.
