

INDIAN NAMES

London Newspapers Find their Spelling a Matter of Difficulty.

The London newspapers occasion considerable mirth to their Indian contemporaries by the spelling of Indian words. It appears that, in reference to the native princes and noblemen who were present at the opening of the Imperial institute, we tried to strike out on an original line, but were only able to spell "Gackwak" in seven different ways, and "Blownauger" in four. Indian papers, it seems, are not wholly successful. We still occasionally see "Puna" and "Poonia," "Hindu" and "Hindoo," "Dacoit" and "Dakit," and so on, according to the taste and fancy of the speller.

In a supplement to the Bombay Government Gazette we now have a revised alphabetical list of Madras place-names, which is "to be strictly adhered to." In this list, while retaining such monstrosities as Birulcazhikunram, Suncaraperumalkoyil, Gannamanayakanur and Ammayanayakanur, a large proportion of the popular versions are retained, with the thin disguise of a "K" for a "C." Three-and-twenty out of the thirty-six pages of the Notification are occupied by a list of place-names "in which the system of transliteration has been followed," and a wonderful list it is.

A Joke Tried by Jury.

A North Carolina paper tells the following: At Harnett county superior court, a few years since, Judge Shipp presiding, the trial of a cause had been protracted till near midnight. The jury was tired and sleepy and showed flagging attention. Willie Murchison, who was addressing the jury, thought to arouse them, so he said: "Gentlemen, I will tell you an anecdote." Instantly the judge, the jury and the few spectators pricked up their ears and were all attention, as Murchison was admirable in that line, had a fund of anecdotes and no one could tell them better. But he soon proceeded to tell one of the dullest, prosiest and most pointless jokes possible. Everybody looked disappointed. The judge, leaning over, said in an unmistakable tone of disappointment: "Mr. Murchison, I don't see the point to that joke." "Nor I, either," replied the witty counsel. "But your honor told it to me on our way down here and as I thought the lack of appreciation must be due to my obtuseness I concluded to give the joke a trial by jury."

TENANTED BY WILD HOGS.

A Large Alabama Tract Where No Human Being Dwells.

In the northern part of Limestone county, Ala., is a tract of land consisting of more than one thousand acres, which is not on the map of the state, nor can it be found in the register's office of that county. No one claims it and no taxes have ever been paid on it. It is a vast wilderness, inhabited by snakes, deer and razorback hogs. It is a free hunting ground, and thousands of these hogs are killed every year, more for sport than for anything else. The hogs are wild and cannot be domesticated. Their yield is said to be enormous. Tom Booth, of Pulaski, Tenn., secured a male and female and did all in his power to tame them, but failed. He kept them a year, and at the end of that time they were as wild as at first. The more he fed them the thinner they became. Within the year they consumed four hundred bushels of corn and were as lean as church mice. During that time the sow had five litters of pigs, numbering two hundred and ten. Mr. Booth could not tame any of these nor get them fat enough to make even soap grease. Finally he gave them to a negro, who now considers himself under no obligations to Mr. Booth.

The flesh of these hogs resembles horseflesh. It is as tough as a coonskin, and a large-sized hog of this species rendered would not make grease enough to fry a skillet of batter cakes. They go through a garden like a shovel plow, and no vegetable escapes them. They can crowd through a crack that would hardly admit a mouse, and their sharp noses act as levers for garden gates. The Tennesseans make great fun of Alabama's razorback hogs.

EVERYDAY EXPRESSIONS.

How They Are Being Improved as Our Civilization Advances.

Capt. John J. Dalton is writing a little book that is calculated to show the improvement in ordinary everyday expressions that is continually going on, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Capt. Dalton has given the subject a good deal of thought and attention, having talked with several centenarians to get a correct idea of the style of conversation in vogue fifty, sixty or seventy-five years ago, and also mingled with the people that you are likely to meet at a political caucus at the present time. Here are a few excerpts from Mr. Dalton's admirable little book:

Style of 1835: "Will you join me?" Improved in 1893 to: "Come on, and we'll blow one off."

Style of 1850: "My luck has been distressingly bad of late." The modern expression: "I've been traveling on me uppers for two or three weeks."

Style of 1845: "I never was more sincere in my life." The present way: "Dat goes, see?"

Style of 1880: "I fear I lingered too long at the wine table last evening." Altered in 1893 to: "I shot in too many glasses last eve."

Style of colonial days: "My adversary was easily vanquished." The modern thing: "I guess I didn't do a thing with that guy."

It isn't in the ordinary way that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to the weak and suffering woman who needs it. It's guaranteed. Not with words merely; any medicine can make claims and promises. What is done with the Favorite Prescription? It is: if it fails to benefit or cure, in any case, your money is returned. Can you ask any better proof that a medicine will do what it promises?

It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and strengthening nerve, and a certain remedy for the ills and ailments that beset a woman. In "female complaint" of every kind, periodical pains, internal inflammation or ulceration, bearing-down sensations, and all chronic weaknesses and irregularities, it is a positive and complete cure.

To every tired, overworked woman, and to every weak, nervous, and ailing one, it is guaranteed to bring health and strength.

To every sufferer from Catarrh, no matter how bad the case or of how long standing, the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy say this: "If we can't cure it, perfectly and permanently, we'll pay you $500 in cash." Sold by all druggists.
