In the case of the state of Oregon against Bell Lewis the jury found defendant guilty on the first ballot. The fine was fixed by the court at $25 and the defendant was given until Monday noon to raise the necessary funds to keep her out of the county jail. The amount was raised and the case settled and Miss Lewis was allowed to go.

There is an industry in Oregon which has reached quite a proportion that is but little thought of by the majority of people, and that is the trade in Oregon grape root. This is shown by an advertisement which appears in one of the up-valley papers to the effect that 10,000 pounds are wanted, for which $30 per ton will be paid. The roots must be cut in pieces from two to four inches in length; free from pith and of good color. Large roots growing on the bottoms are preferred.—Pacific Farmer.

A New Departure.

As the Rev. Mr. Barnhart, who preaches at Fairfield the first Sunday in the month, was absent last Sabbath, Mr. Lincoln E. Farrington took his place, with great acceptance. His text was "Come Unto Me All Ye That Labor and Are Heavy Laden and I Will Give You Rest." Besides enlarging upon the invitation of the text, he quoted many of the promises of both Old and New Testament, and at the same time showed plainly that the sinner must come if he will be saved. He then told of some of the joys of the Christian, and also of his trials. He was listened to with interest through the whole by a large audience.

RESUMED WITH VIGOR.

Work at the Cascades Goes on with a Force of Over 400.

Work has been resumed at the Cascade Locks with great vigor. In answer to an advertisement for 100 men in the Portland papers, fifty came up Saturday, and fifty more will come up by next boat. There is at present a force of 400 men working, and day and night shifts are being run of ten hours each. For the past month work has been slack, owing to the snow and bad weather, but there is no longer difficulty from this source. It was reported that a "mud spring" was giving the contractors much difficulty, but the trouble was exaggerated. In the place spoken of a spring has always existed, but not such as to materially affect the improvement. Mr. Day recently said that he thought boats would be running through the canal by next winter, and there is no reason to doubt the statement if it is within human power to accomplish that result at the Cascades. As much force will be employed as it is profitable to work, and each week's labor will from henceforth tell mightily on the work to be done.

McKinley Club Meeting.

The McKinley club met Saturday night in the hall over THE CHRONICLE office. Mr. B. S. Huntington called the meeting to order, and delivered a neat speech, thanking the club for the honors shown the officers of the club. He was accorded a vote of thanks at the conclusion of the speech. Nominations being in order, Hon. Robt. Mays named Frank Menefee for president, A. G. Johnston nominated Nick Sinnott for vice president, C. L. Phillips nominated H. H. Riddell for secretary and G. V. Bolton for treasurer. By unanimous consent the secretary cast the white ballot for all the officers named. The delegates to the late convention at Portland, Messrs. Riddell, Kelsey and Farley, made speeches, which were both entertaining and instructive. The hall was filled with republicans. The meeting was rather quiet for a political one.

Black-leg in Cattle.

A good many cattle have died recently near The Dalles and throughout adjoining counties. Some of the owners have supposed they died of black-leg. An account of the symptoms of this disease, therefore, ought to be of interest to the stockmen whose cattle are affected, taken from the Toledo Blade:

Black-leg, charbon or black-quarter is a fatal, infectious disease of young cattle. The swellings, which are external, emit a crackling sound when the hand is passed over them. The disease is as a rule confined to certain localities, on certain pasture the disease appears regularly in the summer and fall of the year. The cause of the disease is bacillus, which has the power of reproducing itself within itself. Dry spores may be carried from the field in hay or other feed from the field, and cause the disease when the food is eaten. A slight wound made by sharp points of the food or an abrasion of the skin, enables the virus to impregnate the animal with the disease. The symptoms exhibit themselves about three days after infection. The animal loses appetite and animation, is dull, debilitated and has a high fever. The animal may be stiff or lame. After the swellings show themselves the animal succumbs after one and a half to three days. Before death there is increasing weakness, hard breathing and occasional attacks of colic. The tumors may appear on the thighs, the neck, the shoulder, the breast, the flanks, or the rump, but never below the knee joint. It sometimes appears on the base of the tongue or on the throat. This is but seldom the case. The crackling sound is carried by the bacilli as they multiply. Remedies have been given, but so far a positive cure is unknown. Certain writers recommend the opening of the swellings by long incisions, pretty deep, with a sharp knife and applying carbolic acid 1 ounce to a pint of water. When the tumor is low down on the limb it has been recommended to tie around the limb, just above the tumor, a cord; then open the tumor and apply the carbolic acid lotion. In cases where the disease appears, it is well to put the animals on upland pasture. In treating the animals, great caution should be exercised to prevent any abrasion on the hands of the operator to touch any of the exudations on the tumors, as it is dangerous, as the disease will communicate itself to man.

FARMER LEGISLATION.

During the coming year there will be an immense number of matters of the most vital interest to farmers dealt with by Congress and the Executive Departments at Washington. It is highly important that the farmers be kept promptly and fully informed as to what is being planned and done affecting them at the National Capital. They should all, therefore, take THE AMERICAN FARMER, which, being on the ground, has better facilities than any other paper for getting this information, and devote itself to this duty. They will thus be constantly a great amount of valuable information that they can get in no other paper.

THE AMERICAN FARMER and THE CHRONICLE will be sent one year for $1.75.
