BLAND'S FIERY SPEECH

Said Mobsocracy Had Taken Possession of the House.

GALLERIES SILENT AND SURPRISED

Heavy Break in Silver Bullion—Cleveland Troubled Again with a Cancerous Growth.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—In the course of the debate Bland denounced the New York delegation in heated words. He was called to order several times by Coombs of New York, amid a general uproar. Bland's speech was sensational in its criticism of the disorder which prevailed yesterday. He declared that the men who were obstructing legislation and defying the house were anarchists and revolutionists. They were worse than the criminal who would throw a bomb from the galleries. There were hisses at this, which grew louder and culminated in cries of "shame!" Bland proceeded in his impassioned utterances. He declared mobsocracy had taken possession of the house. The mob of anarchy was being given an object lesson. The anarchists were being invited to parade the streets and commit deeds of violence. He proceeded, with frequent characterization of the members who obstructed legislation as anarchists and revolutionists. As he proceeded there were alternate scenes of extreme confusion and silent astonishment. The speaker was frequently called to order and was finally compelled to take his seat and then proceeded in order. He was frequently applauded in his milder criticisms, but silence followed his more violent utterances. The aisles of the house were choked with members while he was speaking, and the galleries were crowded.

The house fight on the silver bill was resumed. Bland moved to close the debate at 5 p. m. tomorrow. Tracy filibustered and secured roll-calls, which again protracted the struggle, with little prospect that a quorum will be secured. Finally, on motion of Bland, the order of arrest was vacated and all congressmen under arrest discharged.

The vote on Bland's motion to close the debate at 5 tomorrow resulted in 170 to 7, no quorum. Bland moved a call of the house. Tracy moved to adjourn. There was confusion for some time.

The Silver Market.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—In Wall street the heavy break in silver bullion was by far the most striking financial incident of the day. So long as the recent market weakness was ascribed to liquidation sales by Bombay speculators, there was reason to think the lowest price had been seen a week ago, but the London market authorities have plainly been on a false scent, and this week almost for the first time it is acknowledged the heavy and sudden increase in the production has overwhelmed the market. Not the least significant is the known fact that this week's break in silver has been largely caused by cable offers from New York at prices below the earlier London market. It rests now perhaps less on the Indian and Chinese demand than on the bottom figure at which the large American producers are content to sell for the future price of the silver.

Cleveland Sick.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—The Evening Post's Washington special says: "It is reported on pretty good authority that the cancerous growth in President Cleveland's month is again troubling him; that another surgical operation is necessary, and that the Dolphin has been ordered here to take him ostensibly on a duck-shooting trip, but really to have an operation performed."

AFTER THE HAT

Three Men Face Death to Get It, But Recover it.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 23.—Two well-known traveling passenger agents had an exciting time here yesterday. John E. Burke, of the Louisville & Nashville, and William Kelly, jr., of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, were in the city on business. In company with Local Passenger Agent B. D. Dennison with the New York Central, they visited the ice bridge. The party climbed the ice mountain, and while on the brink Burke's hat was blown off and began to roll down the ice on the side of the mountain toward the American falls. Burke, without thinking of his danger dropped down on his stomach to lean over and secure the hat. He began to slip down the side of the ice mountain toward the whirling water and certain death. He shouted "Help me," and Kelly, leaning over, caught his foot. The ice was slippery, and Kelly lost his

SANDOW WAS HYPNOTIZED.

The Strong Man Was Weak Under Mesmeric Influence.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Sandow, the strong man, met his match yesterday for the first time. The meeting took place in Sandow's rooms, in the presence of several physicians and a half-dozen medical students. Dr. C. H. Hershey, a mesmerist, was the appointment. Sandow "went under" the influence in a minute or so, and thereafter performed every act suggested by the doctor, while himself not aware of what he was doing. "You're weary, Mr. Sandow," said the doctor, and his patient began to show signs of giving in to the slight influence he was exerting. "You are going to sleep, your eyelids are closing. Now you are asleep." Sure enough Sandow was apparently in great slumber. In response to the physician's suggestion he breathed hard and finally his chest rose and fell like a great bellows. "You can't raise your arm; try it," commanded the doctor. Sandow tried and failed. He strained apparently with all his muscle power and grew red in the face in his attempt to elevate his right arm, but to no purpose until the word was given, and then it flew up like a battering ram. Then a five-pound dumb-bell was produced. "Now, Mr. Sandow, this dumb-bell weighs 400 pounds, and I don't think you can lift it; in fact, I'm quite sure you can't," said the doctor. Then the strong man took hold of the baby bell in the middle. He tried to pull it over toward him, preparatory to raising it, as he does usually with the one weighing twenty-six times as much. He could not stir it. He went through all his exhibition motions, and to all intents put forth all his tremendous strength. The muscles upon his neck stood out like bars of iron until they were as big as an ordinary man's wrist, and he became red and purple, and finally almost black, but he was unable to budge the little bell upon the floor. Then the trick was changed. One of the 130-pound bells had been taken to the house, and it was brought out. "Here," said the doctor, "is one that only weighs five pounds; see how easy it is for you to swing it." Urged on still by the mysterious influence, Sandow never gave such an exhibition of his trained powers as now when he grasped the bar and put it above his head with the utmost ease, as if it had been in reality one which weighed what he had believed. When the test had been carried out to everybody's satisfaction, Sandow was restored to his normal condition of mental and physical strength. This required about a minute and he was somewhat dazed for awhile. Then he complained of extreme lassitude, and said the muscles of his back and arms ached.
