HAWAII IS THE TOPIC

The Debate Still Dragging Along in the House.

A BROTHER'S AWFUL REVENGE

Killed a Bridegroom on His Wedding Day—The Bride Will Lose Her Reason.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—In the house, Ellis of Oregon asked unanimous consent for the consideration of the senate bill to extend the time allowed the Umatilla Irrigation Company for the completion of its canal across the Umatilla Indian reservation, in Oregon. The bill passed. After the call of committees for reports, the Hawaiian debate was resumed. Outwaite, democrat, of Ohio taking the floor in support of the McCreey resolution.

He took the position that Stevens, in ordering the troops ashore at the time of the revolution, has been guilty of an act of war; that in betraying the government to which he had been accredited he had been guilty of treachery; and that in scheming with the sugar interests to overthrow a weak monarchy, with a view to annexation, he had been guilty of cowardice. He analyzed the events of the revolution itself to show Stevens' zeal in behalf of the revolutionists. The subsequent attempt to rush the Hawaiian islands into the United States, he said, was marked by mock heroism at Honolulu and mock patriotism in Washington.

Outwaite challenged the production of a single scintilla of evidence to prove that Cleveland in the inauguration of a policy which had for its purpose the righting of a national wrong ever contemplated the use of force.

Culberson of Texas, chairman of the judiciary committee, followed Outwaite in support of the administration policy in Hawaii. He said: "When Cleveland was inaugurated, an extraordinary condition of affairs in reference to Hawaii existed. A treaty of annexation had been negotiated and sent to the senate. The transaction was incomplete. The treaty was based upon the report of Secretary Foster. It was Cleveland's right and duty to investigate that report. Considerations of national honor demanded that he exercise that right and discharge his duty. The main question before the house was whether the evidence furnished demonstrated the falsity of that report. If it were false and the fact could be made to appear that the revolution was accomplished by the lawless act of our minister, then the negotiation of that treaty was an inexcusable blunder, and Stevens' action was a crime against the United States. All the evidence shows that Secretary Foster's report was erroneous and unreliable; that Stevens was a revolutionist and conspirator; and that the landing of troops to protect American life and property was a mere pretext and disguise to make possible the success of the protected usurpation. Long after the defamers of the president shall have been forgotten, the courage, patriotism and devotion of the democratic administration will stand as a monument to the honor of the United States and the enlightened justice of the world."

No Hearings on the Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The democratic members of the senate committee on finance have decided to grant no hearing on the tariff bill.

Voorhees was authorized to prepare a statement of the reasons actuating the committee. It is understood he will say that in the present condition of business of the country time is an essential element in the settlement of the tariff question, and that the committee could not allow the hearing to go on indefinitely and could not cut them off in the middle without doing an injustice to some interests. The republicans will probably make a vigorous protest, and will likely ask to have the bill recommitted.

Wrinkles and hollow cheeks, and dull, sunken eyes, don't always mean that a woman's old. Half the time, they only show that she's overworked or suffering. To such women, to every woman who is tired or afflicted, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription safely and certainly brings back health and strength. It's a legitimate medicine that corrects and cures; a tonic that invigorates and builds up; a nerve that soothes and strengthens. For all the derangements, irregularities and weaknesses peculiar to women, it is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

It won't do to experiment with Catarrh. There's the constant danger of driving it to the lungs. You can have a perfect and permanent cure with Dr.

An Awful Revenge.

ROME, Feb. 6.—In 1884 Signor Campanella, a prominent resident of Civita Lavigna, in a quarrel with a man named Falcini, killed him. The killing was done in self-defense. Falcini's brother swore to avenge his death. Campanella was to have been married today. This morning Falcini's brother cut the throat of the expectant bridegroom and then placed the corpse in a nuptial bed that had already been prepared. Falcini gave himself up to the police. "The bride-elect, when informed of the fate of her intended husband, became frantic with grief. It is believed she will lose her reason."

A Spasm of Virtue.

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—A bill will be introduced today in the legislature entitled "An act for the suppression of indecent dances in public places." It provides that "no woman shall appear at a public performance in a dress the skirts of which do not come within at least four inches of the floor and the waist of which is so constructed that any part of her person is exposed below the neck." The second part says "no woman shall appear in tights or appear at public performances in high kicking, serpentine, hip or skirt dancing."

KILLIES AND THEIR FOES.

Not Only Fish, Fowl and Man Devour. But Even Chickens Pillage Them.

"He doesn't mind a little thing like that," said the deacon, kindly, as he passed his hook through the skin behind the back fin of the killie and cast minnow, hook and sinker the length of his line to try the effect of a fresh bait. "If the snappers don't bite any better than they've been doing he'll be swimming as lively as ever when we pull up anchor to go home. Look at those killies in the bait box. Nothing damper about them than some seaweed since morning, and they'll all be ready to swim away if they stay till to-morrow."

"They are tough and hardy little fellows and no mistake," he continued, lifting the seaweed to look admiringly at the wriggling little stumped fish packed like sardines in the box. "They seem to have been created for the good of others. Everything preys on killies, from men who bait their hooks with them or eat the minnows as white bait, down to the gulls and herons and bass and blackfish and weakfish and fluke and snappers that follow them among the grass every full tide. And with all this keeping after them they don't thin them out that anyone can see. Why, the very chickens along shore will run from a dough trough for the sake of eating killies' eggs."

"Hold on a minute, deacon," said the reporter, who was the pious mariner's fishing companion that day. "I grant all the rest you say, but please explain how chickens manage to get at the killies' eggs. If you'd said ducks or geese, I could understand it."

FISHING WITH DOGS.

Unique Method of Capturing Salmon Used by the Ainus.

The savages of Saghalin island have a unique method of fishing for salmon-trout with their dogs, a description of which is given in "Trans-Siberian Savages." The water around the island is wonderfully clear. The author, who went out in a canoe, says the bottom was distinctly visible, while from under the canoe the frightened salmon-trout were swimming seaward in such numbers it seemed as if it would be difficult to drop a stone into the water without striking one.

From the time we started I was puzzled to guess what the Ainus could be talking thirty dogs with them for. I was soon to find out. At a certain point all the men and dogs came to a halt. Half the men and dogs then moved farther along the water's edge about two hundred yards.

At a concerted signal the dogs were started from their respective points and swam straight out seaward in single file in two columns. At a wild, sharp cry from all the Ainus the right column wheeled left, and the left column wheeled right until the head of each column met. Then at another signal all of them swam in line toward the shore, advancing more and more in crescentic formation.

As the dogs neared the shore increasing numbers of fish appeared in the shallow water, frightened forward by the splashing of the advancing column of dogs, which, as soon as their feet touched bottom, pounced upon the fishes as quick as a flash.

The animals promptly brought the fish which they had seized to their masters, who cut off their heads and gave each dog the head which belonged to him as his share of the catch. The dog who caught nothing got nothing.

I believe this dog drill of the Ainus is entirely unique. It is all the more remarkable, too, as the dogs, many of which have been captured from the forest, are still half wild.

Those who have given any particular attention to the study of botanical oddities know that the Brazilian flower known as the "running antelope" is so called because its white petals have a series of well-defined dark-colored lines and dots, in which the imagination can readily trace the form of an antelope, with the limbs outstretched and head thrown back, seemingly fleeing for its life. In the "curvature plant" one species has the imitative form on the petals, and another has it outlined in the ribs and shading of the leaves. This last-mentioned curiosity bears a remarkably well-executed likeness of the duke of Wellington, and has on that account been named "Arthur and His Nose."
