UTAH'S INDIAN LANDS. Immense Reservations Which Citizens of the Territory Want Opened.

The Wintah and Uncompangre Indian reservations, which Delegate Rawlins is endeavoring to have opened for settlement this winter, comprise some of the richest agricultural and mineral lands in the territory. There are about five million acres, probably one-fourth of which is available for agricultural and grazing purposes, and two hundred and fifty thousand acres for agricultural purposes alone. There way to be well, if is an abundance of good water available for irrigation and for mining.

The reservations are owned by about two thousand Indians, who have never attempted to cultivate those portions that are tillable and who still live in a state of sayagery. So far their pos-sessions have not been encroached upon, though they have long been coveted. The miners and prospectors cannot long be withheld, for rich minerals are known to abound there, and neither fear of Indians nor the power of the federal government will prevent the prospectors from examining and sampling the mountains.

The citizens of Utah reason that this country should not be given over exclusively to a few well fed, lazy Indians, when it is capable of being made rich in farms, villages, railroads, factories and mills. They hold that, with allotted lands, surrounded by civilizing influences, these Indians may become good citizens of the United States, which they certainly are not now. They claim that the theory of sending a few white men among them' to teach them how to farm and read and tend stock is a false one; that only by contact with the whites and with different surroundings can they ever be reclaimed. There is no attempt to rob the Indians or to drive them out. The proposition is to give them farms in severalty, which will all be under ditches constructed by white men, and thus they will have practical teaching and ready markets. Mormons and gentiles are a unit upon the question of utilizing these reservations

Modern Ruths, or the Damsels of the Judean Hills.

A correspondent of the Washington Star has been "doing" the Holy land, and is filled with admiration for the damsels of Bethlehem. In a recent them out of the pay given by the govletter he writes: "I don't wonder that ernment. Boaz fell in love with Ruth. The Bethlehem girls are among the beauties of the east and you will find more in the same amount of territory anywhere else the world over. A shipload of these Bethlehem maidens, if they could be transported to the great. northwest, would capture the bonanza farmers of the Dakotas just as Ruth captured this great land owner, Boaz. and when they came back to Washington as senators' wives, they would be the belles of the capital. ### FROM THE ORE. . Some of the Processes in Steel and Iron Manufacture

Iron-making is a kind of cookery on a huge scale. The earthy impurities must be "roasted" or melted out from the iron ore; the necessary carbon must then be properly mixed in from the fuel. or the unnecessary carbon burned out. This is of manufacture, says R. R. Bowker in Harper's Magatine. A wrought-iron bar or plate is always obtained from a puddle ball, an aggregation of grains of iron in a pasty, semi-fused condition, interspersed with a greater or lesser amount of cinder or slag. Under the powerful action of the rolls the grains welded together, and a large part of the cinder is squeezed out, but enough remains interposed between the iron granules to prevent them from welding thoroughly and forming a homogeneous mass. The welded lumps elongate under the process of rolling, and the resulting bar resembles a bunch of iron fibers or sinews with minute particles of slag interspersed here and there. Such iron varies in resistance according to whether the power is applied with or against the fiber. Steel is the result of a fusing process. It may be crucible, Bessemer, or open-hearth steel, but in all cases it has been cast from a thoroughly melted and fluid state into an ingot mold, where it solidifies and is ready for subsequent treatment, such as hammering or rolling. The slag being lighter than the steel, it rises on top of the melted bath; and does not mingle with the metal, which remains clean and unobstructed, and, after being cast into the mold, cools into a crystalline homogeneous mass in which no amount of rolling can develop a fiber. Thus steel possesses a structure more regular and compact than wrought iron. Its resistance to strains and stresses is more equal in all directions, and its adaptability to structural use is vastly increased.

The regular army of China is said to consist of 323,000 men. Besides this, gists. the emperor's army, there is a national army of 650,000 men, who are paid about $1 a month, but in consideration of this munificence are required to feed themselves. At the entrance they look their last on the dead, and the corpsebearers-a caste of such - carry it within the precincts and lay, it down, to be finally disposed of by the vul-tures which crowd the tower. Meanwhile and for three days after the priests say constant prayers for the departed, for his soul is supposed not to leave the world till the fourth day after death. On the fourth day there is the Uthanna ceremony, when large sums of money are given away in memory of the departed. The liturgy in use is a series of funeral sermons by Zoroaster. Dogs are sacred and supposed to guide the souls of the dead to Heaven and to ward off evil spirits; hence it is customary to lead a dog into the chamber of death, that he may look at the corpse before it is carried to the tower.

The experience of Geo. A. Apgar, of German Valley, N. J., is well worth remembering. He was troubled with chronic diarrhœa and doctored for five months and was treated by four different doctors without benefit. He then began using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, of which one bottle effected a complete cure. It is for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, drug-

THWARTED LOVERS.

They Decide Upon a Strange Test of Each the Other's Endurance. shou

The strangest test of will power and endurance ever made, said a resident of the City of Mexico to a Globe-Democrat man, was in Mexico, the characters participating being a Mexican girl and an American man. They were lovers, and the girl's parents refused their consent to any union, insisting that she should marry a wealthy Mexican suitor. At the suggestion of the girl they agreed to die together, and to test the strength and endurance of each other's love they chose a means of each other's love they chose a means of suicide unlike any ever dreamed of before. Food and fruit were placed on a table in the center of a room occupied by both, the girl having escaped from her home, but being unwilling to elope with her lover. It was agreed that they should starve to death with plenty before them, and should either succumb to nature and partake of the food then both were released from the bond of death, but there should be an everlasting separation. For twelve days they endured the pangs of hunger without a murmur of a thought of wavering from their purpose to die together. The twelfth day the father of the girl discovered her whereabouts, and, breaking the door, they were carried out, too faint to stand alone. It took them several days to recover their strength, and when they did they were married.
